schools for boys, in which some 250 boys are getting the rudiments of an education.

Our work is to itinerate among the villages preaching to all, but giving special attention to those villages where there are native Christians or enquirers. We also make a specialty of examining the schools and instructing the boys. Thus the Christian religion is coming to be very well understood, and many are turning away from their old heathen institutions and seeking a better faith. Here we find all classes of hill people, even from Bhotea and Nepal. We have this year baptized three Nepalese, who give us good reason to believe they are really in earnest about being Christians.

There are many of the higher castes who acknowledge to us that they fully believe in the Christian religion, but they do not seem to have courage to face the opposition and persecution that will follow should they make an open confession of their belief. Hence most of those who have become Christians are from the lower classes.

At the beginning of the hot weather most of our work closes in the Bhabar and opens in the mountains. Then for about six months we give special attention to the work in Nynsee Tal. Here we have a larger community of heathen and nominal Christians. Among these the Gospel is preached; Sunday and day-schools conducted. Beside the above a great amount of personal labor from house to house is done. During this part of the year we have work going on in the villages near Nynsee Tal, where the people from the Bhabar resort for the hot season. We particularly try to keep up preaching, also day and Sunday-schools in the villages where the native Christians from the Bhabar go for the warm weather.

We have at one of these outstations a medical dispensary in charge of a native preacher who is also a doctor. During the past year he has had 8,102 patients who have received medicine from him. Thus in every way we are endeavoring to spread the light and truth of the Gospel.

ENGLISH WORK.

The congregations in the Chapel have been larger. We have also increased the scope of our ministrations by a system of cottage services held in different parts of the station. There has been scarcely a week in the past season in which some persons have not sought Jesus.

The people who are converted or quickened in these services annually carry with them to the cities of the plains a new interest in the spread of Christianity, and often become efficient friends of our Mission work. Our two English-speaking Sabbath-schools have been efficiently superintended by Surgeon-Major Moffatt.

The Berean Lessons have been well taught in letter and in spirit. Earnest instruction and faithful prayer have been encouraged by the conversion of at least eleven children.

In the new soldiers' Chapel—built this year by the generosity of Sir Henry Ramsay—we have had charge of a regular Sabbath service for non-conforming soldiers. Earnest laymen, in connection with the pastor, have held prayer-meetings and Bible classes in the same place among these men, three evenings in each week. These services have resulted in an encouraging number of conversions.

The expenses of this English work are entirely paid by the congregation. We have been relieved of all care in raising current funds by the kind services of S. E. Marston, Esquire, our treasurer.

SCHOOLS.

Our main school at Paori has been smaller this year than usual. This may be accounted for chiefly by the hard times and the difficulty of getting food. Our students, as a general thing, coming far from home. The efficiency of the school has, however, not diminished. Two boys this year passed the examination for entrance to Roorkee College, but failed to be admitted owing, it is believed, to there being a surplus of successful candidates. The Srinagar school has not done much during the past year; but the place is a hard one, and it still needs a good Christian master. We maintain branches at Chippleghat, Bangar and Gagwara. In future it is our intention to open schools, for the most part, only where we have a nucleus of native Christians. This year our Grant-in-aid to boys' schools was reduced to Rs. 40.

THE NATIVE CHURCH.

Ten years ago we had one native Gurhwalee in full membership and seven probationers. This year we have twenty and about forty probationers. Including baptized children our little Christian community numbers 111, besides several of our members who are temporarily absent preparing for hill work.

I am sorry to say there are also a few baptized natives in the province who, for various reasons, are separated from us entirely. They number about ten adults. We are doing all we can to save some of them whose cases are hopeful.

The condition of the Church on the whole is good, and the people are making progress. At a Camp-meeting held in Dekwali in November we had about 100 Christians besides a good congregation of outsiders. Some of our young people are believed to have experienced there a change of heart; some older persons who were going astray were led to see their error, and made to decide definitely to give up the last remnant of heathen customs. Some living at enmity were, as we found out since, reconciled to each other. A visit from Revds. Judd and Cheney, of Nynce Tal, did us much good.

At the close of Camp-meeting we had several baptisms and the dedication of a little church built by funds raised by our stewards. The sum of Rs. 81-1-6 was collected up to the close of November. The contract was given for Rs. 100. S. H. Marston, Esquire, our Head-Master, has been the most liberal subscriber to this object.

The total number of native baptisms during the year was 47, of whom about 6 were the children of Christians; the rest were Hindoos, chiefly from a caste called "Kole" or weavers, but all of them relatives of Christians.

The work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is spoken of in a separate report by Mrs. Gill. It is enough to say that it has had a good deal of attention this year, and is encouraging. The girls' orphanage school continues to increase in numbers and efficiency.

In conclusion, I may say we have had rejoicings and weepings over the native church and its condition. Some have been unfaithful and fallen into sin, others who were formerly weak seem to have grown stronger. Mountains are frequently cited as types of barrenness, but it need not be so in regard to missionary work among their inhabitants. Attention to the hill people is sure to result in triumphs to Christianity. General Ramsay continues to be generous to our work. Colonel Fisher has often helped us gladly. For all of which we return thanks.

EASTERN KUMAON CIRCUIT.

REV. R. GRAY, M.D., Missionary.

THE year has been one of quiet work without many visible results. No one has been baptized from heathenism, though several are inquiring about Christ. The work has been conducted as usual. Preaching has been steadily carried on in Sunday services, in melas, and in the villages. The Sunday-school work has been a source of much hope. The average attendance has been steadily higher than in the day schools, and the services conducted every Sunday without regard to heathen festivals or unfavorable weather. The teachers are all Christians. Other Sunday-schools could be opened if we had a few more helpers. No very extensive work has been done in the way of selling books and tracts, principally because the people are not able to read. This work has been carried on by all without any remuneration.

The day-schools at the end of the year are five in number, and are all vernacular schools. The Anglo-vernacular school at Pithoragarh was reduced on November 1st to a vernacular grade, and at the same time two new vernacular schools were opened. The school at Lohoghat has been closed for the winter as is usual, and is not included in the five schools reported. The Government Grant-in-aid for schools was reduced at the beginning of the year from Rs. 50 per mensem to Rs. 40.

The Medical work this year has been larger than in any previous year, though no new dispensaries have been opened. As the yearly returns are not yet in, the numbers of those treated during the year cannot be given. This work has been supported as usual without any pecuniary help from the Society.

In the way of self-support, Rs. 12 have been given for a pastor and Rs. 105 for a chapel. The total amount collected for the chapel is Rs. 125.

ROHILKUND DISTRICT.

REV. E. W. PARKER, PRESIDING ELDER.

THE number of laborers in Rohilkund is about the same as last year. There are but five stations where Missionaries reside, but within these there are forty-two appointments for native preachers. At a late District Conference seventy labourers were present, six being Missionaries, forty, native preachers of various grades, and twenty-four, exhorters and teachers. At this Conference eight sessions were held in five days, beside the religious services. The reports, lectures, essays, sermons, exhortations and prayers all showed most encouraging, intellectual and spiritual growth. The resolutions passed all showed the right spirit, as well as a determination to go forward. One urged the elevation of the standard of Examination for Entrance to the Theological School. Another set forth a determination of the Conference to punish all unfaithfulness in business agents and servants, members of the church, who, under the name of "dasturi" commission, etc., make false charges. A third condemned severely the custom of hiding the sins of others and shielding them from just punishment on the ground of friendship or fear of disgrace. A fourth gave direction for the social treatment of false Christians and expelled members—directing that the members of the church should not eat or smoke with such socially, in order that sin might be exposed and the church kept pure.

In the cities our growth is steady and sure, though not rapid. In some villages, among certain classes, however, persons come forward for baptism quite as fast as they can be trained and established in the truth. There have been for a long time many well-instructed inquirers in various places among the Chamars, and during the year a break has been made into this class in six different localities. There has been increase in all of the forty-two places where laborers are working except six. There have been two hundred and thirty-nine adult baptisms during the year. Seventy-three of these have been from the Mehtar caste, one hundred and five from the people known as Sikhs, twenty-one from the Chamars, twenty-nine from other castes of Hindus, and eleven from Mahomedans.

Perhaps we might have chosen different classes from which to select our converts had it been left to us, but we believe God is directing this work, and we enter the doors He opens to us, trusting in Him to regulate results. Our experience teaches us that low caste converts do not as a rule really keep back the more respectable classes. They do afford an excuse often, when one is very much wanted, but in most of such cases another excuse would be found did not this one exist. The famine has had a depressing effect on the people, which is at present unfavorable to our work. People realize their helplessness, and usually consider that their sins have in some way brought on this difficulty; but their anxious care and suffering oftener cause bitterness and complaint than repentance and reform.

We call attention to the station reports provided by the Missionaries and Ministers in charge.

BAREILLY.

REV. T. J. SCOTT, D.D., Missionary.

“ AFTER an absence of two years in the United States, I returned to this station and found all departments of Mission work moving on surely and steadily, developing results that point to the final triumph of Jesus. Perhaps it is enough, touching the forms of our work, simply to remind the reader of Mission Reports what these departments of work are. Through (1) Schools we are still seeking to lay our hand on the heart and brain of those who are too young to be ‘steeped’ in idolatry, or deeply dyed in the fanaticism of the ‘false prophet.’ Our (2) Orphanage is a blessed asylum for 160 girls saved from want and shame and trained for Christ and heaven. A (3) Theological School continues its training of the men who, after all, must do the work of evangelizing the masses. Our hope is that the spirit of deep consecration may rest upon them. The (4) Woman’s Medical Work continues to allay the sickness and pain of hundreds, thus leveling prejudices and unlocking hearts to the Gospel, otherwise most difficult of access.

A hopeful work, (5) Zenana Visiting, is still carrying mental and spiritual light into many homes where only woman can teach woman. Results here, however real in the nature of native society, cannot be readily seen. (6) Colporteurs (two) are steadily and persistently distributing Scriptures and religious tracts and books everywhere. (7) Preaching 'in season, out of season' with reproof, rebuke and exhortation—with all long-suffering and doctrine fully and everywhere, 'from Jerusalem round about unto Illyricum,' we place above all other methods. We cease not to declare the 'unsearchable riches' and to 'warn every man' in crowded cities and quiet villages, in the hot dusty bazaars, or by the rural threshing-floors where half a dozen souls work and listen.

The ensemble of these forms of missionary effort thus shows seven columns pushed against the enemy. It may occur to some gleaner of reports that our forces are too much divided and our efforts too diffuse, but these departments mean thorough work—mean reaching all classes and in all places. They mean the teaching of women and children and the healing of the body to reach the soul—the training of disciples for the more efficient work of the Master, teaching and preaching through the silent page when and where the preacher cannot go,—and, above all, and to which all other means are simply auxiliary, the regular and wide-spread proclaiming of Jesus and the resurrection, which is shaking idolatry and causing Islam to quake through all its borders as never before.

Baptisms are not numerous, but they are steadily building up a native Church, and facts show as rapidly as it was done in the early centuries. The greater the success the greater the opposition, is always the rule till the tide is turned in favor of Christianity. Wherever we make a break there the enemy concentrates. Three years ago the leading man of a low caste people was baptized in this city. A 'great door and effectual' seemed opened for a large in-gathering of souls. But every time persons are baptized from that people a storm of opposition is aroused. Paganism dies hard. A leading convert apostatized—another more firm had his head laid open with a bludgeon by a villain, who was imprisoned for the act for some months.

Recently more converts from this caste were baptized, when the Knight of the Bludgeon again opened persecution. He was reminded of the prison, and all seems quiet now.

‘The poor have the gospel preached to them.’ A breach has been made in the shoe-maker and leather-dresser caste. Many of the early Christians of Rome were leather-dressers. As usual we had our storm of opposition—stirred up this time by Moslems. A small school-house which we had built was taken away from us by law technicality, and we were obliged to buy our own house. I hope a permanent opening has been made in this caste. We have some inquirers at various points in this district. Some of these will soon be brought into the Kingdom. A number of persons have applied for baptism evidently from famine pressure. Recently two entire families thus offered themselves. At times the loaves and fishes have more power than the Gospel.

There is no mistaking a rapid weakening of the old faith all round us. The rising generation can never believe as their fathers did. The masses will gradually adopt some form of Theism. Christianity at the same time will steadily spread.

Our native Church is growing. It has for the past year supported a native evangelist on a small salary. This famine year is very trying to our poor people. In a few months we hope to occupy a new preaching hall in this city, which is now under course of building. We will then have a long-coveted position for working in the city.

In conclusion, I may write that with many discouragements we have much that is hopeful. As to ultimate success, complete and glorious, there is no question but that of time.”

THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.

REV. D. W. THOMAS, Missionary.

“At the commencement of this year there were thirty-seven students in the school, but one (a promising young man) has died, three have been expelled on account of immoral conduct, two, dismissed on account of mental incapacity, and one, because of failing health. The thirty-one who remain have made very good progress in their studies, and their general deportment has been satisfactory. In addition to attending to their daily studies, the most of the students have regularly preached twice a week to the non-Christian population of the city and adjacent villages, and thus the joyful news of salvation through Christ has reached thousands who had never known the true God and the way of eternal life."

KHERA BAJHERA.

MUNSHI JAMES JORDAN, Native Local Preacher.

FIVE adults and six children have been baptized in this village during this season. The work, however, does not yet spread among the people. Opposition is very great, and each convert thus far has been driven to the Mission compound to live, though several carry on their farming as usual.

The school is doing very well and the boys are well taught. They understand Christianity well, and are surely drinking in the truth, which will have an important influence on their future. The girls' schools are also doing a very good work. We, however, do not seem to meet with real success until people in their own homes confess Christ, and live for him in the midst of their neighbours. We labor for this and are sure that we shall soon see such a break made.

SHAHJEHANPORE.

REV. F. M. WHEELER, Missionary.

"THERE have been but few conversions and not a great many baptisms in this station during the past year. Some things connected with this work have been perplexing and discouraging indeed, but I have abundant reason for thankfulness for God's protection, His felt love and continued mercies, with not a few tokens of spiritual favor to me personally and in the work. Preaching has been kept up all the year, though the times and places have varied. During the first half of the year Enoch Burge and myself preached regularly several times in a week in various places in and near the city. In a short time a determined spirit of opposition was aroused among the Mahomedans. However their opposition took no worse form than of interruptions, contradictions; counter-arguments and denunciations, which had the effect of drawing many people together. We labored for days to make an impression on these people, but I fear to little purpose; no doubt some impression was made, though, to all outward appearance, the truth had little or no effect, but that of exciting a desire to evade it or to mock at it. We closed our discussions by having a series of lectures on Christian doctrines in our new school-house. These lectures were well attended, and we managed with some difficulty to avoid any disagreeable collision with Mahomedan disputants.

The School work has continued the same as usual, showing that it is a powerful means of sapping the foundations of Hindu and Mahomedan faith in the minds of young men, but that much may be and is accomplished without bringing young men near to Christ. Destroying the old faith is quite a different thing from introducing and establishing a new faith, and requires quite a different style of ability and devotion in the teachers. Many of our teachers understand but little of this last kind of work. However, I have noticed one boy in my city school, of about fifteen years of age, who I believe is a convert to the Christian faith, and wishes to be baptized; but then the old question comes up, what am I to do with him without taking him over from his parents, as they would not keep him, and constituting him a ward of either the Mission or myself. This course might be adopted and scores of young men secured within a very short time. Yet the dangers and the evil tendency of this course are too well known, and I cannot without the most absolute and pressing necessity consent to it. Yet my heart aches to do something for such boys.

I have had one interesting inquirer from the country—a Thakur Zemindar who had obtained some tracts on the Christian religion, and a part of Matthew's Gospel containing the sermon on the mount. He could not have found a better sermon. It did him good. He became convinced of the truth and adopted it, then came to see me and get more instruction and secure a whole Testament. He told me he was a Christian, but I found that he had not been baptized, nor did he know anything about a Church or the ceremonies of religion, and on some important points he was in singular error. For instance, he thought the Church mentioned in the Testament was a divine being to whom prayer must be offered, and that Queen Victoria should have prayer offered to her. I discovered and corrected these errors on his second visit, after he had been reading the Testament about one month. He has been to see me several times since, and I am clear in the conviction that this man is perfectly honest and sincere, and that he is substantially a Christian. He calls himself so in spite of all his opposing friends and relatives, and his acquaintances all believe he is a Christian. He hesitates, however, about being baptized, though he says he should and will be. He wishes to get his wife and children baptized with him, and they are not ready for this step. Baptism will probably close his access to his friends and acquaintances if taken at once—there is reason for some delay, and there is danger in protracted delay. Yet I cannot press this man; I am convinced that the true course with him is just the course I would adopt at home with an intelligent adult; that is to teach him his duty and leave the event to his conscience and his sense of duty to God.

I have had several cases of awakening and conversion among the English soldiers to whom I preach, and also some cases of falling away again. Good can be done among the soldiers, but evil influences are so strong in the army that if much is to be accomplished, one must be given almost wholly to that form of work.

There has been a deepening seriousness and some awakenings and I hope also conversions among the Orphanage boys. As a class they lack moral courage, and are very much in fear one of another. Influences opposed to vital piety are very strong in the Orphanage. A really pious boy is in the way of others who have irregularities to conceal and little schemes to carry through, hence he is sure to be put to inconvenience and pressed to deceive, or to be a silent witness to sinful practices. This in turn demoralizes himself. The religious care of the orphan boys is at once the most important and most delicate work connected with this institution, and also one the most easily neglected.

What I have said of schools, in general, applies to our Sunday-schools. And what I have said of the work in and around the city applies to the work in Tilbur and Pawayan. The preachers there have had the same excited state of things to deal with this year, and with much the same results, in increased opposition, and in apparent littleness of fruits as to the conversion of the people to the Christian faith.

In conclusion, if, as is possible, this should prove to be my last annual report in India, I wish to express, in connection with it, my thankfulness to God for having brought me so far, provided for me so well, and enabled me to do the little service which I have so imperfectly wrought. To God be praise for the exceeding precious gift of his Son, through whom all other gifts and blessings are made the earnest and promise of Eternal blessedness."

BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

REV. H. JACKSON, Missionary.

MR. JACKSON was appointed to this Institution at the beginning of the year, but his health failed during the hot season, so that he was obliged to go to the hills, and Mr. Wheeler has since had charge of the work. The Orphanage is quite full at present, as the famine has brought us in more boys, and our number is about one hundred and seventy. The school department has had a successful year, and many of the older boys give great promise of usefulness. The first class is in the Moradabad High School, and has made excellent improvement. It is very difficult to make the work-department pay, as wages are so cheap and material so dear. Still much work is done in the furniture, shoe-making, weaving, and blacksmith shops, the object being to teach the boys useful trades.

PUNAHPUR.

REV. HORACE J. ADAMS, Native Minister.

IN this Christian village there are seventy-four families, all Christians, and connected with these are three hundred and twenty persons, great and small. Thirteen adults and ten children have been baptized during the year, and there are other inquirers waiting for baptism. The attendance at all the Sabbath and week-day services is always very good, and the people are growing in spiritual knowledge and in morality. There is a school for boys and one for girls, and special care is taken by the Pastor and his wife to have all the people well taught.

The work of the Pastor is not confined to this village alone, but his work in surrounding villages has led to the conversion of several persons.

The famine has been especially hard on the people of this village, but they have been aided and relieved to some extent by the subscriptions of friends.

BUDAON.

REV. T. S. JOHNSON, M.D., Missionary.

“If my report should treat of the peculiarities of the work here, it would probably be read with quite as much interest as if written in the regular manner. Of the almost innumerable number and grades of castes among Hindoos, most of our work, so far as converts are concerned, is among the lowest—the Mehtar caste. In some neighbourhoods the converts are confined so exclusively to this class, that respectable Hindoos have reported that there is a caste of this kind in the country from which the Missionaries come; that the Missionaries belong to it, and have come to their brethren in India. Many respectable Hindoos and Mohamedans who largely accept the teachings of the Bible object to becoming Christians on account of having to become associated with people whom they know only to despise. Truly the poor have the Gospel preached unto them, and are entering into the Gospel fold, while the multitudes of respectable people are perishing.

Another and most trying peculiarity in this work is the unwillingness of many of the people, after they have become Christians, to give up rites and practices which are more or less idolatrous. It is almost impossible to get them to give up their old marriage customs and ceremonies which are full of idolatry. It is no uncommon thing for Christian parents to marry their children in infancy into heathen families and with idolatrous ceremonies; and in the case of girls they are removed in the tender years of childhood into the heathen families into which their parents have married them. When the rules of the Church were enforced, in cutting off such offenders, then, in some cases, only the men and boys of the family came forward for baptism, leaving the girls to be married among heathen, and the women to make the arrangements. As soon as the girls were all married—this being done while these are mere babes—the mother came forward for baptism. This is now prevented—the temptation being understood—by refusing to baptize men without their families. The majority of the baptisms this year, of which there have been one hundred and twenty-two, have been women and children, especially girls. I have found it very difficult to induce some nominal Christian parents to allow their little girls, from one to six years of age, to be baptized, when their object in keeping them back was to give them in marriage to the heathen. True, the Christian community being small, often makes it difficult for parents to make satisfactory marriage arrangements for their children, and the difficulty is greatly increased from the great number of family line distinctions which subdivide the caste into ever so many divisions, and all marriages must be arranged within these lines, to observe which parents will pass by educated Christian families and marry their children into the most wretched idolatrous family in the neighbourhood. This marriage question, which generally settles itself in western countries, is one of the most difficult questions with which the Church in India has to contend.

Another stumbling stone is the caste requirement to make offerings to the dead. According to the current belief the spirit after leaving the body wanders about hungry and thirsty in desolate places. Hence food and drink are necessary, and parties who dare neglect giving this will suffer for it when their turn comes to be turned out of the body. Though this class may not give daily offerings to the spirits, nor so much to Brahmans as other classes do, they give a great feast to the brotherhood, in which certain idolatrous rites are observed, hoping to be credited in full for service due to departed members of the family. Often those who have become Christians attend these feasts, and in some half-disguised way or other give them when it falls to their lot. Sometimes in case of sickness in the family neighbours and relatives declare some one of the gods of the neighbourhood has been offended and must be appeased, when some weak Christian, perhaps, makes an offering, or vows that he will do so, in order to be released from the anger of the offended deity.

Our converts are not, however, confined to this, nor to any one class. I mention these as some of the peculiar difficulties attending the work here. Some one may say, 'I would have nothing to do with such people.' Then you would not organize a Church in India, because morally this class is just about as good as any other caste in the country; and while the pharisaical castes are standing aloof, these no-caste people are placing themselves under our instruction, and are, notwithstanding all these infirmities, learning the truth as it is in Jesus Christ. Many of them have been born again and are shining lights in this terrible moral darkness. One of them who for years had led a consistent Christian life died within the year, and he 'died well.' His sickness was protracted, and at times he appeared uneasy, but as he came down near death he testified clearly that he had no fear, his peace was made, and Christ was with him. All classes are beginning to judge more correctly of the power of Christian truth, and there are representatives from all of them coming into the Christian Church, and the day is coming—blessed be God, when these caste and other distinctions shall be broken down and all the people be given to Christ for a possession. "For this let every child of God pray."

[When this work first commenced nothing was thought of this marriage question: no one anticipated these difficulties, and the people naturally went on marrying their children and following generally their old social customs. When they were shown the evils of these idolatrous rites, they could not at once see why their social customs should be disturbed, and hence great opposition arose, and many who had professed Christ continued for a time to oppose a change in these respects. Hence these difficulties mentioned. There is, however, great growth every year in strength to renounce all that is not right, and soon these trying idolatrous customs which are interwoven through all the social life of this people will be relics of the past.]

MORADABAD.

REV. G. H. MCGREW, Missionary.

“THE year closes with a few unusually favorable signs. As these ‘signs’ appear almost every year and disappear again, they are not to be ‘sought after.’ But coming unsolicited as these have done, we venture to mention a few of them at the risk of being called on hereafter to give their further history.

Some time last year a Soldier, the Adjutant of the native regiment stationed here, a Sikh, in the prime of life, began to come to the services, and about six months since he began to hold private interviews with us. A number of his comrades now attend the Sunday afternoon services quite regularly and seem to be interested in what they hear, although none of them, except the man above-mentioned, are open inquirers. Recently the post of Assistant Master in the regimental school became vacant, and this Adjutant sent to us for a Christian to fill the place.

The famine has brought a large number of persons here who wished to be baptized on short notice. This has compelled us to be unusually cautious, and none but well-known enquirers have been baptized.

The most interesting part of our work has been among the shoe-makers. The young man of that caste who was baptized last winter has held his own bravely, and has successfully resisted the attempts to drive him away from his family and home. He has been of great service to our work. His father, mother and uncle’s family, as well as many others, are only waiting until the pressure of the famine is removed to be baptized. Among those whom I intend to baptize at once is Balak Dass, the man who resisted Brother Bailey’s work so pertinaciously at Sumbhal.

The Sunday-school has done its work very well. The attendance has been uniformly good. After the public discussion with the Mohamedans ended, the Moulvies made a systematic effort to keep boys of that class away from the Sunday-school. They succeeded in frightening the parents and boys for a time; but after a few weeks the greater number came back. The Berean Lesson leaves have given general, but not universal, satisfaction. . . The gaps left between the lessons are too wide, and heathen boys who have no home-teaching do not fill them up. The Christmas celebration was a great success. It had two favourable features. . . It was managed by the native brethren, and the money for it was subscribed by the English people in the station and by native gentlemen in the city.

The schools have been kept up as usual. The attendance has materially fallen away since the commencement of the hard times. In February a further reduction of Rs. 104 a month was made in the Government grant. At the same time information was given, that in future, the Government will regard the High School as a middle grade A School, and that it would be under the control of the Local Committee. This reduction in the Grant made necessary a further reduction in the pay of the teachers, or acquiescence in the suggestion of the Government, that the school should cease to be a High School. And not feeling at liberty to take the latter course without the consent of the Conference, the first line of conduct was followed. The teachers cheerfully acquiesced in the reduction of nearly twenty per cent. in their pay, already none too large and the school went on as usual, but without a second master. . . After the experience of the year, it is our deliberate opinion that unless more money can be secured for the coming year, the High School should be reduced to a Middle Class School, teaching English up to the Third Class. We make this recommendation with regret, for it seems to us that there should be in our Mission at least one High School. But it is not fair to boys, to the school, nor to the Mission, to bring our students, trained by such teachers as can be secured by the miserably small pay which we have been giving into public competition with boys trained in the well-appointed schools of the Government. Six boys were sent up for the Entrance Examination, four of whom passed.

In all the out-stations the work has been kept back by the famine. At Byrampur and in the adjacent villages under the care of Manphul Singh the pressure has been especially heavy. Several Christian families have been forced to leave their homes and to seek refuge elsewhere. A majority have gone under the direction of their Native Pastor, but a few have wandered away and are now out of our knowledge. This work, though thus hindered, has grown in depth and interest, and the number of baptisms has not varied greatly from that of last year.

At Chandausi, the Christian community has increased somewhat in number; chiefly by the moving in of men who are employed in different capacities on the Railway. There are a few well-instructed inquirers, and the school for Chumars is doing fairly well. This school is supported by private subscription. Early in September the house of the Native Pastor was set on fire by some unknown persons and burned to the ground. Efforts were made to discover the guilty parties but without success. Nor can any specific or sufficient reason be assigned for the crime. The house was promptly rebuilt through aid secured from the contingent fund.

At Chandpur, in the district under the charge of Andrias, after long and discouraging efforts, seven persons have recently been baptized. Of these, two are respectable Chumars who are engaged in cultivation. The remaining five are the wife and children of one of these. The wife of the second man has not yet been baptized. A large number of people in this vicinity are interested in Christianity, but the 'social pressure' keeps them from embracing it, though many at present seem very nearly ready.

A review of the whole year impresses us that in the line of direct evangelization, progress has been made; that the Native Church has grown in a knowledge of spiritual things, and that we have grounds for thankfulness. On the other hand, the outlook for the schools is any thing but hopeful.

SUMBHAL.

REV. ZAHUR-UL-HAQQ, Native Minister.

"WHEN I came to Sumbhal at the beginning of this year I commenced my work by preaching in the bazaar. Large crowds gathered at first to hear the new preacher, and especially many Mohamedans came. The leading men of this sect seeing this, and hearing that the new preacher was a convert from their religion, called a meeting, raised subscriptions, and hired two preachers of their own to give their whole time to opposing and refuting our preaching. They were to watch for our coming, and wherever we were arranging to preach they were to commence before us. And when we did preach they were to point aimed at in the teaching. These schools are really but one, being in the same building. The influence of this school on our work is very good indeed, as the boys or young men who learn here for a short time, from one to two years, go back to their villages, and there work again and exert an excellent influence over others. Nothing is aiding so much in elevating our people religiously as the well-established and well-instructed men and women who are being scattered throughout the field living in their old homes and supporting themselves by farming or weaving. It is a condition of entering this Amroha school, that after two years at most they will return to their villages again and live as before. The feeling that a man who can read his letters can no longer do manual labor is thus being dispelled, and a desire is increased for learning to read for the sake of reading and learning something. Those selected for the school are young men who have homes, and, as far as possible, those are selected whose betrothed wives are in the Girls' Boarding school at Moradabad. Thus intelligent Christian families are formed.

The people have commenced to give for the work of Christ—though few can give anything this year. It is with the greatest difficulty that cultivators, and especially weavers, can obtain food in these days. In every part of the circuit there are now men who are strong and decided Christians, and who, from the love of Christ, aid us in all the work. With their assistance many of the inconsistencies and difficulties in the Church are being overcome and removed, especially the customs of marriage, so far as unworthy of Christians, and all other old and injurious customs are being laid aside.

There are seven circuits in this appointment in which preachers or exhorters live and work. The work is all arranged in regular plans, so that each preacher has his villages marked out for each day in the week. Thus the people know when they may expect the preacher, and all the Christians are reached and the families all instructed. There are usually from fourteen to twenty villages in each circuit where Christians reside. The statistics show seven hundred and three Christians, great and small, in these villages."

BIJNOUR.

"During the past year we have been blessed with considerable success in our work. There has been a perceptible growth in spirituality among many of our Christians, which manifests itself in their lives being more exemplary than formerly. There have been twenty-three baptisms during the year; fifteen of whom were children, and eight adults. Two of the latter class give more than ordinary promise of being valuable additions to the Church. Faujdar Khan, a Mahomedan, was collecting agent for the owner of a village near Bijnour. He heard the Gospel preached in the bazaar and became desirous of knowing more about the Christian religion. Searching in the bazaar for a copy of the Gospel he was directed to our Colporteur. He purchased the book, and asked where he could find some one to explain it. He was sent to the native pastor, and became a regular visitor at his house. After a while he professed himself convinced of the truth of Christianity, and desired baptism. His wife who was at her father's house declined to follow him and he was deferred, in the hope that she would yield. In the meantime the villagers and his employer becoming aware of his intentions turned him out of his employment, and his house was robbed. Being thus turned out, we aided him in securing work. He seems humble and sincere, and is still firm in his belief and profession. One of his sons was baptized on the following Sabbath, and his wife having held aloof from him for several months, came a few weeks ago with the rest of their children. She has not yet received baptism, but expresses a willingness to do so.

Prabhu Dyal was a Hindu and a brother of Mrs. Josephine Merrill, whose interesting history was given in last year's report. Ever since the discovery of his long-lost sister he has been an earnest listener to all her instructions. He soon began to give up his idolatrous practices, and a few months ago he with all his family was baptized. He has a large circle of relatives, who are much moved over the step he has taken, and who, through him, have been brought under the influence of his sister Josephine. We hope this is only the beginning of a large harvest.

Early in the year the Sunday-school for Hindu and Mahomedan boys was united with the one for our Christians. No objections were raised; and the attendance of the heathen boys connected with the day-school has been very good, and an unusual interest in the Scripture lessons has been manifested by them all. During the last quarter especially, the lessons concerning the Missionary life of St. Paul have been made very entertaining to the boys by means of a large map illustrating the travels of the great Apostle. Our Sunday-schools, which are growing in interest and usefulness, are the most encouraging part of our work.

We have two Anglo-Vernacular schools, each of which has an average attendance of about fifty boys. No Government aid is received for these, and they are conducted on as cheap a scale as possible. They are under the control of competent and thoroughly Christian head-masters, each of whom endeavors to make his school as great an evangelizing agency as possible. Nearly all the boys in these schools regularly attend the Sunday-schools, and they receive instruction in the Bible in the day-schools. There are about twenty Christian boys in these schools, and we could gather in many more had we the means to support them.

About the first of July a Boarding school for the daughters of our native Christians was opened. The village Christians, while appreciating an education for the boys, do not consider it at all desirable for their girls. At first we had only four boarders, the daughters of our native preachers. We were seconded, however, in our endeavors to induce the parents to send their girls, by the pressure of want from the famine, and from time to time girls have been sent in until the number of boarders has reached seventeen. These are placed in the care of Peter Merrill and his excellent wife Josephine, who look after their food and clothing, and see that they are kept under proper discipline. There are six day-scholars; so the school numbers twenty-three. These are bright and interesting girls, and promise to add much to the efficiency of our work. Already they are a help in the singing and Sunday-school exercises."

[As a separate report is published of the work carried on by the ladies of the Mission, little mention is made of it in this report. The Missionaries' wives are actively engaged in work among women and girls; and there are in the district two single ladies from America, five ladies employed in this country, and more than fifty Christian Bible-women and teachers, besides many faithful workers among the wives of the native preachers. Medical zenana work is carried on in three cities. There are fifty-two girls' schools, with one thousand one hundred and fifteen pupils, and scores of homes are open to the Bible-women in the cities and villages. The work is in many respects encouraging. Yet discouraging in this that immediate fruit is seldom seen except where Bible-women work in families of inquirers, and thus the entire family is brought intelligently to Christ. Perhaps more might be gained were the Bible-women to give more especial attention to those places where labor is concentrated on account of the inquiring spirit of the people.]

PUDH DISTRICT.

REV. E. CUNNINGHAM, PRESIDING ELDER.

We close the year with deepest gratitude and most fervent praise to Almighty God, who in answer to prayer saved our Mission work and the people of this province from the horrors of famine, and has given us a year of more than average prosperity.

Almost every kind of Mission work known in India is carried on in this province. Our force is large in numbers and better in quality than ever before; and though we have had one defection, our Native Assistants have improved in intelligence, devotion, and spirituality. Almost all are paid; none are hirelings. Our District Conference was larger in numbers, shorter in time, and better in results than last year. I have increasing confidence in our Native Helpers. They are all preachers. Indeed, our whole force, except three American Missionaries who have been pressed with other duties, has been more or less engaged in bazar and village preaching. Still I must record, and that too in no fault-finding spirit, that we have not a single native preacher of any grade who can justly be termed an Evangelist. I fear we never shall have, except in spite of our present system. I cannot think the fault lies wholly with them. Methodism never has failed in any other country to raise up evangelists. It has hitherto in this province, but I fully expect yet to see them. The problem of just how to use foreign money and appliances, so as to stimulate pure evangelism among our Indian and Native Christians, is not yet solved. The problem of how to be thoroughly Christian, and "yet touched with the feelings of the infirmities," opinions, prejudices, doubts and fears of Hindus and Musalmans is still in solution. Happy the man who can say "Eureka."

The Churches are improving in spirituality; they recognize the pastoral office, and try to support their pastors. The amount they give is small, but we trust it will increase. I wish the outlook for a self-supporting Native Church were as hopeful to me as it is to another Missionary, whose remarks are quoted in this Report.

The Sunday-school scholars have decreased about 95.

The pupils in the day-schools has decreased notwithstanding the formation of two new Christian schools—one in Lucknow and the other in Cawnpore. There has been little or no improvement in the kind of education given in the non-Christian schools.

We have had more access to educated Natives than before, and with encouraging results. We have done more itinerating and bazar preaching, but the sales of books and tracts have been less.

There have been from among non-Christians 33 adults and 41 children baptized. There have also been several conversions of nominal Christians.

The work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has been successfully prosecuted in the principal stations of the district.

Grants-in-aid and local subscriptions, etc., have amounted to one-fourth the whole expenses of the Mission. Our best thanks are hereby tendered to Government and to all who have assisted us.

LUCKNOW.

REV. H. MANSELL,
REV. J. H. MESSMORE,
REV. T. CRAVEN,
REV. J. MUDGE,
REV. I. FIELDBRAVE,

Missionaries.

Native Pastor.

BAZAR PREACHING. H. Mansell, Missionary. Our whole preaching force has been organized, and the siege of Lucknow maintained at seven important points since January last. There has been much discussion, especially by Mahomedans who demanded that we perform miracles to demonstrate the truth of Christianity. Several small tracts have been written for their instruction, but the miracles have not been shown. A new work of much promise has been opened at Sa'adut Gunge, where a regular week-day service is now held among non-Christians of low caste. One young man who was baptized was much persecuted, but stood firm. This work is very hopeful.

SCHOOLS. Three new schools have increased the number of pupils by 200. The grade and expenses are about the same as last year. The Masters are mostly young men, but their blood seems to have grown thin. We hope for better things next year; but every year seems to bring some new requisition from Government, which makes it more difficult to teach our course to comply with Grant-in-aid Rules and secure good results in examination. The Bible is taught in all the schools.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS. All the non-Christian Sunday-schools are now included in the Native work, while all Christians unite in one Sunday-school connected with the English Church. The whole work is supported by collections made in the station. Besides a decrease of 150 in attendance, the work has suffered by the removal of some of our best teachers, who were members of the English congregation. Still it is prosperous and hopeful. The Sunday work crystallizes and supplements all the Bible instruction of the week.

THE CENTENNIAL SCHOOL, so called because the funds for its small endowment were collected in the centennial year of American Methodism, is a Day and Boarding School for Christian boys. Fees Rs. 5 per mensem are charged for board and tuition.

26 boys attended during the year. The standard will be raised to Entrance to Calcutta University.

WORK AMONG EDUCATED NATIVES. This has been carried on since January last by Baboo Ram Chandra Bose with good success. The Baboo resigned a salary about double what he now receives in order to preach Christ to his educated fellow-countrymen. For some months he delivered weekly lectures in English at the Mission Chapel on Saturday evenings. About 100 Native gentlemen attended: the lectures were well received, and have been published. Bible classes and house visitation accompanied this work. In this kind of work the Baboo has visited many of the principal stations in the North-West Provinces, and has everywhere been well received and attentively listened to. The experiment has grown to assured success.

NATIVE CHURCH. I. Fieldbrave, Native Pastor. The Church had been sometime without a pastor when he came. From some he received that cold greeting which, whether on the Equator or the Poles always comes from a backslider's heart. Good sense, a warm heart, faithful preaching and pastoral visitation thawed them out. They now pay Rs. 20 per mensem, with about as much grumbling as an average Home Church; they also pay current expenses and propose repairs and a new pulpit. The congregations are good, and the spiritual tone much better. Ten non-Christian adults have been baptized, but some of them are not standing firm. One local preacher has been suspended.

ENGLISH CHURCH. J. H. Messmore, Pastor. The New Church was dedicated in March. It cost, including lot and furnishing, Rs. 20,000. About Rs. 2,000 are not covered by good subscriptions. The Church was hardly dedicated when, by the amalgamation of Oudh with the North-West Provinces, many of the members and congregation were transferred to Allahabad and other stations. This was a severe blow to our infant Church. The congregations are much smaller; the full amount for the Pastor, Rs. 1,500, will be raised. It seems hardly possible that more than Rs. 1,200 can be paid next year. The spiritual tone of the Church is good, and the Sunday-school, of about 200, very interesting and successful. The Dasahra Services were largely attended and full of interest; many were converted and went out to different stations of India.

THE PRESS. T. Craven, Superintendent. With admirable economy the reduced appropriations of the Press have been so used that about the usual amount of work has been done. The small endowment is in a satisfactory condition, and the current expenses are met. If the sale of books be at all commensurate with the issue, much good must be done.

LUCKNOW WITNESS. J. Mudge, Editor. The Witness is now in the sixth year of its existence. Every year, except the present, has noted an increase of subscribers. The enforcement of new rules of payment has reduced the subscription list. The payments are, however, more promptly made. It is by far the best family and religious paper in North India; and the Editor receives many assurances of its popularity and usefulness among its readers. It is still far short of the ideal of its proprietors, and no efforts will be spared to realize that ideal.

The work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has been carried on with great energy and success during the year.

CAWNPORE.

REV. J. W. WAUGH, }
REV. S. KNOWLES, } Missionaries.

NATIVE WORK.

J. W. WAUGH, Missionary, writes:—"There has never been a prosperous Native Church in Cawnpore. The present Native Church is made up of some thirty members and probationers, who are in the employ of Government or business men, as clerks, agents and Mission employes with their families.

We have a good local preacher and an exhorter, a graduate of the Theological Seminary at Bareilly, who give all their time to bazaar preaching. Brother Knowles, though engaged in English work, has given valuable aid by his effective bazaar preaching, and has kindly taken charge of the Colportage work.

There are three boys' schools, with an average daily attendance of 140 pupils: these are conducted on an economical scale, and are specially valuable as the centers of three city Sunday-schools, nearly all the boys who attend the day-schools being present every Sabbath in these Sunday-schools. We have great hope in the teaching of the word in these Sunday-schools."

ENGLISH CHURCH.

S. KNOWLES, Pastor.

Since February a number of members have been transferred to other stations. Besides the regular services at the Chapel, a Wednesday evening service is held at the Cawnpore Girls' School. The Church pays its pastor Rs. 1,500, raises Rs. 800 for repairs, purchase of carriage, keeping of horse, etc.; defrays current expenses, and has raised Rs. 850 for the enlargement of the church. It has also assisted the local native work. The work of enlarging the church has been commenced.

The Pastor reports "a greater spirit of active evangelism among the members than last year." The Sunday-school is in a prosperous condition, numbering about 180. Many of the members are pupils of the Memorial and Cawnpore Girls' Schools. The whole work is prosperous and very hopeful. From this Church and Sunday-school there ought to go forth many preachers and teachers of the glorious Gospel. The pastor renders valuable assistance in the native work, as above noted.

THE MEMORIAL SCHOOL, J. W. WAUGH, Principal.

The success of both schools has fully justified the step by which the girls were made an independent school, now known as the Cawnpore Girls' School. The present has been by far the most successful year of the Memorial School. The finances have been most admirably managed; the health, education, discipline, moral and spiritual tone of the pupils have been very good. One lad only went up for examination for admission to Calcutta University, and he passed successfully in the second grade.

The religious tone of the school was much raised by the attendance of the pupils upon the Dasahra services at Lucknow.

Our staunch friend, H. Petman, Esq., has generously given Rs. 10,000 as an endowment, the proceeds of which are to furnish education and board to poor pupils. This will, we hope, make the nucleus of an endowment which shall increase to many thousands.

BARABANKI.

REV. J. T. JANVIER, Native Minister.

WE have a church of six persons—all Mission employés—in the “hired house” of the Native Minister, the rent of which is paid from funds collected in the station. He, with a local preacher and colporteur, is constantly and faithfully preaching the word—in bazaars, villages and melas. A number of villages on the line of the O. and R. Railway have been visited. There is no opposition, but sometimes an invitation to a friendly discussion. There is a growing conviction among non-Christians that the Christian religion will finally prevail; this does not amount to conviction of sin, belief on Christ and desire to confess him. Christianity is not merely a new belief, but a new caste. The people fear proscription, and sometimes say, “You read and preach to us and want to put water on our heads, and then we shall be left to starve.” The Native Minister writes: “One Brahmin has been baptized and has gone back to his home to live. Another inquirer, a faqir, but not a beggar, is doing much good work in the villages. He always carries some books which he gives to those who will carefully read them. He is constantly speaking of Christ and his miracles and saying, ‘What a good guru he is.’ Through this man’s efforts Christ’s name is widely spread abroad in the villages. The day and Sunday-school work is moderately prosperous.”

The Native Minister’s wife visits the zenanas as much as home duties will permit, and a girls’ school, under the patronage of the W. F. M. S., is maintained. Our best thanks are hereby tendered to the residents of the station, who have aided our work by their contributions.

ROY BAREILLY.

REV. J. T. McMAHON, Missionary.

THE Missionary and his native helpers are widely and favorably known in the district. Their teaching, however, meets with the most determined opposition from Musalmans. Last year the agent in charge of the bazaar forbid the shop-keepers allowing him to stand and preach in front of their shops. He was thus obliged to go outside the bazaar and preach. At the beginning of this year this Musalman agent gave him a shop at which to sell books and permission to preach all he desired. He also came to the Missionary's house, and bought a Testament—and all without one word from the Missionary. He attributes the change to the power of the Holy Ghost, convincing the man of his error. The Mohammedans themselves have renewed preaching—if simple abuse of us can be called preaching. We do not retaliate, and the people are beginning to see the difference. A few weeks ago a young man said to Mr. McMahon, "If you will abuse the Mahommedans I will listen to you."

SCHOOLS. "All except one are small village schools, and, together, contain 273 boys. No grant-in-aid is received. I have closed three village schools on account of the opposition of parents, (who feared I was hastening religious instruction too much), and the indolence of teachers. When the people see their children growing up in ignorance they will probably be ready to have the schools re-opened."

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS. "The boys are now pretty well grounded in the truth, and are not ashamed to sing at our Sunday-school melas in the presence of their heathen friends. Five Hindu and Mohammedan boys, in my presence, without aid, wrote brief accounts of the Jews from Abraham to Elisha. English gentlemen who listened to them said, 'They did the writers great credit.'"

SELF-SUPPORT. "The Hindus are good givers. It is admitted that one-fifth of the people of India live on religion. Four-fifths of the people feed this one-fifth out of religious regard. There is no reason why the Indian Church should not be self-supporting at once. Any Christian who will start out as a "holy man," or a faqir Christian, will be as sure of being fed by pious Hindus as were the disciples of Jesus by the people. Hindus give to Mahommedan preachers and priests, and Mahommedans give to Hindu priests. I have known Christians to give to Hindu and Mahommedan priests. Since giving is regarded in India as a religious act, and Christians are supported either by the state or from Home, the poor Christian is compelled, as he thinks, to give to these men who live on charity. But in most cases converts seeing that their preachers are much better paid than themselves, lose the knowledge of giving which they had as heathen, and after ten or fifteen years we begin again to teach them how to give. Every Hindustani preacher ought to be left to get his support from the people to whom he preaches. His family might receive house rent, and, in extreme cases, aid. His children should always be aided in getting a good education. I have myself often been fed, and in a few cases money has been given me. If I had learned in my youth to sit on the floor and had a stomach suited to a Hindu's food, I could for six months of the year live among these people, who are never so happy as when entertaining a priest or religious teacher. These people look with equal disfavor on a man who is paid to preach. It seems to me that God has prepared these people to be a self-supporting Church, and in doing as we do, we are kicking against the pricks."

The sales of books and tracts have, owing to the extreme pressure of threatened famine and small attendance upon melas, been less than usual.

The work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has been most efficiently managed by Mrs. McMahon.

GONDA AND BAHRAICH.

REV. B. H. BADLEY, Missionary.

THE Missionary writes:—

"Our work has gone steadily forward during the year. The early months were given to itinerating, and two lengthy tours were made, one extending to the Nepaul border and through many villages where the Gospel had never been preached. We had arranged to visit the great mela at Tulsipore, and, along with the native helpers, arrived at the spot the day before it was open, only to hear a proclamation closing the fair on account of the cholera. This sickness raged in both districts quite extensively and interfered with our work: the attendance upon the schools was perceptibly less, and itinerating in certain directions impossible.

During the latter part of the year the melas at Ajudhiya, Manurama, and one or two others, were visited by the native helpers.

Five adults (all Hindoos) have been baptized: these are cultivators living at Ellenpur. The case of one, a girl of seventeen, was very interesting, and was noticed at length in the Lucknow Witness.

Several children have been sent to the Orphanages.

The school work has continued about the same. Two zemindars near Gonda render valuable assistance to the schools in their villages. All the schools are vernacular: that at Gonda is the largest, enrolling 140 boys. The girls' schools at Bahraich and Colonelgunge have done well.

Our heathen Sunday-schools continue to flourish. The International Lessons have given us excellent subjects for sermons and talks to the children during the year. The vernacular children's papers published at our Press are a great help, as are the cards and picture books. As an experiment we have opened a Sunday-school in a village near Gonda, the government school teacher collecting his boys for us on Sabbath. Of course we do not enter the school-house. In dry weather a large tamarind tree, and in wet weather the zemindar's house furnishes accommodation. The boys are learning, and the people are pleased.

The two Colporteurs (N. I. B. S.) have labored efficiently during the year: native helpers have also done well in selling books and tracts, and great good has been done in this way.

At Ellenpur we are building a small church as a famine relief work. This has kept from suffering several Christian families whose fields were dried up by the fierce heat of July and August. Rs. 100 or more have been collected for this church: nothing will be asked from the Society. When finished it will accommodate our growing congregation of Christians and Hindoos."

The work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is steadily carried on by Mrs. Badley.

SITAPUR.

REV. J. E. SCOTT, Missionary.

"THE Church consists of 26 adults and 18 children: of these 15 are members and 11 probationers. There are in addition to these 26 other Native Christians in Sitapur belonging to the Roman and Church of England communions who sometimes attend our services. Three adult Mohammedans, four Hindus and two Christian children have been baptized during the year, all of whom are standing firm.

The people are all poor, some of them servants of the Missionary, others without regular employment; the heartiness with which they engage in devotional exercises, the spirit of humble enquiry in the Bible readings and the walk and conversation of nearly all convince the Missionary in charge that Christ is saying to them as he said of old: 'Fear not little flock for it is your father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.' A neglected Eurasian family without religious training or spiritual oversight being visited, exhorted and prayed with, desired to join our Church as probationers, and were received.

SCHOOLS. There is a Middle grade school at Khyrabad, having on the rolls 105, with an average attendance of 85; there are also three branch schools in villages near Sitapur. The whole number of boys attending these schools is 189.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS. These are held in connection with all these schools, and Bible teaching is quietly, gladly and profitably received. A Christian Sunday-school is also held in the Chapel. Vernacular Sunday-school papers, reward tickets, etc., contribute much to the interest of the schools. On the first Sabbath in each month a Union S. S. meeting is held in the Chapel, attended by the boys from the villages and their teachers and the Christian Sunday-school. The boys recite verses of Scripture, the catechism and the Lord's prayer, and sing bhajans. These are always occasions of much interest.

ITINERATING AND BAZAR PREACHING. During the last two years nearly the whole field has been explored; only three points are occupied, namely, Sitapur, Khyrabad and Misrikh. A man is very much needed for Lakhimpore, an important center, thirty miles from Sitapur. It is believed that the one and-a-half millions of people can be more effectually reached by regular preaching tours from these centers than by a zealous effort to spread over the whole district. At these points regular bazar preaching is kept up throughout the year. One convert says he received his first impression from the preaching of Simon Jacob."

The sales of books and tracts have been less than formerly.

The native helpers' wives have done regular work in the Zenanas.

REV. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

This circuit has well-to-do Christians, landholders living at four principal points in it. These all ought to be centers of light and Christian influence. Two of them are; but I fear the bad lives of some of our members do more harm than the preaching of the others can do good. This circuit received in January last two young men from our Theological Seminary. One of them was stationed at Shahabad, a large Mohammedan town of bad repute, and the other at Madho Gunge, a former retreat of Nerpat Singh, one of those Robin Hoods who used to defy the Nawabs of Oudh.

The people about here are very ignorant and ill-mannered; at first they gave our preacher a great deal of trouble, and still do occasionally. A Christian zemindar and exhorter of our Church lives near by and helps our cause very much.

Some people at Shahabad persecuted our preacher for a long time. They even went so far as to tear up a Bible. He bore all patiently, and is going on quietly with his work among low caste people. He has a small school and a number of people who come to him for regular religious instruction. Shekhpore is a village owned by another Christian zemindar and exhorter, who is a well educated man and a good preacher. He labors among the people as his other duties allow.

The schools have been maintained at the same low cost and with more efficiency than formerly. Sunday-schools are kept up in connection with them. There have been 11 non-Christians baptized during the year: all of these are from among the poor and some from low castes.

The Native minister's wife directs the girls' schools and the other work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

The property has been slightly improved during the year. Our best thanks are due to the residents of the station who have helped us.

Each year's survey of this field brings to light some new difficulty in the work arising from our own ignorance and weakness, or the covert compacted and disciplined force of the hoary systems we are antagonizing. We must, however, record that in our hearts the conviction of the ultimate and complete triumph of Him, "who must reign until he hath put all things under his feet," is deepening. With serene confidence we lift up our eyes toward the light of that day.

FOURTEENTH SESSION

OF THE

NORTH INDIA CONFERENCE,

FORMERLY THE INDIA CONFERENCE

OF THE

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

HELD AT

Bareilly, January 9-15, 1878.

LUCKNOW :

PRINTED AT THE AMERICAN METHODIST MISSION PRESS.

1878.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of solutions of the system of equations where f, g, h are continuous functions of x, y, z and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution for any initial conditions.

$$\frac{dx}{dt} = f(x, y, z), \quad \frac{dy}{dt} = g(x, y, z), \quad \frac{dz}{dt} = h(x, y, z),$$

2. In the second part of the paper the problem of the stability of the solutions of the system is considered. It is shown that if the functions f, g, h satisfy certain conditions, then the solutions of the system are stable.

3. In the third part of the paper the problem of the periodicity of the solutions of the system is considered. It is shown that if the functions f, g, h satisfy certain conditions, then the solutions of the system are periodic.

The opening religious services were conducted by J. W. Waugh : the hymn commencing was sung, the 52nd chapter of Isaiah was read, after which prayer was offered, in Hindustani, by John Thomas, and in English by J. W. Waugh.

The roll was called by the Secretary of the last Conference, and twenty-nine members responded.

In the absence of a Bishop, J. H. Messmore was elected President. B. H. Badley was re-elected Secretary ; J. Mudge, Assistant, and G. H. McGrew, Recording Secretary.

II. REPORT OF PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

THE Manager of the Press has made so exhaustive a Report (which appears on another page) of the work of the Press, that it leaves but little that needs be said by the Publishing Committee.

The Committee, however, have done an unusual amount of work this year in the examination of Manuscripts, and have kept the Press busy all the time.

The number of MSS. that have been passed by the Committee will be seen by reference to the aforesaid report as they are marked as the first edition.

There are also a large number yet in the hands of the Committee, not having been examined by all the members. None have been rejected, yet some may be long in appearing, and some may never see the light.

The literary character of the MSS. is a great improvement on those of former years. We would urge upon all to try and do something for the Press. Even if the work be rejected, still it is a benefit to the writer, giving greater accuracy in the use of the language.

The members of Conference might do much more in circulating our books; especially in urging all our native Christians, exhorters and preachers to possess and read all our publications.

The accounts of the Press have been audited and found correct according to the financial exhibit made by the Superintendent of the Press.

Committee, { H. MANSELL,
J. W. WAUGH,
J. H. MESSMORE.

III. MISSION PRESS REPORT.

THE work of the Press the past year has been greater than usual and the results in the number of books and pages printed appear unusually large. This, during a year of scarcity, hard times and curtailment, is a cause of thankfulness. It, however, needs some explanation. The means that have contributed to this result are several. In one or two cases the authors of Manuscripts have collected from their personal friends funds to defray the cost of printing, notably the Rev. T. J. Scott. In the beginning of the year there was a large stock of paper on hand and a number of good bills to collect, which have been realized. Other substantial aid was received from our Sunday-School Union, New York, and the Religious Tract Society, London, all of which is gratefully acknowledged. The proceeds from job-work and the profits of the sale of English religious books have also slightly contributed to the results shown in the statement.

Of the Manuscripts which have reached the Superintendent of the Press from the Publishing Committee, all have been issued or put into the printer's hands and are in some stage of progress.

The variety of the books published is larger than usual, which is a pleasant feature of the year's work.

There appears hardly any department of literature which has been left unnoticed.

Exegetical literature has received valuable additions. A Commentary on Genesis, by the Rev. D. W. Thomas, Principal of our Theological School, was issued in the early part of the year. Its sale has been most encouraging both to the author and to the publisher. While its price in no wise meets its cost, it is high for our Native Christians, and the call for it at such a high price is one of the encouragements of the year. A volume of Lectures on True and False Miracles from the same pen may also be mentioned under this head. This book is also ready. The Commentary on Matthew and Mark, by the Rev. T. J. Scott, is being printed in Litho-Urdu. The work will consist of about 500 pages, quarto demy. Only a beginning of it has as yet been made. Its completion need not be looked for earlier than the beginning of August or September. There is still another important addition to this class of literature deserving of notice. The works of Josephus, which have been promised for some time, have reached the Press, at least four of the books. Two have been issued and the third and fourth are approaching completion. The translator, the Rev. H. Mansell, is putting the fifth and sixth in order for the Press. It is hoped that during the year the entire work will be ready. There is a demand for this book which, perhaps, is little realized by some. Only the other day an order was received for 150 copies from one Book Society; its value in exegesis everywhere recognized makes its appearance in the vernacular extremely desirable. Non-partisan testimony is called for and is in this book supplied.

Biography has not been much encouraged during the past years. The first and the last issued from our Press was the Life of John Wesley. The Life of John Hunt, abridged and translated by the Rev. B. H. Badley, has been issued the past year. It is to be hoped that this class of literature will soon receive other additions. The lives of Carvosso and Whitfield, of Bishops Asbury, Hedding, and Hamline, abridged would be very acceptable, and seem most desirable at this stage of our Mission work. The hundred young men or more that are preaching need to be encouraged and aroused by the inspiration of the lives of such holy men.

Polemics have this year had but little attention in the Press. The Rev. H. Mansell has thrown off two or three small tracts, which have done much good, and no harm of which we have heard. The Hall-ul-Ashkall with several other of our polemical books are out of print.

Sunday-School literature has been greatly increased. The books which received first and second prizes at the Sunday-School anniversary of our last Conference, and which were written by the Rev. J. Thomas and Rev. I. Fieldbrave, have been printed. Two others, prepared with the greatest care by Babu Yunus Singh, have also been issued. The Superintendent trusts that these will be put into the hands of the youth as extensively as possible. They are all first-class books. A second edition of the Mirat-ul-Atfal, written some years ago by our afflicted brother, Rev. J. D. Brown, has also been issued.

Picture Books.—Illustrated Picture books are after all the most called for. Two new ones, with colored pictures printed in Hindee, have been issued during the year. If translators or authors would in the beginning of a work intended for popular use send for specimens of the plates we have and introduce and adapt an illustration to the work, it would, in the event of its being passed by the Publishing Committee, be made more acceptable and saleable.

Hymn-books meet with a large sale and a popular demand. During the last year a Sunday-school edition of the Hymn-book was printed. The responsibility of its compilation rests upon the Rev. H. Mansell and the Superintendent of the Press. For many of the translations from Sankey's "Songs and Solos" our Mission is indebted to the Rev. C. G. Deuble of the Church Mission; for others to the Rev. I. Fieldbrave of this Conference. This hymn-book was printed in the Hindee, Lithograph-Urdu, and Roman-Urdu characters with the view of meeting the different elements we find in every Sunday-school. The edition of 5,000 was thought by some to be too large; but should the sale during the present year equal that since its publication, last July, a second edition will be needed before our next Conference shall meet. Its convenient size and cheapness has given it a wide circulation on mission ground other than our own.

Pictures, Cards, and Texts have had their due attention. Large funds are needed in order to keep up a constant supply of a great variety of the low-priced pictures. These pictures cannot be had without the English letter print unless an order for at least 5,000 be forwarded. About two years ago 5,000 of each of 50 kinds of pictures, or 250,000 pictures, were purchased; 20,000 only still remain on hand. These, with letter print in Lithograph-Urdu, Roman-Urdu, and Hindi, are ready for purchasers. For the letter print on the back the Superintendent is responsible. It is expected that late experiments and estimates which have been made will result in these picture cards being sent out in a much neater and more useful form, as well as at a cheaper rate.

Periodicals.—The circulation of the Family and Sunday-School Periodicals have remained about the same as last year. A perceptible and steady increase however is noticed in the Hindi Sunday-school paper, the “Children’s Friend” and the English Sunday-school Lessons. The changes that have taken place with regard to the Kaukab i Hind, the Publishing Committee no doubt will notice. The vernacular Sunday-school papers, the Children’s Friend in Lithograph-Urdu and Hindi, are prepared in the Press. The Lessons are also there translated.

English Literature.—In the appended statement of the books published during the year,* it will be noticed that there are more than the usual number in English. In reference to these, it may be stated that the proceeds of English books generally cover the cost of publication. There is but one exception to this in the statement. This is the volume of lectures published at the request of the Publishing Committee, and prepared by Babu Ram Chunder Basu. The work thus encouraged is a natural sequence to the public work conducted by the Babu. As the English reading (non-christian) community increases, the printing in English of suitable religious tracts and books must grow. The active Indian mind is formulating its changing convictions and opinions in English sentences. It is needless to point out the extent to which English is used. It is sufficient to say that the Religious Publishing Societies of Madras and Calcutta have for many years published largely in the English language. It may be here stated also that the Lucknow Witness reaches to some extent the non-christian educated community. It has some subscribers of this class.

FINANCES : CURRENT CHARGES.—As has been already stated, the condition of the Press, at the beginning of the year, in its stock of paper and the amount of its bills, was what may be called easy. The reduction of the Press appropriations last year for the Translator and Assistant Manager led to the resignation of those persons, and the appointment of others on more moderate salaries. Throughout the year the greatest care and economy has been persistently exercised. The Press has a credit balance of Rs. 230, without claim against it for materials or paper.

It however needs much to place it on a sounder basis. At present it is subject to the financial condition of the times. The quality and number of the establishment must be governed by its income. It cannot improve unless the finances are steady. The printing of books and tracts should improve in their attraction and style, although they be sold at nominal rates. The work before the Christian Press is great. Theological classes need their text books, Sunday-schools their attractive papers, books, and picture cards; to meet the tide of illustrated literature running forth from a hundred or more heathen Presses teaching lust, dissipation, and idolatrous superstitions, we need the most striking illustrated productions sent out in the most attractive styles. Professional labor is needed. Were there a person at the head of our Press who was acquainted with the latest discoveries in printing this great want could soon be met. To provide such a person means are necessary. It is hoped, however; that some means will be devised by which this desirable result may obtained. Through the liberality of Major Gowan, there is a nucleus of an endowment of Rs. 3,000. It is hoped that it may be soon increased to Rs. 50,000.

The current finances of the Press are on the whole fair. The stock of paper on hand is less in value by Rs. 1,000 than it was last year. Bills to be received are few, and bills to be paid still less. The stock of books is greater, additions to the plant, as types, have been made. More plant, such as types and a stereotyping apparatus, is needed.

Press Building.—The finances relating to this are given in the statements appended. During the year donations have been received from H. Petman, Esquire, General Sir H. Ramsay, Rev. C. W. Judd, General Story, E. Morrison, Esquire, and others. The present amount of indebtedness is Rs. 3,000; Rs. 2,000 on this account was estimated for through the Presiding Elder. If the Missionary Society will thus far assist in keeping hold of a building worth Rs. 12,000, no more will be asked of it, and the entire debt will soon be met.

IV. ON TEMPERANCE.

WE believe the Methodist Episcopal Church to be in itself the most efficient possible Temperance Society, and we rejoice to see that the principles which it has long and faithfully maintained on this subject, are gaining ground among all classes in this country. The attitude of this Conference toward total abstinence is so well known, that it need not now be re-stated. But in view of our extending influence among the people of India, we feel an increased responsibility to impress them with right views on this most practical subject.

Therefore, we recommend that at least once during the Conference year every preacher in charge shall preach to his congregation, whether English or Hindustani, upon this subject, enforcing the practice of total abstinence.

We observe with uneasiness that some intelligent natives believe that wine-drinking is an incident connected with the acceptance of Christianity, if not a duty enjoined by it; and that with some show of plausibility they imagine that the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is a public, and frequently repeated, symbol of this duty.

Therefore, we recommend that whenever this Sacrament is administered in the presence of Hindus or Musalmans, its significance shall be briefly, but carefully explained, so as to remove the impression above-mentioned.

We further recommend that a sermon shall be preached annually to Hindustani congregations, aimed especially against false notions of this kind.

We see with deep solicitude the practice of dram-drinking extending among both Hindus and Mahommedans. We pledge ourselves to use every means in our power to bring about its discontinuance.

Therefore we call attention to the resolutions passed by this Conference twelve years ago, (and printed in the Conference Manual,) recommending the formation of Temperance Societies in every station. We re-affirm this recommendation and advise that, so far as practicable, Societies shall be organized among Hindus and Musalmans, as well as others, aiming to keep them from falling into the practice of using liquors in any form, and to reform those who have already commenced to use it.

Signed for the Committee,

Geo. H. McGREW.

VI. ON SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

THE Committee on Sunday-Schools, in presenting their report, regret very much to have to notice a decrease of 400 scholars during the past year. This decrease is accounted for by the greater decrease of 800 boys in the day-schools. It is a pleasure, on the other hand, to notice that there is every reason to believe that the average attendance is better and the instruction is more thorough than in any year previous.

The Committee, in taking cognizance of the work in some parts of our field, would respectfully draw the attention of the members of this Conference to the possibility there is of forming Sunday-schools indirectly connected with day-schools other than Mission. This has been attempted in one part of the Gonda District with sufficient success to encourage like endeavors in other parts of our Mission.

The Committee is of opinion that our great need is instructive and attractive teachers. Without them advance is impossible, and further retreat is probable. It is earnestly recommended that a normal class of helpers, together with others who may be interested in this work, be formed in each station; that the class meet statedly each week, though this may necessarily imply a suspension of a day's regular work in the bazaar or day-school of those who are thus employed.

The Committee would further recognize the fact, that while large schools seem desirable and have in them a self-interesting force, our discipline exhorts us not to neglect the collecting of a dozen children for Christian instruction, and its importance is enforced by the Guru and the Moulvie, who sit the day through in the circle of no greater number, teaching the superstitious and errors of their respective beliefs. It is recommended, therefore, that where large schools may be impracticable, our helpers and Sunday-school friends be encouraged the more to collect on the Sabbath any number, however small it may be.

Your Committee is pleased to call attention to that part of the Press report which relates to the providing of Sunday-school cards, pictures and literature, and takes the occasion to impress upon authors the great necessity there is of adapting what books they translate to the customs and genius of the people. Many things, delicious as they may be to the European taste, are not necessarily the same to the Hindu; and no more does a Sunday-school book, affecting and interesting to the English reader, imply that it will be, translated, received in the same spirit by the Hindustani because of its change of outward appearance.

VII. ON THE STATE OF THE CHURCH AND MISSION WORK.

I. THE CHURCH.—It is easy to make a formal report of progress from a few unimportant indications, but your Committee are glad to report, from a careful scrutiny of the Church in the bounds of this Conference, substantial and most encouraging growth. In the secular education of our people, in their improved temporal condition, in their better appreciation of the spirit of the Gospel, in their better appreciation of, and more hearty sympathy with the work and mission, of the Christian Church among these people, we find evidence of genuine growth.

In looking over the elements that have been gathered into an organized Church, we realize how great is the difficulty of assimilating all into the structure of the living Church of Jesus. The transition from the moral deformity and darkness of paganism and Islam is much greater, perhaps, than Missionaries generally appreciate. Correspondingly it is difficult for them to understand the significance of progress made by converts. It may be a question, if in some parts of our work we are not receiving converts as fast as we can assimilate them. The conviction of your Committee is that in all that constitutes a vital Church, our people are most hopefully advancing. Some of the District Conferences, in membership, in the scope and minutiae and nature of the work done in them have outgrown this Conference. The time may not be very far in the future when these will be the annual Conferences of our Church in North India.

While having no special case to urge, your Committee submit for careful thought whether it may not be possible that a too rigid adherence to things non-essential in merely social life and forms of worship and church order, we do not obstruct a spontaneous and indigenous strength and elasticity that might be conserved among those whom we are gathering into the Church. While holding on to all that is vital and best in our form of Church organization and in our traditional modes of work and worship, may we not well study this question as wise master-builders?

Your Committee would call attention to a point of inter-church discipline. Many of our people are very poor. Sometimes pressure of want, and force of former habit, leads some of these into vagrancy. By no fault of the Missionary they leave their stations without Church certificates, and Missionaries where they enter are perplexed in dealing with them. We should insist on our people taking certificates with them when they remove, and make them feel that without this mark of their being orderly members they cannot expect recognition among us.

We are sorry to notice a decrease of 400 scholars in the Sunday-schools for the year. It is suggested that this is only in appearance, being the result of more accurate statistics. The total of baptisms for the year is 671, being an increase of 296 over last year. Contributions from the native Church are increasing, and significant efforts toward self-support are made. Four helpers are entirely supported by the native Church, and two in part.

II. MISSION WORK.—It was made the duty of this Committee to report on "Mission work," and this would indicate a review of modes of work, and the efficiency and spirit with which it is carried on. It is a question of supreme importance

4. The question of the amount and most profitable form of our educational work must be re-studied.

5. The drilling and inspiring of co-workers raised up in this land is a matter of first importance, and requires loving fellowship with them.

6. The vernaculars of the country should be studied carefully and persistently by Missionaries, old and young.

7. We should seek more diligently to get nearer the non-Christian population by cultivating their acquaintance and respecting their social life. Time is required in this.

8. We should strenuously guard being absorbed in secular care and in the routine of mere supervision. "To the word of God and prayer" was the watchword of inspired Missionaries who chose men for the "tables."

9. Let us keep in view the masses that throng the cities and villages and frequently remind ourselves of the injunction "preach the word."

That the Superintendent of the Mission Press be requested to receive, and in connection with the Editor of the Kaukab-i-Hind, prepare such sermons for publication.

Each sermon not to exceed 6 pages of said volume.

All sermons to be sent in to the Superintendent of the Mission Press by the first day of July of the current year.

IX. EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE.

I. MEMORIAL SCHOOL, CAWNPORE.

THE Committee on Education beg leave to report that they have visited and inspected as many of the schools under Conference supervision as was practicable. In the following report an attempt at presenting facts is made: arguments and deductions are left to be supplied by those who will read the facts.

The Committee first visited the Memorial School at Cawnpore, under supervision of Rev. Dr. Waugh. Ninety-four boys have been enrolled as boarders during the year, of whom sixty came for the first time this year. However, eighty is the highest number found in the school at any one time. Beside these, there have been thirty day-scholars in attendance. Of the boarders, twenty-six are properly young men, over fifteen years of age. Last year the Institution had about fifty-four boys as boarders, but then the boys' and girls' schools were under one administration, making a very heavy and difficult responsibility for Mr. and Mrs. Jackson who had the supervision of these schools. The separation of the two schools has been attended with manifest advantage to both of them. This school teaches up to the Calcutta University Entrance Examination; and one student, Master A. Bates, has just successfully passed that examination. All students are taught a knowledge of at least one of the vernacular languages of the country—generally Hindustani. The Committee were satisfied from the examinations which they made that the instruction given is solid and useful, and is given in a conscientious and painstaking manner. Careful attention is evidently paid to the morals and manners of the lads and young gentlemen who are under instruction.

The Committee were pleased to find this school in the new dormitory, a fine airy and spacious building. Near at hand is the new dining hall, 26 feet by 48 feet, erected during the year, in which the students were visited while at dinner. The fare was plain, substantial and palatable, and all the students appeared to be as healthful and contented as those of any like home Institution.

Students come from every part of India, as Hyderabad, Deccan, Poona, Bombay, Nagpore, Oomrawati, Bhusawal, Jheelum, Rajpootana, Mooltan, Adamwahan, Calcutta, Dinapore, and even from the Himalaya mountains, and it is growing in favor with the public. The Institution is properly a Missionary Institution, and sends its influence to all parts of India.

These students represent several important sections of Indian society, and are certain to exercise a great influence on it. The most of them will remain in India for life, and the good they receive will remain here with them. They have looked in vain for help in other directions, and now turn willingly and gratefully to this Mission Institution to help them prepare for the business and responsibilities of life. Here are golden opportunities for doing work for the Master. These young persons, trained as they are, will, doubtless, carry with them a love for Missions and the Church, and many of them will learn to love Christ, and will carry that love with them. By this means one of the bitter streams of India will be sweetened and become a perennial fountain of pure instruction and holy influences for needy multitudes.

In conclusion, it may be sufficient to say that the school is doing well financially as a Missionary Institution. That is, it bids fair to be so well sustained that nothing will be needed from the Conference but the support of the Missionary in charge. In a word, the management is excellent, the results admirable, and the outlook hopeful.

II. CAWNPORE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The Cawnpore Girls' School, under superintendence of Miss Thoburn, was next visited and inspected. The school is now kept in a bungalow quite out of the city upon the outer edge of the Civil station near the Ganges river. The place is a quiet and retired one, and admirably suits the purposes of the school. These advantages more than compensate for the two disadvantageous features of the location : its distance from the market and the nearness of the Ganges river.

There are now 39 girls in the school and 11 day-scholars. Last year there were between twenty and thirty in all. Of the number now in attendance, 18 are not less than fifteen years of age. The school gives, in addition to a plain English education, instruction in History, Hindi, Latin and Geometry.

The examinations showed that the work of educating and training has been carefully done, and all the arrangements of the school are quite satisfactory. The pupils appear to be healthful and happy, while a cheerful and home-like influence pervades the institution.

The school has paid its current expenses : it is free of debt on that score.

Prosperity has attended the school so far, and its prosperity is increasing. It well deserves our confidence, sympathy and care.

III. THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

In this Institution the Committee found in the three classes as follows :—In the third year's class, or graduating class, four members; in the second year's class, seven members; and in the first year's class, nine members.

Beside these, there is a preparatory class of eleven members, all of whom will enter probably the first year's class, for the year 1878; and others coming from different stations will join this class at the opening of the school in February.

The following studies are pursued by the several classes—

Classes in Greek and Hebrew are formed for students who may be thought competent to take these languages.

Attention given to vocal music—largely the study of native airs.

Concerning the Theological Seminary, the Committee would re-affirm for this year all that was written in their report last year, as to its usefulness and success, except that there is, as might be hoped, an increase of its usefulness and success. Much hard work has evidently been done, and to good purpose. Of the four students who graduated two made a very creditable showing, and two did simply fairly well; one of these two goes to the Himalaya Mountain field of labor, and the other goes back to the Mission whence he came.

A more promising class of students as to preliminary preparation is now entering the school than those classes could be who have heretofore entered it.

The Quarterly Conferences of different stations cannot use too great care in sending up candidates for admission into this Seminary; both character and qualifications should be carefully scrutinized, and no young man of weak character, and no one wanting in qualifications, should be encouraged to hope for admission. The Committee are pleased to notice that the Rohilkund District Conference have asked this Annual Conference to raise the standard for admission into the Theological Seminary. The Committee hope the request will be granted. All the interests of this Institution should receive the constant and unwearied attention of this Conference, for its influence on our Mission work promises to be both powerful and permanent.

GIRLS' ORPHANAGE.

This is an older institution than any one before mentioned in the report, and is generally well known among us, hence but few points require particular mention.

There were 172 girls in the Institution at the close of the year 1877. Last year there were 154. During this year 43 have been admitted, 15 have gone out, and 4 have died. 19 of the girls are not less than 20 years of age: 24 are between 15 and 20 years of age. So far as the Committee were able to make inspection, the education and management of the school were found to be quite satisfactory, and receive their approval. The Committee would suggest the propriety of inviting the representatives of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, to appoint a Committee which shall act with the Educational Committee of this Conference in visiting and inspecting the Schools and Orphanages under the management of that Society.

BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

In presenting this part of the report, a few facts as to the past and present history of the Orphanage will be given.

There is a record among the Orphanage books which was made in 1872, and which brings the history of the Orphanage forward from its beginning. From this record it appears that up to the month of December 1877, 392 boys have been admitted into the Orphanage. Of these, 105 have been regularly sent out to do for themselves: 102 of them appear to be leading a regular and industrious life: 57 have died while in the Orphanage, 62 have been expelled, or have run away. Of this number, 40 are, it is believed, leading an unsatisfactory life, and 22 appear to have done very well, notwithstanding that they ran away. The Orphanage has a school and a workshop in connection with it, both of which are important interests, and both need immediate attention, in order to secure improved management and a wiser use of the means at our disposal.

The school has on the whole done well during the year. The Inspector, Mr. Grant, has just visited and inspected it, and has given it his approval and expressed himself highly pleased with what he saw. He recommended the Government grant to be continued for the coming year.

The Committee would call the attention of the Conference to the English Department of this School, and would suggest the propriety of so changing the plan of instruction as to allow a larger number of the boys to take a purely vernacular course of instruction. It appears doubtful indeed, in view of results and circumstances, whether it is wise to attempt to teach so much English to so many boys, many of whom are utterly incapable of learning it, and many others who have little or no desire to undertake such a long and arduous task. The Orphanage school has done all that could be expected; but it cannot accomplish impossibilities, and it is impossible, as a rule, to make respectable English scholars out of such native boys as are generally thrown upon the Mission for support and education.

The workshop in connection with the institution still is in need of attention; some settled plan should be at once adopted and pursued. Carpentry, shoemaking, weaving, tailoring, and gardening are carried on: 14 boys are learning carpentry, 14 are learning shoemaking, 14 are learning weaving, 18, tailoring, 78, gardening, 3 are learning to be servants, 3 are otherwise engaged. 129 are in school part of the time, and in workshop part of the time. Their work interferes somewhat with their progress in study: 9 boys have been taken from school and remain in the workshop; 4 of them are sufficiently advanced as to be able to earn their own living. 26 boys are between 13 and 20 years of age; 61 are between 10 and 15.

During the year shoes have been made to the value of 327 rupees; most of the shoes have been sold; really good shoes can be made here, and the demand is active. Durries, mostly used in the Orphanage, have been made to the value of 40 rupees: 436 rupees worth of carpenter's work has been done. The expenses of the workshop department for the year have exceeded the income nearly 2,000 rupees. If it were possible to put this department under the management of some efficient native man, allowing him to have the use of the buildings and tools and labor of the boys as an equivalent for his instructing them, and leaving the expenses and business to him, there would be a very great gain in many respects. The Orphanage has received an increase of numbers since the beginning of this year, 1878, so that there are now 181 boys in the institution. Of these 50 are really without parents. There are 22 instances in which two brothers are together in the Orphanage, in 11 instances both parents are living—in two instances only the father is living, and in nine instances only the mother. In these instances these brothers are together in the Orphanage, of which in two instances both parents are living, and in one, the mother only is living. The tendency of the Institution is to become rather an asylum for the children of indigent Christian parents than to remain an Orphanage. In fact, it can only by a very liberal construction of language be called an Orphanage at all. The policy of the Mission should at once decide, whether this is to become a real Orphanage, or whether it is to remain what has become an asylum for the support and education of the children of indigent native Christian parents. Such an Asylum is wanted by the native people, circumstances seem to demand it, we have it in fact under another name. It is recommended that Conference take measures to change the original policy to suit the policy actually in use.

CONFERENCE REPORTS.

In conclusion, the Committee beg to represent that the educational interests under supervision of the Conference, have so much changed in their character that the instructions under which the Committee act have become partly absolute and partly impracticable; they therefore suggest the propriety of so changing those instructions that the Committee may know what Institutions are to be visited, and how otherwise to meet the demands of the case. They would also suggest that if possible such brethren be put on the Committee as believe the work ought to be done, and are willing to attempt doing it.

CONFERENCE ROLL

The first of these conferences was held at Erie, Pa., in 1858, and was attended by a number of the leading ministers of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. It was the first of a series of conferences which have since been held at various places, and have been attended by a large number of the leading ministers of the Church. The purpose of these conferences was to discuss the various questions which were then pressing upon the minds of the ministers, and to reach a common understanding of the principles which should govern the Church in its relations to the world.

PRESIDING ELDERS' REPORTS.

KUMAON DISTRICT.

REV. C. W. JUDD, PRESIDING ELDER.

THIS has been a year of more than ordinary trial on account of the distress caused by famine in these provinces. Our mission work has gone forward on the district very much as in other years, though attended with more care and anxiety than usual. I am glad to state, however, that there has not been a case of death from starvation among the Christians as far as I know, and help has been given only when and where it was actually needed.

The District Conference held in October was a season of refreshing to our native brethren particularly. Coming as it did at the same time and place where our Union Missionary Meeting was held in English, we were not able to attend the social meetings held in Hindustani as much as we would otherwise have done. But we had good reports from them. Both the District Conference and the Union Missionary Meeting I trust will prove a lasting blessing to our work. There was a gloom cast over us all on account of the very sudden departure from our midst of sister Cheney the very week these meetings commenced. Some of the brethren and sisters arrived just in time to be present at the funeral, they not having heard of her illness till they reached Naini Tal. In her removal not only the English work of this station, but the native work also has suffered a great loss, and while we cannot understand God's dealings with us in thus taking one of our number who was young and full of health and hope for the work, yet we cheerfully acquiesce in His will, knowing He doeth all things well, and what we know not now we shall know hereafter.

The Boys' School is kept up ten months of the year, and is attended by Hindu youths of good family from all over the district. This year two passed the examination for Entrance to Roorkee Engineering College. Another youth who has just completed his studies there has returned with a certificate as sub-overseer in the Public Works Department. We are thus raising up friends who are freed from the prejudice to Christianity that exists in many places and who always carry with them Bible truths they learned in the Mission school. Not less than twenty-five Gurhwalee young men of good family look to our school as their Alma Mater, and though still Hindus, they are of the material to be looked to with great hope when a general awakening shall liberate the people of India now bound by caste and Brahminism. There are about 400 children in all our schools in Gurhwal.

The Girls' Orphanage continues to increase in numbers and efficiency. There are now about 30 inmates, and, including the boarding school and day-scholars, about 40 attend the girls' school. Mrs. Gill has given a great deal of her time to this work. The girls are taught to work at spinning, knitting, washing, as well as out door-work in the vegetable garden.

The result of the recent famine was to leave enough orphan boys in our hands to begin a Boys' Orphanage. These boys must be taught trades by which they will ere long be self-supporting, but for the present they will be a charge to the Mission. Their number is less than twenty.

THE MEDICAL DISPENSARY

Has been a great boon to the people here. Government furnishes most of the medicines used, and more than 200 people monthly visit it for medicine. One month this year 500 people received medicine during a very sickly time of the year. The prevailing diseases are fevers, dysentery, sore eyes, goitre syphilis, and skin diseases.

Books are also esteemed an important help to our work, and we have always two, and sometimes three men engaged in selling the Scriptures and religious books in the language of the native people.

The Missionary has also paid attention to the mental and spiritual wants of his helpers, and together we have read almost through the Pentateuch, which we commenced a couple of years ago. Two of our Christian young men and one young woman are now in the plains preparing for greater usefulness among their own people. The instruction of our Christians is sure to yield the best of fruit.

SRINAGAR

Is the only town of importance situated on the upper Ganges, and contains a population of 2,500 people. Not only is it important as the only market town of the interior of Gurhwal, but being on the direct pilgrim route to the famous temples of Badrinath and Kedarnath, about twenty-five to seventy-five thousand pilgrims pass through this place annually. The greater part of the inhabitants gain their livelihood from the pilgrims, and so far have resisted every effort put forth for their Christianization. The Mission for ten years has maintained the only boys' school in the place, and had we been able to keep faithful helpers constantly there, something more would have been accomplished. As it is, we have two families of Christians there, one of whom united with us this year ; another has expressed a desire for baptism.

DHIKWALI

Is a country spot surrounded by numerous villages, and is the home of our Native Preacher, Khiyali. Chiefly owing to his faithfulness many of his friends have become Christians, and the little church at that place now numbers 23 persons. The caste from which these people come is called Koalee (or weaver), and many of them are very friendly to us. They number about 30,000 in Gurhwal, and attention to them is sure to result favourably for Mission work.

KOTDWARA

Is three marches distant, and lies immediately south of us, on the direct route to the plains. It is the only Gurhwali market town that touches them, and promises to be a place of increasing importance, especially as there is prospect of a Railway coming near to it.

During the year just closed we have baptized 47 persons, just the number we had last year, making 94 baptisms in two years. The hearts of a large class of people are inclined towards us, though they are not willing to become Christians.

Now, others who are in fear of their landlords, have not courage to take a step that would apparently risk the loss of their homes. I am glad to say that some of our people own their own land, and in this are independent. The total number of Christians in this circuit is one hundred and sixty: the first baptism occurred only 11 years ago. The people are not living together in one place, but scattered in their homes over about ten villages, each village being within a day's march from Paori. These Christians, if regularly instructed and faithful, must make a good impression on their heathen neighbors. The hindrances to the spread of Christianity in Garhwal are but few comparatively, and the work only needs attention to make it successful.

EASTERN KUMAON CIRCUIT.

REV. R. GRAY, M.D., Missionary.
SCHOOLS.

THERE is an increase in the number of schools. This was managed without additional expense, by reducing the grade and expenditure of an Anglo-vernacular school. There are now 10 schools, having 541 scholars, with an average attendance of 431. There is also one girls' school managed by Mrs. Gray. There are now 26 girls in attendance, who learn besides reading, writing, sewing, knitting, etc., the way of eternal life through Christ. There have been many encouraging signs among these girls, and whether any conversions are seen in the immediate future or not, this much is certain that in some Hindu homes, Krishna will be thought less of and Christ more.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

The Sunday-schools have been as well attended as in past years. The total number of scholars is about 175. A new school was opened this year, eight miles from Pithoragarh. A native helper, John Thomas, volunteered to run the school. He is compelled to hold it on Saturday, inasmuch as he is needed in Pithoragarh on Sunday. He has gone to his school steadily this year, rain and shine, walking sixteen miles every Saturday for a chance to teach young Hindu minds Christian truth.

PREACHING.

In the way of preaching more than the usual amount has been done this year, and with some encouraging results. Two pilgrims to the shrine at Badrinath were found in a village. They heard the preaching, came to see us, and finally were so far convinced as to turn about and go home, sure that they would get nothing but trouble by a visit to Badrinath. A farir was met who had a full knowledge of Christianity so far as the gospels are concerned. He stated that he wished to be baptized. He wanted nothing more; would wander about as usual, only preaching Christ. As he would not consent to change his custom of living by fraud, we would not baptize him, and he is now wandering about, whether preaching Christ or not, is not known to us.

A man was met at a mela who had been reading the Bible. He had been impressed with its teaching and trying to follow it, convinced of the unreasonableness of many Hindu customs, he had left them off. His people were very angry with him, and he, finding himself poorer and poorer in a worldly way, was getting discouraged. This was all told before a crowd of neighbors and friends. We invited him to come and talk with us, which he has done, and we have hopes that he will come out a true worshipper of Christ. One old heathen has been steadily in attendance at all our services for a long time. He is ready to be baptized the moment he is sure of a living. We are hoping he will get faith enough to carry him over that difficulty. He has in truth now a hard prospect, being almost totally blind.

MEDICAL WORK.

The medical work of the circuit is a fine evangelistic agency. By it we have been introduced to many people in a very favorable way. It has been our habit this year to visit as much as possible sick people in their homes. In this way we have found our very best chances to preach. When we go as preachers, we are compelled actually to sit on the dunghill and preach. When we go as doctor we get into the sick man's private room and have the spare room full of neighbors and friends. Many people have been saved from the very jaws of death. One rather young man was saved in the last stages of cholera. His wife to-day thanks us that she is not a widow.

She is our friend. A man who had lost many children from cholera infantum had just one boy left. He was taken sick in the same way and recovered, the father thinks, through our medicine. He would do anything for us now. Another man has the mother of his children still alive to care for them and toil in the fields for him. She had acute dysentery, and we attended her in her home. We touched that man's heart and pocket, for he loved the mother of his children, and, moreover, a new wife would have cost fifty dollars. A young man suffering from a terrible disease, after a dangerous surgical operation was sent home to gladden his mother's heart. Whenever we go into that part of the country some one meets us half way. Another, a young man, every time he sees us says he is so sorry he trusted to the incantations of the priests and not to our medicine. He mourns a young wife. So we are wearing out the priests, for their charms as yet are always tried before we have a chance. Every one cured by our treatment after trying the Brahmins in vain, is a witness in favor of trying this new way. Thus, many blows are being struck at the very root of all the trouble—the faith in the Brahmins.

According to a report made lately at a United Missionary Meeting in Naini Tal, it seems that during the past four years over 70,000 cases have been treated in the Mission dispensaries in Kumaon and Gurhwal, and 127 surgical operations have been performed. Surely this is a good work worth carrying on and extending.

PALEE CIRCUIT.

THIS circuit has two appointments about the centre of the District. It is a very important field for mission work. At the first appointment (Dwarahath) we have a mission house and two houses for native preachers also a dispensary and rooms for in-door patients. These were all built with funds given by our friends here. No help was received from America. In my judgment we should have a Missionary stationed here. At present H. Wilson, native doctor and local preacher, is the only laborer we have. He has charge of the dispensary, for which Government furnishes the medicines. His labor connected with this is one man's work, yet he has two low grade schools in which he conducts Sunday-schools: besides, he does considerable preaching among the villages. If we cannot appoint a missionary there, we should at least send another native helper.

The second appointment is Mashi, about 12 miles from Dwarahath, where we have a large house for two Native preacher's families, built the same as those at Dwarahath with funds given by our friends. Here we have only one native helper: we should have two by all means. The work opens finely, should be pushed with energy, and I have no doubt before long we shall see fruit.

ROHILKUND DISTRICT.

REV. E. CUNNINGHAM, PRESIDING ELDER.

THE famine affected our Mission work in this district very seriously. Our village congregations were broken up and scattered, and some of the people have not yet returned. Not more than five or six Christians are supposed to have died of want. The contributions of the Native Church have been very little, and it will be a long time before village Christians will be able to give as they were beginning to do. A Famine Relief Fund sent from America, has relieved much suffering both in the form of loans of small sums, Relief Works and gifts for food and blankets. There has with this loss been a great increase in our Orphanages and the girls' boarding-schools of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. All the girls in the boarding-schools are Christians, and many of them go in vacation to their heathen homes: in this way we are forming now connections in many directions.

The number of paid native assistants is about the same as last year. Six have left Mission service and taken up secular employment. They still preach as they have opportunity and in every way assist our evangelistic work. No better expenditure of Mission money can be made than in giving men a good Christian training and then allowing them as laymen to scatter the truth they have learned.

We have fewer native assistants of the higher grade than we ought to have after twenty years' teaching and preaching.

to the Theological Seminary will produce a better educated class of native preachers. Our native assistants of all grades are improving in ability and spirituality.

The resolutions passed at District Conference urging the better education of village Christian youth and the better instruction of inquirers before baptism either emanated from or were heartily supported by them. The spiritual refreshing of the District Conference was enjoyed by none more heartily than the native assistants. While the foreign Missionary cannot dispense with their services, it is equally true that all the work at present cannot be safely put in their hands. Still we hope the time is not far distant when we shall not be obliged to say this.

There has been an increase in numbers as will be seen by the statistics. Our work is now so firmly established among the Mehtars and Mazhibi Sikhs that we can baptize people much more easily than we can instruct and fit them to be worthy members of Christ's Church. There are also new openings among the Chamars and their priests the Bairagis.

The Native Church is slowly increasing in spirituality. There have been revivals at four or five points on the district during the year. The Native Pastors are more and more cultivating a revival spirit and seeking to have their flocks soundly converted and built up in the most holy faith. The work of the W. F. M. Society has been vigorously prosecuted.

With a firm faith in the complete and glorious triumph of the Anointed in this land, we record his gracious presence and support during this year.

BAREILLY.

REV. G. H. MCGREW, Missionary.

THE year has been one of unusual trial and embarrassment. During the earlier months the famine paralyzed our efforts at evangelization. Many sought baptism; but we could not receive them into the Church because of their abject and manifest poverty. We had no money with which to buy bread to feed their bodies, and it seemed like solemn mockery to offer to feed their souls. The bread of Life, they wanted; but more the bread of physical Life.

Early in the rains, one of the main drains leading from the native city to the river, which passes through our premises, was flooded in the night, deluging the Orphanage, washing down a good brick house which was occupied by the Head Master of the city school, destroying all the servants' houses and the stables belonging to the bungalow in which Miss Cary was living, and ruining several other houses which were occupied by theological students and their families. So suddenly did this flood come, that the wife of one of the students with her babe in her arms was buried under the walls of their house. Before they could be taken out, the babe was dead and the mother badly, though not fatally, hurt.

To this flood may be attributed, in part at least, the increased sickness in our community which followed hard after. Earlier in the year deaths had been uncommonly frequent in the Orphanage. Soon after the flood, there was some diarrhoea and dysentery. On the 30th of August cholera made its appearance among the girls. After three weeks this terrible disease disappeared, having carried off nine out of the sixteen Orphanage girls who were attacked. The general health of the Orphanage has been seriously disturbed. During the year seventy-three girls have died. While this unusual mortality is attributable in part, to the sickness which followed the flood, the greater part of it must unquestionably be referred to the crowded state of the Orphanage buildings. A large number of famine orphans were from time to time sent in from the Government poor-houses, and gradually and almost insensibly the buildings became over-crowded. Besides, many of those who were brought in were in a wretched state, their health having been so fully undermined that they were open to disease, and died at the first attack. Owing to the crowded state of the buildings, some of the girls were sent to Moradabad, while others were removed to the hospital which is attached to the Woman's Dispensary, where they have remained up to this writing. But the Orphanage is still over-crowded, and needs not only enlargement, but also a complete re-arrangement of the buildings in order to secure the health of the inmates.

Apart from the Orphanage, the health of the Christian community has been better than might have been expected. Only five adults have died during the year. Out of these, two lived in the district. Several children, however, have died : two from cholera.

On the whole, our numbers are greater than they were last year. I have received into the Church fifty-five adults. Of this number, thirty-four came in by letter, and twenty-one by baptism. Besides this number, one hundred and seventeen infants have been baptized during the year. Of these, seventy-nine were girls in the Orphanage.

As an offset to these accessions, twenty-seven adults have removed, taking letters ; five have gone away without certificates ; five have died, three have been expelled, and one man with his wife, has become a Mahomedan.

There has been no special change in the methods of work. Bazaar preaching has been carried on with tolerable regularity by the theological students. Besides this, there has been preaching every Sunday morning in the church on the Mission premises, and every Sunday afternoon in the city. The first-named service was intended mainly for the native Christians ; the second for the heathen.

There are four Sunday-schools in the station : two for heathen, and two for native Christians, including the girls in the Orphanage. The interest of the one in the native city, of which Dr. Scott has had charge, has manifestly increased.

Besides these, the customary class-meetings, prayer-meetings, and Bible-readings have been kept up for the native Church and the Orphanage girls.

In all these lines of work I have been heartily and most efficiently assisted by Dr. Scott, Bro. D. W. Thomas, and Bro. John Thomas. But for their help, it would not have been possible to push our work in all these directions so steadily and vigorously.

The schools have been at work as usual ; with a very good attendance. But it is pitiful to compare our pinched, half-supplied schools with the liberally-appointed and well-manned institutions which are under the patronage of the Government.

During the year the study of the Scriptures has been introduced into the Anglo-Vernacular school in the city. One boy, and only one left on account of this innovation. The others have taken hold of the Word of God with spirit and interest.

In the out-stations the local preachers and exhorters have been jogging on as usual. In Pilibheet and Aliguage, there has been no visible result. But in the district under the care of Brother Ibrahim Solomon most interesting results have been seen. In March last Dr. Scott and myself went to Mir Gunge, a village on the turnpike leading from Bareilly to Moradabad, and baptized six persons. Since then nine more have been baptized : so that there is now in that village an independent Christian church, numbering fourteen members. The leader in this movement is an old woman, Natha, wife of one Lotan. She is 50 years old ; tall and erect, hard-featured and ignorant, but most determined and energetic. Her force of character, manifested in her determination not only to embrace Christianity herself, but also to bring her whole family along with her, as well as several other points of fancied resemblance, led Dr. Scott to give her the pseudonym of "Barbara Heck." Her steadiness and wisdom under the persecutions and difficulties which followed her baptism, have fully vindicated her right to that honored name.

Among the sweepers in Bareilly itself, we have won a decided triumph in baptizing the senior chaudhari of that caste in the district. His junior colleague was Keshu, who was baptized some years ago, and who now maintains a regular preaching service as well as a class-meeting in his own house. To me the marvel is that this old man, 80 years of age, should be so deeply touched by the grace of God. He is sincere, quiet, self-supporting, and in every point of view a most valuable convert. Through the agency of these two men we hope to be able to report before long a wide-spread work among the sweepers of the city and district.

The completion and opening of our new church in the city marks a new epoch in our work in Bareilly. For ten years it has suffered for want of a commodious and comfortable preaching-place. The prayers and labours of ten years have at last been crowned with fruition, and we have a convenient and imposing structure, opening upon one of the main streets. Already its silent influence is showing itself in the increasing congregations and an enlarged Sunday-school. When some kind friend in America shall give us a clock and bell for the fine tower, which now stands empty, the Christian church will become the most influential building in this heathen city.

The silent way in which the cause of Christ is making headway among the people is finely exemplified in the case of a young Mohamedan, who is to be baptized next Sabbath. Five years ago his curiosity was aroused by the kindly mention which the Qurán makes of Christ and Christians. He procured and read attentively the New Testament, as well as three or four of the best books on the Mahomedan controversy, and was finally fully convinced. He read the same books aloud to his mother, who at first reproached him for reading Christian books. She also in time became convinced of the truth of Christianity. Three months ago he announced himself as an enquirer, had interviews with the native brethren; and finally went to Sambhal to see Brother Zahur-ul-Haqq, with whom he ate. For a long time his neighbours have taunted him with purposing to become a Christian, and he has retorted by saying that he was already one. Since his visit to Sambhal his relations have closed their houses against him and his family. He now seeks to be recognized by us as what his neighbours have so long regarded him as being. His wife and mother are to be baptized with him. Doubtless the next six months will test his faith in Christ to the utmost. God grant that he may stand firm.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY AND NORMAL HIGH SCHOOL.

REV. D. W. THOMAS,	Principal.
REV. T. J. SCOTT,	Professor of Theology.
REV. JOHN THOMAS,	Teacher.

THIS Institution is annually increasing in the numbers of its students and its facilities for thorough instruction. The number of students in the Theological department was at the beginning of the year 34, of whom 5, having failed in the half-yearly examination, were dismissed.

The Normal High School department commenced with only 24 students, and, owing to their destitute circumstances and our not being able to give them scholarships, several of them were obliged to leave the school at the middle of the year.

The Conference not having determined, until its session in January, to open this High School department this year, notice of its commencement was not circulated in time to secure many students. No doubt many others would have been happy to avail themselves of the opportunity had they received notice earlier in the year.

We expect a much larger attendance in this department in 1879, and we anticipate grand results from this small beginning. We receive into this department a few first class Hindoo and Mahomedan boys, and these all attend the daily religious services of the institution, and are also instructed in the Holy Scriptures one hour daily, by Rev. M. L. Banerjee, a graduate of the Drew Theological Seminary.

The students of the Theological department have studied faithfully, and, with but one or two exceptions, the improvement has been all that we could have anticipated.

Besides, much hard study which they have done, they have regularly preached two and three times a week in the market places of the city and adjacent villages. The moral discipline of the Theological students has been under the charge of Dr. Scott, and, with some exceptions, their deportment has been satisfactory. Dr. Scott has held a religious service once a week, especially for the students; and they are taught that a pure life and fervent love for souls are above all other attainments. A class of six has just graduated; five with diplomas and one with a certificate.

In reference to the financial condition of the school, we are in great need of funds for a Library and for the salaries of teachers.

We must have teachers, and teachers must have books. Books are the teachers' tools, and we need them quite as much as a mechanic requires tools for his trade. Will not some of our Lord's wealthy men send us donations for the endowment of professorships and for a good Library of English and vernacular books.

KHĒRA BAJHERA.

Rev. T. J. SCOTT, Missionary.

THIS rural station is able to report some progress. Our most active work early in the year was in famine relief effort. In February, when the people began to die of starvation, James Jordan, the native preacher, collected some fifty children and a score of adults, who were most likely to perish, and fed them a small daily allowance for some weeks till the pressure was past. Many lives were thus saved by the private charity of a few friends. So great was the distress, that the boys' school was closed, as many children died, and others were too sore pressed by hunger to think of studying. This school was resumed, and the attendance is much as it was. The effect of the school-work in this station is most marked in moulding the minds of the rising community. The children who attend the schools seem more Christian in their ideas than they are pagan, and we may hope for many converts from among them.

There have been five baptisms of adults during the year. An entire Brahmin family for some time has been requesting baptism, but it has been deferred because most likely they would be compelled to look to the Mission for their bread for some time at least. An enquirer, the wife of a shop-keeper, who had joined this family in seeking baptism, fled to the native preacher's house and insisted in remaining with the Christians, but after three days she was forcibly dragged away by her husband and relatives.

This station has an encouraging outlook. The community is being permeated by Christian influence, and, being situated some distance from any large city, is not subject to the bitter hostility so frequently encountered from the leading pagan and Moslem teachers. Some of the converts have turned out badly, but still the people now see that the Christian standard of purity is something vastly better than their own, and these failures only make more emphatic the lofty requirements of the Gospel. The moral sense of the people is being quickened, and many must eventually be led to Christ as their hope.

An encouraging series of meetings was held in the village in November in the open air. For several nights preaching was kept up with good attendance, and no adversaries. In fact, there was a manifest assent to all that was urged on the listeners. The fear of breaking with caste and friends alone seemed to keep many back. We now have a hopeful hold on this community, and a native Church will be steadily built up. The work is entirely supported by the endowment of Colonel Gowan and some aid from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society for girls' schools and a Bible reader.

SHAHJEHANPORE AND BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

REV. T. S. JOHNSON,	} Missionaries.
REV. P. M. BUCK,

ORTHODOX Hindu society in this city has been somewhat disturbed of late by the organization of an Aryan Samaj. The members of this society are all Hindus, and most of them have been educated in Government or Mission schools, and are influential men in the community. They claim to renounce idolatry and to have returned to the primitive religion of the Aryan fathers. They meet regularly on Sunday afternoon, and in addition to transacting the business of the society, a lecture is delivered or read, and sometimes prayer is offered. They invite us to attend their meetings, but the Sabbath is so fully occupied that it is quite impossible to do so. This movement has already reached many places in this part of India, and though the numbers identified with it are not great, it is exciting a powerful influence on Hindu society. Although not intended in any way to favor Christianity, it is largely the result of Missionary labor, and will probably be no small factor in preparing the way of the Lord in this country.

In the lectures given from time to time in the new Mission School-house, which are well attended, we have three classes of opponents,—the Old and New School Hindus, and the Mahomedans. Of late they oppose each other quite as much as they do us. Division in the ranks of the enemy here as elsewhere is an encouraging indication.

There is a very interesting case in this district of a man of good family and some property having become a Christian, though still not baptized. Awakened by bazaar preaching, he immediately called for books and began to read and believe. He attends service when he can, and appears to be a true disciple of the Lord Jesus. He hopes his family will become interested and all be baptized together. During the famine he was present at the Mission House one day, and saw some little starved children just sent to the Orphanage by the Magistrate. He at once sent in a cow to supply the little sufferers with milk, which good office the cow continues to perform. He has also taken a poor Christian family to his village and given them employment. He has the management of an important law-suit for his widowed sister, in which her property was involved. It was important to get the trial deferred for a month at least; and he was on his way at the appointed time, with a written request to the Judge, when he saw us preaching in the bazaar chapel. Although the time for his important business had come, he sent a servant with the paper, saying he would worship the Lord and risk the case. To his surprise the Judge gave three months instead of one, which he attributed to the interposition of the Lord Jesus in whose worship he had been engaged.

Another landholder in the district whose people—cultivators in one of his villages—have failed because of the famine, came and asked me to settle Christian cultivators on his land. Ten years ago had a man in his village become a Christian he would have been cast out at once. These are thankfully noted as signs of progress. Aside from Panahpore, 8 adults and 99 children have been baptized since January—mostly in the Orphanage.

THE ORPHANAGE.

As a result of the famine, the number of boys in the Orphanage has been greatly increased. We shrank from this additional responsibility, but when starving children were thrust upon us, for whom there was no other possible hope, we could not refuse them. The strictest economy was adopted. All such things as shoes, caps, etc., were dispensed with. An appeal to the good people at home brought Rs. 1,135 to the Orphanage, which afforded great relief, so that the year will be closed without debt. Our heartiest thanks to the friends at home for this help. The number of boys ran up to 309, but several were reduced by starvation beyond recovery, and 17 died. 20 others had become so used to a wandering life, that they preferred it to the discipline of the school, and when fed up a little ran off. 24 boys were found in the institution who could be cared for by friends and others, and have been sent out. Employment has been secured for 8, leaving 240 in the Orphanage,—but 50 or 60 more are now probably on their way here, which will keep the number up to about 300. Most of these are little boys, and as they grow up, the responsibility of the charge will be still further increased.

Since the Institution was organized, 167 boys have gone out from it, and 124 of these—most of whom are now heads of families, are doing well. A number of them are engaged in preaching and teaching, while two have become members of the Annual Conference. The health of the boys during the year has been very good. Boys big enough are required to work 3 hours daily and attend school 5 hours; those who show little aptitude for study spend more time at work and less in school. Those who show no promise in school, devote their time to work either in the shops or fields; 8 of this class are now devoting all their time to clearing land and preparing fields in the Christian village of Panahpore, and others will soon join them.

Arrangements are being made to give employment, in cultivating the Orphanage land here, to a much greater number than heretofore. The work, however, is not allowed to interfere with the school. The more intelligent boys as they advance in study are allowed more time in school, and less labor is required of them. This is the general plan, but to apply it to every individual case is no light task, and mistakes no doubt are sometimes made.

In addition to the morning and evening prayers, and daily Scripture lessons, the boys are all arranged in classes for special religious instruction. The work is very heavy, and we hail with delight Brother Buck's return from America. He reached here the last of September, and has since that time assisted as his strength permitted.

PANAHPORE.

REV. H. J. ADAMS, Native Minister.

THIS is a purely Native Christian village of about 300 souls. It is well situated, the soil is good, and when wells shall have been sunk for irrigation, it will yield abundant crops. The past year has been one of suffering: money from the Famine Relief fund has been judiciously expended both in relief works and in loans for cattle and seed.

Dr. Johnson is settling a number of orphanage boys here. A school drawing a small Government Grant-in-aid is maintained both for boys and girls. It was visited during the year by a committee of the District Conference, and reported to be in good condition. Some difficulty is experienced in inducing parents to send their boys who are old enough to work. Worship is conducted every day at 12 M. in the little church which stands in the centre of the village.

Besides this, the regular services are held during the week and on the Sabbath. The Native Pastor enjoys the confidence and friendship of the whole community. The influence of his character and life on the people is very good.

As the years go by, we see here slowly developing more manhood and more Christianity.

BUDAON.

REV. R. HOSKINS, Missionary
REV. MAHBUB KHAN, Native Minister.

OWING to the depressing effects of the famine, the work in this District has not expanded as we could wish. Our people have seen exceeding hard times and many have disposed of nearly all their goods to keep themselves from starvation, and to-day they have nothing left but weakened bodies to begin again the struggle for existence. Only two or three Christians have died from lack of food, but there are scores about us who could not endure the loss of another crop. Many of our people are farmers, and have usually been successful; they have now got their lands again under cultivation and are rejoicing over the prospect of a full harvest after the two years of failure.

Our Christians are rising in the social scale ; the hatred shown against them in former years is fast passing away, and in villages where they were despised and abused because of their low condition, the people now mingle with them freely and assure them of their good-will. Especially is this the case where the converts have truly found the saving power of the Gospel and many of the non-Christian element, attracted by this elevating power and recognizing in Christianity a social blessing have, influenced in a measure by this feeling, placed themselves under our instruction.

Elevation in the social scale has never been placed before them as a motive for professing Christianity, but we can see that it influences a large portion of the community.

Years ago we thought that any extensive work among the lower social ranks of the people would hinder our reaching the higher classes, and for a time this was the case, but gradually the people have learned that salvation is for all, and practically the in-gathering of the low has been the most effectual way of reaching all, for while the higher classes have feared to listen and accept the truths of the Gospel because of the prospective loss of friends and kindred, the lower classes and the outcasts having nothing to lose socially, have gained much by receiving Christ and have become living examples of His salvation, and when we tell the people of the Savior, we can point to these persons whose changed lives testify to the power of His redemption.

In all sections of the country, men may be found who are earnestly seeking for rest of soul and conscious deliverance from sin ; men who, perhaps, fear to listen to preaching and who may be prejudiced against Christianity, who still are unconsciously attracted to any one who professes to have found peace with God, and thus our village Christians become a power for good in witnessing to the blessed effects of the Christian religion on heart and life.

We have not been able to collect much money this year for the propagation of the Gospel, but we have sought to introduce among our Christians the custom of planting a certain portion of land to be devoted to the Lord's service. This custom prevails among the Hindus, and our Christians are taking to it warmly. Most of the farmers in the District have agreed to the proposition, and if properly attended to, we think this method will yield a fair and permanent income for the Native Pastor.

Christianity is becoming indigenous, and candidates for baptism are reported from parts of the District where no Helper is entertained.

The Christian believers, going from place to place, repeat the joyful tidings of salvation to their friends and urge them to believe and accept the truth. We are not able to station Helpers in the scores of villages where converts live, and the problem of their instruction has caused us much thought. Our present plan is to place qualified men in the larger centers of the District and have them visit at regular intervals, all the villages in their circle where converts or inquirers may be found.

For years we have had more or less trouble with the Marriage question. The converts were not entirely separated from their relatives, and the marriages of their children were made according to their olden heathen custom in too many instances. This year there has not been a single marriage among the Christians by the heathen mode, while three marriages have been celebrated in a Christian manner, so that after years of perplexity and trouble, we begin to see a little light. Time and patience will be required for a full solution of the question, but we feel that a gain has been made.

A marked peculiarity of our work this year is the number of Hindoo girls in our boarding school, brought by their parents who come occasionally to see them and seem pleased to have them with us. Among these are Godes, Chumars, Kabars, Kisans, and one Koli. Through these girls we are able to reach the parents and gain listeners in the villages where they belong, and we trust this connecting link may be the means of bringing many to the Cross. The girls are greatly improved by the religious instruction received in the school; twelve have been received on probation for Church membership, and four have joined the Church in full communion.

This part of our work is very encouraging. The girls are receiving an excellent education in their own vernacular, and are becoming fitted for future usefulness among their own people. Friends in America support these girls by paying a scholarship, though the value of education for girls has become so apparent, that a few of the parents have shown a read-ness to pay in part for the instruction received, and we hope that in time the people will so prize a good education for their daughters as to voluntarily pay the whole cost. When advisable the girls return to their homes in the villages during the vacations, and thus the parents retain their interest in them.

It is exceedingly difficult to procure efficient female teachers. Unmarried girls cannot be trusted to carry on any work without constant supervision, and to find suitable husbands for them is another problem.

For years we have been wishing to begin a work among the Chumars, who are a very numerous, but very ignorant people. This year we have baptized a few of this class, and there seems a prospect of an extended work in this direction. Among the Rama Nandi Bairagis the work has gone steadily on; they are quite inclined to listen to the claims of Christianity, and five have been baptized.

The City Sunday-school has greatly improved during the year. The attendance increased to two hundred, then the parents were led to fear some evil, and many of the pupils were withdrawn, but after a time the most of them came back. On some Sundays we have had present fifty or sixty boys who were unconnected with the day schools. The classes are well taught, and the frequent reviews enstamp the lessons on the minds of the pupils. During the early part of the year the Sunday-school exercises were followed by a sermon, but finally it seemed best to make the subject of the day the ground-work for a full and earnest presentation of the truth.

Two classes for the religious instruction of baptized children are maintained, one for boys and one for girls. We did not fully realize the need of this means of grace until the classes were in operation. Now, it seems as if we could hardly do justice to children without it. The little ones need encouragement and guidance in their religious life, otherwise they grow careless and forget their responsibility to God.

We have held three protracted meetings in Budaon, resulting in much good to the Church; several persons who had been walking in darkness were brought into light, and some for the first time found joy and peace in believing. We have also held meetings in several villages where there are Christians residing, and in some instances the meetings were protracted several days. During the year, or rather the last ten months, twenty-nine adults and seventy children have been baptized.

We have prepared a Roman-Urdu edition of the Bible Concordance, which will be published at the Mission Press, Lucknow.

During the cold season we have used the Magic Lantern with Scripture views among the villages with great profit. By hanging the white sheet under some large tree, even when the moon was shining brightly, the people could see the pictures clearly, and would sit on the ground and listen for two and three hours to the Gospel story. The pictures most utilized are, The Wise men following the Star, The Wise men offering gifts to the Infant Jesus, Christ blessing little children, The Transfiguration, The raising of Lazarus, The Sower, The Samaritan woman at the Well, The Ascension. At times we have used Old Testament scenes: Adam in the Garden, Moses in the Bulrushes, Gathering the Manna, Israelites crossing the Red Sea, The Fall of Jericho, Daniel in the Lion's Den, etc.

Invitations have been received from many villages to make them a visit, and although we use the Lantern to convey Scripture truth, still the people seem anxious to be present, often coming miles from the villages around.

Two or three preachers accompany me, and we visit the neighboring villages in the morning, meet visitors at the tent in the afternoon, and after sunset we hold meetings among the Christians and inquirers, and later in the evening, about half-past seven, we begin the work of the evening.

This method of conveying truth is very attractive, and having the audience seated and quiet, we are able to easily and thoroughly impress the story on their minds.

At the Kakora Mela we have introduced some new methods. In a central place we erected a platform, high enough to raise the speakers above the heads of the crowd. A high flagstaff was erected, bearing aloft a white flag on which was worked a red Cross. Five preachers were present, and we preached from eight to eleven A. M., and from two to five P. M. Our men sing well, and large crowds gathered. The Word was preached with the power of the Holy Ghost and many were convinced and convicted. A hundred or more persons were found who seemed deeply interested and drawn to the Redeemer Christ. We met scores of the Rama Nandi Bairāgis who are greatly attracted to Christianity, and the work among this caste, which has been spreading during the past four years, seems about to branch out into very extensive proportions.

MORADABAD.

REV. E. W. PARKER, Missionary.

THE Church of the Moradabad circuit at the beginning of this year numbered, according to its register, 93 members and 53 probationers. During the year 34 of these have left with letters, one without a letter, two have been dropped, and four have died. Meantime 22 have been received by letter, 35 have joined in full connection from probation, and 66 have been received on probation, so that now the register shows 118 members and 98 probationers. Of these, 13 men are regular mission servants as preachers or teachers at Moradabad, Chandausi, Kunderki, and Byrampur, 15 are in Government and Railway services, 17 are servants of Missionaries, or in some service under them in connection with the Mission, others are shoe-makers, farmers, weavers, masons, and coolies, and 43 persons are the older girls and boys in the school. Especial attention has been paid all through the year to the meetings designed especially for the members of the Church. Nearly all attend class regularly, and all the children are arranged into classes and faithfully taught. These efforts, along with sermons especially for the young, have led the children to become more intelligent listeners to the preaching of the Word. A prayer meeting is held at each of the two places of worship on Tuesday evening, which has been well attended. The "doctrinal suggestion" of the Berean Lessons for the week forms the subject of these meetings, and proof-texts are recited at the opening by many of those present, and the prayers and remarks are suggested by the topic and the texts explaining it, so that formality and repetition are very greatly avoided. Extra meetings were also held during several weeks, especially for the Christians, with the design of leading all to be willing and determined to do exactly what Christ commands them to do. Under all circumstances religions in India are supposed to have so little to do with a man's morality that a quick, active conscience in the native Church can only be secured by persistent, pointed teaching applied by the Spirit of God. The Church is growing spiritually, of this there can be no doubt, and the general influence of the Christians on the communities where they reside is very good.

There have been 44 adults and 58 children baptized during the year. Most of these adults are doing well, though a few have not fulfilled our expectations concerning them. The larger portion of these accessions has been from among the Chamars, a few were Mazbhi Sikhs, and a few Mohamedans. The work among the Chamars in Moradabad city is an old one though new in its visible fruits. One old man has been an enquirer for fifteen years, and another in a different part of the city nearly as long, during which time prayer and conversation meetings have often been held at their houses, though broken up at times by some inquirers advancing a little too near an open profession of Christ. One boy of one of these men was taught to read and write, and was also faithfully taught of Christ. In due time he opened a school for Chamar boys, in which all the boys were taught exactly as though they were Christian boys, with the free consent of the parents. During last year this young man and his wife were converted, forming the first-fruits of these years of teaching. This step nearly broke up the school, and seemed for a while to hinder the work in general. During this year five of the first pupils of the school, now young men, have been converted, and the two first, old inquirers, have come out decidedly for Christ. All of these are well instructed, and most of them can read their Bible readily, and understandingly. There are several others who regularly attend our meetings as inquirers, and are well instructed, and will surely join us when their hearts become more fully joined to Christ. One of the school boys baptized was so persistent in his desire, that his father yielded and came himself with the lad and asked us to baptize him. The father is still in his old caste, and his son lives with him as a Christian. In the case of another young man, the efforts of his parents and friends to turn him back have been most persistent and trying. He was pulled away from the altar when he first came forward for baptism, and at every step since he has been beset on all sides with all kinds of persecution, and the strife is still going forward. The larger number of Chamar converts, however, are in villages near Kunderki. These are farmers, weavers, and day-laborers. Andrias, who was formerly a faqir of this class, is the persistent leader in this work, and is successful. Several families have been baptized this year, and a little place of worship and a good village house for a helper have been erected, at a cost of $34. At Chandausi the Church is mostly made up of persons who depend upon work in connection with the railway for their support, and about Byrampur the people are farmers and weavers, from the Mazbhi Sikh caste.

The usual Evangelistic work has been continued during the year. Sunday afternoon city service is always attended by many Hindu and Mahomedans, so that the audience room of our city building is usually well filled. Many listen very attentively to preaching, and some come almost as regularly as the Christians. A course of evangelistic lectures by Babu R. C. Basu and Dr. T. J. Scott continuing through ten evenings was well attended. The bazar preaching during most of the year has been conducted in the school-house yard. Our benches are placed out in the yard, and many come inside and sit down, while others stand in the gateway or lean on the fence, forming a congregation almost as quiet as though within a building. This kind of bazar preaching possesses many advantages, though larger crowds could be gathered in the "Mandi" (market.) The little open-air evening gatherings in the different "mohullas" (caste-wards) of the city form a most important department of our evangelistic work. Many of the Christians aid in this work, and it is an open field for many more. Wherever invitation or permission can be obtained, there several persons go at evening and spend from one to three hours in singing, talking, and praying. Whenever openings of this kind are followed up persistently and prudently, fruit will inevitably be the result. The city and village work among the Chamars is especially carried on in this way.

The Sunday-Schools. The central Sunday-school is made up of all the native Christians and boys of the Anglo-vernacular school. The average attendance for the year, except during the sickness, when the school girls did not go to the city, has been about 225. The other boys' Sunday-school has an average attendance of about one hundred. There is also a Sunday-school connected with each of the twelve girls' school in the city, though for want of teachers a part of these have to be held on Saturday. An interesting Sunday-school has been opened at Chandausi this year, numbering about fifty boys.

The day-schools remain much as last year, except that the boys' High school has been reduced to a lower grade for want of funds. Especial attention has been paid to Bible-teaching in this school during the year, the missionary devoting two hours daily to this work. Another Anglo-vernacular school has been opened at Chandausi at little cost to the Mission, forming a good auxiliary to our work there. The girls' boarding school has about ninety girls in attendance, all children of Christians, and the larger part from villages where there are no schools. The city girls' schools are yearly improving, and in connection with the zenana teaching and medical work, are doing much to enlighten the women and girls concerning the teachings of Christ. The Chamar boys' school is again gaining ground after being for nearly a year almost broken up by the persecution caused by the conversion of the teacher and several pupils.

BIJNOUR.

REV. A. D. MCHENRY, Missionary.

DURING the year, 92 have received baptism, 59 of whom were children, and 33 adults. The adults had remained inquirers for several months and manifested a sincere desire to become Christians. They have thus far run well; and by being kept under proper instruction, may prove valuable additions to our Church. One of those who received baptism, is a servant of a gentleman of the station, and had been an inquirer for more than five years. He shows his sincerity not only by a regular attendance on the means of grace, but also by a regular and voluntary contribution to the support of the Gospel. His son also was baptized, and now one of his fellow-servants wishes to become a Christian. Fourteen of those baptized were girls connected with the girls' boarding-school. These receive daily religious instruction.

We had several deaths during the year. One who died was Frances McArthur, a teacher in the girls' boarding-school, and a most exemplary Christian and efficient worker. She wielded a most salutary influence over the girls, and, indeed, over the entire Christian community. Few teachers loved their pupils, and were loved by them more than she. Her death as well as her life has been a great blessing to our church, for she died triumphantly.

Our Sunday-schools are steadily growing in interest and usefulness. One at Najibabad, has a regular attendance of more than fifty boys, and one at Bijnour, which is attended by the entire Christian community, and also by the Hindu and Mahomedan boys of the day-school, has an attendance of 125. There are five Sunday-schools for girls, in which about 100 are instructed in the Bible and Catechism.

Of the two day-schools for boys, one has 63 on the roll, and the other 54. Owing to the famine, the average attendance falls below these figures. These schools are supported entirely by the Mission, the Government having withdrawn the grant-in-aid more than a year ago. There are a number of Christian boys on the circuit, whose education cannot be properly provided for, owing to the scarcity of money. We hope to be able to gather some of them into the schools the coming year.

The spiritual state of the Church seems in advance of last year. The native pastors have labored faithfully to impart plain and wholesome instruction to those committed to their care. Their efforts have not been entirely fruitless.

Evangelistic work has been carried on throughout the year by preaching in the bazaars, villages, and at melas. Several inquirers express a willingness to receive baptism.

The work of the W. F. M. Society during the year exceeds that of preceding years in interest and success. The Boarding school established for the daughters of native Christians and others that could be persuaded to enter it, has grown steadily. The number has increased from 18 to 35. One of these, the very brightest girl, we found near a village, forsaken by her mother, who had been driven from her home by the famine, and left to beg or die. This girl takes the lead of all the rest in learning to read and to work, and seems to be especially loved by them all. Others gathered in are the daughters of poor Christians, some of whom were compelled by the famine to give their girls over to the school.

AMRDHA.

REV. H. A. CUTTING, Native Minister.

THE severe famine of the past year has very seriously hindered my work. Care for the body has made many both careless in plans and helpless in means for the spiritual support of the soul. It has been impossible to gather many people together in one place for Christian instruction, and our camp meeting which was to have been held at Rajjabpore has been postponed. The numbers assembled for worship on Sunday have been much less than usual. Baptisms, too, have been fewer. In the seven sub-circuits of this circuit, 74 adults and 70 children have been baptized. We now have members 216, probationers 195, Christian children 181. In all the towns and villages of this circuit Christian instruction has been given in the usual way to both Christians and heathen, but especial care has been given to the spiritual welfare and adornment of the Church.

In the school for heathen boys and the two schools for Christian boys and girls, secular and religious instruction has been regularly given. There is an average attendance of 120 in the Sunday-schools. The education of Christian boys, on which the progress and welfare of the Christian Church depend, is not properly attended to. The causes are these :

(1) The Christians are very poor and have not means sufficient to educate their children at their own expense.

(2) Some are in such straightened circumstances that unless their boys work with them in the fields, they cannot support them.

(3) They are so scattered that the boys of one sub-circuit cannot be gathered for a school.

(4) In the sub-circuit of each Helper there are on an average 20 villages. It is therefore impossible for them to give the children proper instruction and discipline.

5. The W. F. M. Society has an excellent plan [the Boarding school] for the instruction of girls. Even now it is difficult to find husbands to suit the will and pleasure of these educated girls. We are very much afraid either that the girls displeased with the uneducated boys, will marry others [not Christians]; or that they will suffer oppression by being married to uneducated boys, and in both there will be a lack of that union which makes home happy.

SAMBHAL.

REV. ZAHUR-UL-HAQQ, Native Minister.

THE Christians living in Hetam Sarai have during the past year been tempted and shown their weakness. They all agreed among themselves to abandon the Christian religion and again practice their old customs and the idolatrous rites of their forefathers.

They appointed a day for the formal execution of this intention, and gathered the requisites for a feast, to which they invited all their friends and relatives. When I received intelligence of this, I sued one of the Christians who owed me a sum of money, and in accordance with the order of the Magistrate, all the requisites of the feast prepared for their brethren (before they were cooked) were attached and taken into his custody until my claim should be adjusted. When they saw this turn of affairs all the members of the caste (Chamars) came together, and the Christians, contrite and ashamed, came to me and asked forgiveness for their sin. I replied to them in terms of mingled reproof and comfort, and had them all placed on the list of probationers again. When I went to Hetam Sarai again I found all the people who were not Christians very much displeased with me. Seizing me by the hand they put me outside their house, spoke very harshly, and in every way obstructed my work. Unable to effect anything I returned back to my house.

After a little reflection I appointed a meeting at the house of a Christian brother, where we again began to sing, pray, and preach as usual.

At first none but Christians attended, but after a few days we were surprised to see non-Christians hovering around the outskirts of the little congregation, and little by little several persons joined with us in singing and prayer.

Now all have become our friends, except one family. All who were formerly Christians are now established in Christ, and several families of inquirers are so advanced that they observe many externals of Christianity with all their hearts, and indeed are better than many (professed) Christians, but they do not break caste, nor receive baptism.

REV. J. MUDGE,
REV. I. FIELDBRAVE,		Native Pastor.

BAZAAR PREACHING.—This has been carried on systematically and with good results. As a rule, congregations are large, and much attention is paid to the preaching. We can refer to at least one convert thus reached—a Hindoo, who heard the Word in Rakabgunge bazar, and accompanied the preachers home, renouncing his old religion the same day. He was baptized subsequently, and is doing well. We have found it a good plan to give an afternoon and evening to a certain mohulla, taking our whole preaching force; preaching at several places until dark, and then holding a night meeting in our School-house. Such services have been held several times during the year at our various appointments in the city.

The local melas, as well as the Mahadeo and the Bithoor melas, have been attended by the Native helpers and the preacher in charge.

THE NATIVE CHURCH.—The Pastor has given a great deal of time to visiting the people at their homes, and in holding neighborhood prayer meetings. The usual Sabbath and week-day services have been held. A special service at Easter, and several series of evangelistic meetings have awakened interest and have done good. We have lost several members by removal; but others have come, and with new converts, we close the year with 90 members. Including children, our Christian community numbers 200. The Church has given about Rs 12 per mensem towards the support of its Pastor, and has paid for current expenses, as well as some extras. During the year there were 27 baptisms of whom 11 were adults (five Hindoos and six Mahomedans). During the latter part of the year a good many inquirers have come to us: but these, in India, need never be counted. Some, we trust will yet be baptized.

Early in the year a Hindustani Temperance Society was organized, including among its members Christians, Hindoos and Mahomedans. Three public meetings have been held and 48 signatures to the Total Abstinence pledge secured. An "Improvement Society" (Anjuman-i-Taraqqi) has also been organized, which has held monthly meetings in which papers and essays have been read by members of the Native Church, and various practical subjects discussed.

A good degree of interest continues to be manifested at Saadat Gunge, especially among low caste people, who hear our preaching gladly and attend our services regularly. This field is under the special supervision of Rev. T. Craven, who has had the pleasure of baptizing several people from it during the year.

DAY-SCHOOLS.—There are 11 of these, with an enrolment of about 750. The hard times have interfered to a certain extent with the success of the schools, so far as attendance is concerned. Our highest school is not as well managed as it should be, and hence we lose (and have for years) our best scholars. During the year a greatly needed school building was erected in the centre of Sadar bazar. This serves also for Sunday-school, lectures, and preaching. A small building with ground attached was also purchased in Char Bagh. As usual, the Bible is taught in all the schools.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.—These have suffered somewhat on account of the paucity of teachers, but no school has been closed. The International Lessons have been regularly and successfully used. At the competitive examination at the close of the year, three boys, one from the central (English) Sunday-school, and two Hindoos, recited the lessons for the year perfectly, while 11 other boys (one Christian and 10 non-Christians) passed the second class examination. Diplomas and other prizes were given to all these. Not a few boys, we are glad to say, are present every Sunday: and the continued interest they take in the Sunday-school as an institution and in the lessons assigned them greatly encourages us in the work.

For several years past, every year some good friend (in India or at home), has kindly remembered this Lucknow Sunday-school work by making a liberal donation, and thus enabling us to carry it on. This year our thanks are due to A. McGechie Esq., of Edinburgh, formerly connected with the work.

The Christmas fete was held in Badshah Bagh, and was a success, as it usually is. Bishop Bowman presided on the occasion and favored us with an address.

THE CENTENNIAL SCHOOL.—This Boarding school for Christian boys has had a prosperous year. The enrolment has been 86 as compared with 26 during the preceding year: the average attendance has been about 50. A commodious, well located building has been purchased and occupied; additional teachers employed: and from present indications the school (the only one of its kind in the North-West Provinces and Oudh) will be both popular and useful. Now that dormitories are ready and other preparations made, we anticipate a large attendance, and are glad to know that the school is no longer an experiment.

Work among educated natives has been carried on by Babu Ram Chandra Bose, and with some degree of success. Mr.

Bose delivered a second course of lectures in the Mission Chapel in the early part of the year. These were well attended, especially by the students of Canning College, and called out considerable discussion. He has also delivered lectures in Urdu in several of the city school-houses, the rooms on several occasions being crowded. As last year, Mr. Bose has visited a number of the prominent cities of the North-West Provinces, spending a week or more at a place, and lecturing or preaching as opportunity offered. We believe that he has thus done a great deal of good among his educated fellow-countrymen. He reports that the outlook is hopeful for his special work. Our thanks are due to the friends who have defrayed his traveling expenses.

SITAPUR.

REV. J. E. SCOTT, Missionary.

THE work on Sitapur circuit during the year 1878, has been carried on from three centres, namely, Sitapur, Khairabad, and Misrik, of which places we shall write in order, giving a short account of each.

I. SITAPUR.—Simon Jacob, a young man who graduated from the Bareilly Theological School in 1876, and was appointed to this his first work in 1877, is pastor of the Church, which at this writing contains twenty-two members and probationers, with a total of forty native Christians who attend the services. Three Hindu young men, one of them a Brahmin, students of the Sitapur High School, attended the Sunday services with Bibles in their hands, manifesting great interest in all the exercises during the greater part of the year. Truly a great moral change is taking place among the youth of the land. The hope of India is in her young men. Five village grade schools, three for boys and two for girls, one of the latter being taught by a Christian woman, and attended by the women and children in the missionary's compound, as well as by persons outside, the whole having an attendance of one hundred and twenty-three, with an average attendance of ninety-nine, in all of which the Bible, Catechism, and Christian hymns and songs are taught, constitute the weekday work among the rising generation at this appointment. These boys and girls, together with the native Christians and Missionary's non-christian servants, making a total of one hundred and thirty-eight, regularly attend the Sunday-schools at their respective places, and come together in the chapel quarterly for review and distribution of prizes. The Sunday-school papers published at our Press, are found to be a great help in keeping up an interest in the schools. The Berean Lesson Leaves are used with success in the Christian schools, but are not practicable among the non-christian village boys at this place. The whole cost of these secular and religious schools has been Rs. 31 per month, or 8 annas and 6 pie per pupil.

Five days in the week there has been preaching in the Sitapur bazaar and surrounding villages, with encouraging success. In one village, Dhanaq, there are a number of earnest enquirers. The people do not oppose the Gospel, as in many places, but listen willingly and attentively. During the year meetings for educated natives have been held statedly in the chapel, which have been well attended. During the visit of Babu R. C. Bose, who gave a series of lectures to them, quite a lively and hearty interest in spiritual matters was manifested, (one Babu, the Head-master of the Government High School, even wept during the singing of "The Ninety and nine,"), and since then the homes and hearts of these people are open to our teaching. The missionary held services in English during part of the year, officiating as chaplain of the 92nd Gordon-Highlanders, in the absence of the regular chaplain. These services were held in the station church and regimental prayer-room, and were seasons of profit. There have been 10 baptisms at this appointment during the year.

II. KHAIRABAD.—Peter Gray has been stationed in this old Mahomedan city during 1878, preaching in the bazaar and villages in the evenings and mornings, and teaching religious subjects in the Mission school during the forenoon of three days of each week. Such is the fear of Christianity among these bigoted Mahomedans, that when he commenced to teach the Catechism and Lord's Prayer sixty boys left in one day. When they saw that repeating words would not change their religion, and that such religious teaching would go on, in three days they were all back but ten. There are seven native Christians residing here, five of whom are communicants. One person has been baptized. Babu George Mayal has charge of the middle grade Mission school. This school has 100 on the roll, with an average attendance of 86. It has five teachers, and seven classes. The expenses for the year have been Rs. 1,068, of which Rs. 420 have been received from the Government. The boys meet weekly for religious instruction.

III. MISRIK.—This is a Hindu town of 600 inhabitants, many of whom are Brahmins, and is 13 miles from Sitapur, surrounded at convenient distances by other large towns, thus making a good centre for evangelistic work. A public bazaar can be reached each day in the week, and here, and at the adjacent town of Nimkhar, melas are frequently held. During a recent camping tour, the Missionary dined with a zemindar of the place, and on Sunday preached twice in his house and administered Sacrament to the Christians, members of the little Church growing up in the district. The people are very friendly and there are several earnest enquirers. Munshi Pliny Nickerson has been at work here since 1876.

On the whole work there are five local preachers, 15 members, 14 probationers, and 20 children. The native Christian population is 60. There have been 11 baptisms during 1878 and 20 during the last two years. The work is hopeful. There is no cause for down-heartedness or despondency. Faith looks up and beyond, to a time of abundant harvest. During the year the Missionary has been over the whole field, and has preached in many of the towns and villages. The last two and a half months of the year, have been spent in camp. At Misrik 150 people, the half of them seated, listened quietly to the Gospel for two hours. At Bari, the people assembled in a grove, at a threshing floor after night, and sat on daris for an hour and a half, to hear our songs and Christian teaching. And thus the seed is being sown : and the harvest will come.

ROY BAREILLY.

REV. J. T. McMAHON, Missionary.

SCHOOLS.—THE partial famine has had a bad effect upon our schools. People who in ordinary times were able to send their children to school, were, under the pressure of want, obliged to have their boys work to help them through the hard times. I have had to close three village schools owing to the famine; and the four remaining ones show a very poor average attendance. One school I close to-day, owing to the negligence of the teacher. On examining three of the schools I found that the amount learned was not up to other years. This is accounted for by the fact that the boys have not been so regular as other years in their attendance. Many have staid out two or three weeks from school during the sowing or reaping time, or to work for a month or so, and then have returned to their studies. Then, too, there has been some fault found, and some fears entertained by the parents, at the amount of Bible teaching done in the schools. A boy repeating texts of Scripture and singing Christian songs morning and evening at home is sure to cause some alarm in the family and a good deal of discussion among the neighbors. From the first I tell the parents that my object is to overthrow idolatry and make their children Christians. At first this plan makes them draw off, but when once a school is started under these conditions, there is but little trouble. The city schools, a main school, and two branches, have suffered somewhat from the famine, but are now doing very well.

There are now seven boys' schools, and three girls' schools.

Sunday-schools are eight, as many as we have teachers for. Two of these are girls' Sunday-schools, and about thirteen girls besides are in our Chapel Sunday-school. Major Orr, Mr. Brockman, and Mr. Roberts have helped as teachers more or less during the year, to whom we tender our thanks. Also to Mrs. Bird for teaching the little girls for the last two and a half months. There are three young men who, although done with school, still continue to attend Sunday-school.

Sunday morning English, and afternoon Hindustani, preaching has been carried on regularly during the year, except that the English was omitted three times while I was at the hills for a month, and once while in camp. The average attendance has been less than last year—about 15 or 16 only; last year 20. Two regular attendants have removed from the station, and no others have come in their places. Two or three have fallen into sin, and are not willing to obey the seventh Commandment, hence stay away. I cannot promise them to abstain from preaching on this commandment. If I could, I would have more hearers.

The Hindustani Sunday service has about 11 average attendance.

Evening services are a Hindustani prayer meeting attended by five or more persons, a teachers' Sunday-school meeting attended by eighteen or more. Many of our older boys come to this of their own accord, and an English service, which of late is followed by a class-meeting attended by four or five only. Mr. Groves had it in his house before and during the rains and now Mrs. Bird—a Methodist, an old-fashioned one too—has it in her house.

Camping has been done to the extent of about 270 miles to which add 30 miles of going and coming to and from villages and bazars, and you have 300 miles travelled. The most of this was done on foot.

The sale of Scriptures and Tracts has been as good as could be expected, considering the hard times. Everywhere we are well received, and at a recent mela a man bought three books for his boys, saying that they might as well read both sides of the case, so as to know what to do, and to choose the right.

I was pleased in this same mela to see the common people take sides with us, against their own priests.

In several cases I have noticed that the common people have begun to look with doubt upon their idols, and even upon their incarnations, declaring that it was no use to pray to Debi, Mahadeo, Ram, Shri Krishna, etc., but that prayer should be offered to Ishwar. This loss of faith in priests and gods is not alone among the poor who have been the great sufferers from this false worship; but the rich are sharing in this unbelief. Three brother bankers having banks in Cawnpore, Calcutta, etc., living in Nagar in the Unao district, have discharged their Pandits (five or six in all) and now for several months have refused to be ruled by priests.

After the rains fever was very prevalent, and the Civil Surgeon, Dr. Mulvany, gave me quinine to distribute. This has made us still more friends, and given the people more confidence in us, and given us a chance to say a word for the Master to some whom we otherwise might not have met.

Inquirers are as scarce as needles in a hay loft. Still I have a Mahomedan boy whom I am teaching. For several months he has been willing to be baptized. I have thought it right to continue to teach him until such time as he shall show some change of heart or at least express a desire to become a new creature in Christ Jesus. Our sweeper was formerly a hard drinker, but of late has broken this habit, and is leading an upright life. It really seems that a work of grace is going on in his heart. His wife quietly remarked that if he became a Christian she would take her three children and jump into the well. Now I do not want to drink such well water, hence I am not urging him so much as I am trying to have her taught. Salome now teaches the compound women daily. The servants are taught almost daily, so that they have a very good idea of the New Testament, and know a little of the Old. But as yet only this poor sweeper has shown any signs of the Word having done any good.

We return thanks to the friends in Roy Bareilly for their aid and sympathy during the year, and to God, the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit we would ever give thanks for having been given a place in the work, and for all the mercies which have been given us from day to day.

GONDA AND BAHRAICH.

REV. H. MANSELL, Missionary.

WE have given a year of honest, earnest work to this Circuit, and God has been with us.

The Native preachers have been kept in health, and they have wrought energetically and faithfully for the Master all the year. With one exception, they have been kept from falling into sin.

The Native Christians have generally been exemplary in their lives. These are not enough in numbers to make themselves felt much, but they must make up in purity, in spirituality, what they lack in numbers.

Of the ten adult baptisms reported, four were here in Gonda, and the remaining six in Ellenpur. Of the four baptized here, one went away about five weeks afterwards and has not been heard of since.

The School-work has been carried on as honestly as usual, but three schools have now to be closed for want of funds, so the numbers are less this year than last. They are all Mission schools, and the boys learn much of Christianity in them.

The Sunday-schools have fallen off some in numbers, but it is chiefly owing to the closing of the three day schools mentioned above. I have tried to keep up a class in English in the Gonda Sunday-school, but it is very fluctuating, sometimes numbering fifteen, sometimes only three. Our festival for the Gonda and village Sunday-schools was a very successful affair, and the competition in reciting Lesson Papers, Hymns, Catechism, etc., etc., displayed an amount of Scripture knowledge surprising and encouraging to hear from Hindu and Mahomedan boys.

Bazar Preaching has been pushed energetically and very systematically all the year at all the stations. In Gonda often it has seemed to be making most profound impressions. Several times persons have said boldly in the bazar that they believed these things concerning Jesus that "He is the only Saviour of sinners." I have all the year been urging our preachers to associate more with the people, talk with them of all their interests, make friendship with them, and from this vantage ground, preach Jesus to their hearts as the very friend they need. I have done some such visiting myself, and it encourages me to think the plan a good one.

Itinerating has been confined by want of funds to necessary visits to the out-stations, and one trip to Ajudya mela, "Katikanahan," and visits by our Native preachers to several other smaller melas. We and our brethren are always listened to with great respect, and we are sure the Word will produce its effect.

HURDUI.

REV. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

THE work of this district has been going on steadily during the past year.

Visitations have been made regularly to the outlying stations of Shahabad, Sandee, Roodamou, Mulava, and Shekhpore, which are under our care. Although there has been no outward professions of Christianity, still numbers gather round our preachers and listen with attentive ear to their teachings, leading us to hope that some at least of these hearers may subsequently become en-quirers, and ultimately having become convinced of the error of their ways, turn to the one true and living God.

SCHOOLS.—There are three boys' schools in this circle at which the number of pupils aggregates 60. The children are all of Hindoo parentage, and are taught in the Hindee language. The subjects in which they principally receive instruction and on which most care and attention is devoted, are those of a religious character. The Church Catechism, the New Testament, (St. John's Gospel) and Hymns, form their chief studies. These pupils also attend the Sunday-schools and have made much improvement in every department of their studies.

COLPORTEURS.—There are two of these, who are supported by the Bible Society. In addition to their duty of selling Scriptures and Tracts, etc., these brethren are ever ready to speak a few words in season in their Master's cause. They are thus the means of doing much good in the station.

PREACHERS AND EXHORTERS.—The zeal with which these faithful brethren performed their work during the preceding year has been as strong as ever in the present year. They continue to resort to bazars and villages, addressing the natives in mohullas and at public gatherings on the subject of man's salvation, entering into religious discussions whenever necessary, and endeavoring to convince the multitudes that there is but one way to obtain forgiveness of sins, and that is through the blood of Christ.

The church which was in course of construction last year, has now been completed, and services are held in it regularly every Sabbath morning and evening, besides meetings during the week. The situation of the building has been found to be very desirable, for, being contiguous to the most frequented road at Hurdai, vis., that leading to the bazar, people are always passing and re-passing, and being attracted by the sound of music (our hymns of praise) are tempted to enter the building, where they linger through a good portion of the service, listening attentively to all they hear, and picking up a stray seed which may perhaps by God's blessing yield fruit hereafter.

The building contains a large hall, in which the services are held, and four small side rooms, one intended for the Library, another for the accommodation of visitors, the others for the purpose of teaching the girls as zenana workers: at present these small side rooms do not answer the purposes for which they were originally intended, being occupied by the Preacher-in-charge.

A sum of Rs. 600 has been expended for the construction of the building, of which amount Rs. 100 were granted by the Mission contingent fund, and Rs. 200 were raised by subscription. The building fund is in debt.

RESIDENCE FOR MINISTER.—Such a building was in existence before, and stood in the Mission Compound, but it fell in during the last heavy rains, and there are no funds available for the construction of another building, not even for the removal of the debris of the fallen house. The missionary is necessarily forced to occupy the small side rooms of the church building as noticed above, which are hardly sufficient for the accommodation of himself and his family. It would be a great boon if a grant of Rs. 300 should be obtained for the purpose of constructing a new building in the same old place, exclusively for the accommodation of the Preacher-in-charge and his family.

NATIVE CHURCH.

THERE is no portion of the large field within the limits of our Mission which has received so small a share of direct evangelistic labour as Cawnpore and the surrounding district. This station was first occupied by us in 1871. It is a center of far more than ordinary interest. The city is large and the district populous. With rare exceptions itinerations among the villages have been unknown; still the people of both city and village assemble readily and in large numbers to listen with seeming interest, giving good attention to the preaching of the gospel. There is, too, quite an encouraging spirit of inquiry after the truths of Christianity. Here where the passions of men, both Hindoos and Mohammedans were at white heat in 1857, many persons of these two religions are now coolly and calmly studying the words and admiring the life of the Prince of Peace. The Bithoor mela, 12 miles above Cawnpore city, and on the bank of the sacred (but very muddy) Ganges, is one of the best preach-

The character of the congregation is as encouraging as its number. It is made up largely of the students in the two Memorial Schools here. These boys and girls, and young men and women, will help to make up the rising generation of Europeans and Eurasians in this country, which will greatly influence India all through the future for good or evil. The other members of the congregation are from among the civil, military, and merchant classes; and these by their dealings with the natives in their professional and business duties, become an inestimable help or an irreparable hindrance to the missionary cause in this land. This congregation has been of great moral help to the local work in Cawnpore. Leaving out of the question the good general influence which the preaching of the Gospel has upon a community, as well as of providing a convenient religious service for the mission families stationed here, our Church has been of incalculable benefit to the natives living within our direct influence. Many pleasing incidents have come to our knowledge of members of this congregation beginning to have prayers with their domestics, and to treat them generally as Christian masters should their heathen servants. And also of their treating Native Christians with more kindness and courtesy, and helping them with their active sympathy and prayers. Some of the boys in the Memorial School, who were converted during the year, have gone regularly on Sundays to teach in the native Sabbath-schools in the city. And to further illustrate the help this congregation gives to our native work in Cawnpore, I may mention that one influential member has procured a site from Government on which to erect a much needed native chapel, while another has given a handsome donation with which to begin building. This congregation has also been of great financial aid to our local work here. During the year it has subscribed or given the following sums: Rs. 1,071, for the native church in Cawnpore; Rs. 197 for the native poor of all creeds in Cawnpore, which has had a very beneficial effect upon the natives generally; Rs. 207 to keep the Mission property in repair, and pay the monthly current expenses of the church; Rs. 120 for the general Missionary Society of the M. E. Church (Rs. 70 of this sum were for the year 1877, and Rs. 50 for 1878); over Rs. 1,000, for the enlargement of the church, which has happily been completed; and Rs. 1,500 towards the Pastor's salary. The giving of this amount (Rs. 3,131) for local and general purposes argues well for the spiritual prosperity of this congregation.

During the year two services have been regularly conducted on the Sabbath, and one regular service on every Thursday evening. A class-meeting has also been conducted by the Pastor every Tuesday evening, and Bible-classes every Monday and Saturday evenings by Dr. J. H. Condon. Cottage prayer-meetings here and there in the station have likewise been held by members of the Church. Regular visiting at the homes of the members of the congregation has been kept up through the year by the Pastor. We cannot sum up the good all these meetings have done; but some have been converted, others quickened and revived, and many built up and made strong in their most holy faith. The average attendance on Sundays has been about 300 souls.

The membership of the Church numbers 41, and the probationers 8, making a total of 49. Some of the members are away in other stations, and visit Cawnpore only occasionally; but from what we hear of them they are trying all they can in their respective places to make known the love of Christ to others. The resident members in the station have generally given us much encouragement and moral aid with their kind sympathy and by their consistent walk and conversation. Many of the official members especially have rendered us much efficient help in time, money, and labor.

The Sabbath-school has been conducted immediately after the morning service, and is principally made up of the boys and girls and young persons attending the two Memorial Schools: though a goodly number also comes from the civil and military lines. At the close of the year there were 170 names on the books, with an average attendance through the year of 121. Incalculable good has been done in this school during the past year. It owes its success, next to the grace and blessing of God, to the very able management of its Superintendent Dr. J. H. Condon, and to the earnest prayerful labors of the 19 teachers under him. The collections during the year of Rs. 226, speak well, too, for this school.

In addition to his other labors, the Pastor has not neglected the native work. He has gone regularly to the bazaar and ghats of the city with the native preachers, and assisted them to the best of his ability in the all-important work of preaching Christ to the heathen. In November last he went to the Bithoor mela with the native brethren, and in union with them and several missionaries preached to large crowds of listening natives three or four times every day as long as he remained there. He has also had charge of the Colportage work during the year. Two men have been employed, a number of outlying villages visited, and about 463 copies of God's Word sold to inquiring natives.

BARA BANKI.

ENOCH JOEL, Local Preacher.

THE work in Bara Banki has been carried on by two native helpers. They have preached regularly in the streets of the city and visited the bazaars and melas in the neighbouring villages.

Their preaching has been well received by the people. Many have said "These words are true; we are indeed sinners and need salvation." Many others have been found who regularly read the Bible and believe it to be God's word, although they have not joined the Christian community.

A colporteur in the pay of the North India Bible Society is at work in the district, and has sold and distributed many copies of God's word.

There are three schools in the station: two for boys and one for girls, aggregating a total of 76 pupils. The advancement of the scholars in knowledge of Scripture truth and their willingness to learn give great encouragement.

The European residents of the station have materially aided the work with their contributions, for which thanks are hereby recorded.

Whereas we have learned from reliable sources that the Board of Trustees of the "Minard Home," Morristown, New Jersey, U. S. A., in view of their inability to carry out the original plan of making this institution a home for the orphan daughters of deceased Ministers of the Conference in America and the daughters of Missionaries in the foreign field, owing to financial pressure, are disposed to set it apart as a home, temporary or permanent, for the families of foreign Missionaries during their periods of furlough in the United States, thereby providing them a furnished home in a desirable locality.

Therefore Resolved (1) that if the proper authorities should find it practicable to make such an arrangement, we greet with favor such a step and express our gratitude for the interest thereby manifested in our comfort and welfare.

2. That we hereby pledge ourselves to do anything in our power to make this arrangement a success.

I. ON AUDITING.

THE accounts of the Treasurer and of the Presiding Elders have been examined and found correct. The balance in the Treasurer's hands, on General Mission Account, is $6,477.87½. Contingent account, Rs. 68-11-3.

II. ON PUBLISHING.

THE publishing interests of our Conference are still growing in importance and influence. Several instances of conversion by reading our books have been heard by the committee, and this is the best of all.

One of the books which has brought souls to Christ is the "Dharm Churcha," written by Dr. Thoburn when in Paori. We call attention to that book, and ask if some are not called to write incisive little tracts dealing directly with the hearts of these people and designed to lead at once to clear and pungent conviction for sin in the search for salvation.

Manuscripts of Theological and Exegetical works, etc., are, as we expected and are thankful for, coming, worthy and carefully prepared, from the Theological School. Some of these have been mentioned in the report of the Superintendent of the Press. Also MSS. of Sunday School books are coming in well. One prepared by Miss Blackmar we have just passed. It is a most excellent book and, illustrated as it is, cannot fail to be attractive and we hope very useful.

We have examined and passed to the Superintendent of the Press various MSS.

The following as yet remain in our hands :

1. "Flavia" and } by Rev. B. H. Badley. Stories of
2. "Glaucia" } the early Christians : excellent.
3. Dharm Sar Itihas. J. Barker.
4. Dharm Updes. Isa Das.
5. Khutut, for children. J. Barnabas.

6. Yisu Haikal men. Miss Jore.
7. Treatise on the Trinity. Rev. D. W. Thomas.
8. Several smaller tracts.

All our Periodicals are doing good, and we commend them to all, and especially urge our Conference members to exert themselves in securing a yet wider circulation for them, especially the Witness and Krukab-i-Hind.

The full report read by our Press Superintendent covers all the ground usually occupied by Publishing Committee's report, and renders further report from us unnecessary. We hope as was done last year, it may be printed in our reports.

III. ON TEMPERANCE.

Whereas, we, being a company of professedly holy men engaged in a holy cause, and desiring to "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit," we look upon the use of tobacco as a filthy, expensive, useless, and injurious habit, and the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage, as physically and morally wrong, opposed by science, reason, and the Word of God, therefore,

Resolved.—1. That we discountenance by our example and practice, and express our opinion and cast our influence against the use of tobacco, in any of its forms.

2.—That whenever we administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper to our congregations we will, when possible, use unfermented wine, and when done in the presence of non-Christians we will explain its signification.

3.—That as we read our General Rules we impress upon our membership that clause in which it is written that "it is expected that all who continue with us should avoid drunkenness, buying and selling spirituous liquors, or drinking them, unless in cases of extreme necessity," and that for its violation any member can be expelled.

IV. ON EDUCATION.

PART FIRST.

THE Educational Committee beg leave to report the following resolutions :—

1. Resolved, that Preachers in charge be requested and instructed to pay particular attention to the education of poor Christian youth, and wherever possible to establish primary schools in which they shall be taught the rudiments of a vernacular education ; and where this is not practicable that such children shall be sent to our schools in the Sadder stations as boarders, and that in these schools they shall receive a primary education at a cost not to exceed Rs. 2 per mensem for board. Provided, also that village boys of moderate ability shall not be kept in school away from home, so long as to unfit them to be farmers and mechanics. Parents to provide at least clothing.

2. Resolved, that this Conference do hereby empower and instruct the Educational Committee to prepare and enforce such sanitary regulations in the Orphanages and Boarding schools, as shall prevent these institutions from becoming overcrowded and keep them, as far as possible, free from disease and sickness.

3. We are more than ever convinced of the necessity of connecting the Native Church with the material interests of this country with a view to ultimate self-support. Therefore,

(1.) Resolved, that the Superintendents of the Orphanages are hereby instructed to make such arrangements as shall make it possible for every boy committed to their charge to learn a trade of some kind, and which shall necessitate every girl being familiar with and able to perform the ordinary household duties of a native woman.

(2.) Resolved, further, that for the benefit of the native Christian boys who are not in the Orphanage, the Rev. D. W. Thomas be requested to take into consideration the project of an industrial school, in which boys shall be taught to read, write and keep accounts in some dialect of the vernacular, and at the same time to learn some mechanical trade whereby each boy may fairly earn his own living.

4. Resolved, that we heartily recommend that in our Orphanages and native Boarding schools only the most promising children be allowed to study English ; and we hereby instruct the managers of such schools to use great care and firmness in enforcing this recommendation.

PART SECOND.

THERE are six institutions under the supervision of the Mission, and it is the duty of the Educational Committee at some time during each year to visit these, and not only examine the school classes, but to look into the general management, and also to suggest, advise, and in every way possible, promote their best interests. There are many other excellent schools within the bounds of our Mission, and under the charge of the Missionaries, but these are more local, and more entirely under the control of those in immediate charge.

The six above-named are, the Theological Seminary and Normal High School, Bareilly; the Memorial School, Cawnpore; the Cawnpore Girls' School; the Centenary School, Lucknow; and the Boys' and Girls' Orphanages, the former at Shahjehanpore and the latter at Bareilly. All of these were visited by the Committee at the close of their annual sessions at the end of November and early in December, and the Committee are happy to report a good state of progress in them all. It is not their purpose to give in detail their observations, or the result of their examinations, as a very exhaustive report was published one year ago by the Educational Board; and as that report is in the hands of many, it is not necessary for us to traverse the same ground this year. A few notes and suggestions, however, will not be out of place. Taking these schools in the order given above, we first have—

THE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, AND NORMAL
HIGH SCHOOL.

The Principal, Rev. D. W. Thomas, Rev. Dr. T. J. Scott, Rev. J. Thomas, Rev. M. L. Banerji, and Moulvi Shafqat Ullah, make up a strong teaching staff, and the result of the examinations was very satisfactory. There are three classes, the junior, middle, and senior, answering to the number of years the members have been in the school. The senior graduating class consisted of six young men, two of whom were adjudged worthy of a first class certificate, and the other four, second class ditto. It will be seen from the Published Report or Prospectus of the school that the course of study is quite extensive; well chosen and adapted for the training and advancement of those who are to go out and preach Christ among the Hindus and Mohamedans of India. The examination gave evidence of excellent teaching and fair work in the various studies, particularly in view of the amount of ground gone over.

The financial condition of the school is shown in the report of the Board of Trustees, and, in view of the general depression in business both in India and America, is very encouraging. The Committee recommend the investment in India of all the available endowment funds, and the employment of a responsible man as agent or overseer of the property, who may take the burden of secular work largely off the hands of the Principal, and yet be under his direction and control.

MEMORIAL SCHOOL, CAWNPORE.

Of this institution, J. H. Messmore writes: "I visited Cawnpore frequently during the year, and at each visit saw something of the school and increased my acquaintance with it. I also attended the examinations at the close of the year, and was able to observe closely the state of the school. I found the masters and pupils enthusiastic and interested in their work, and the classes passed good examinations. The moral tone of the school is excellent. In every particular, the past year has been one of most encouraging success to the institution."

CENTENNIAL SCHOOL, LUCKNOW.

Rev. B. H. Badley, who has had charge of this school, as its Principal, though his name does not appear thus in the appointments for 1878, has had a year of great success both in the growth of the school, the work done, the moulding of the material into shapes and the receiving of buildings for the school and boarding departments. Most excellent quarters have been secured by the purchase of a building near the Koshan-ud-Dowlah kothi, between Kaiser Bagh and Aminabad. This place is well-fitted both for school purposes, and for the boarding of those sent here to remain. The school has been well attended, the number on the rolls at the close of the year being 72. The number of boarders is 7, and of day-scholars 65.

The examination of the classes, though very brief, was very satisfactory, and this school, though yet in its infancy, bids fair to meet a great demand on the part of many.

BOYS' ORPHANAGE, SHAHJEHANPORE.

The extraordinary influx of boys from all parts, owing to the famine which has devastated parts of the N.-W. Provinces, has thrown much heavy work and a deal of care on the Superintendent during the past year. But at its close, the Orphanage is found to be in good condition, the examination of the school showing well for an Orphanage school, and the work accomplished by all, both by the teachers and by the Superintendent, Dr. Johnson, as well as on the part of the boys, very satisfactory. We are glad to find that a larger number of the boys are now thought more fit for farmers and mechanics than for scholars, teachers, and preachers. The move in this direction is right, and can hardly be carried too far. Good farmers and mechanics, real Christians, are more needed just now, than poor imitations of Christian teachers and preachers. Let Panahpore become a strong Christian colony of fairly intelligent farmers, and Lodipore a hive of genuine Christian mechanics, and we shall see that the world moves and moves faster to the solution of one of its great problems.

THE GIRLS' ORPHANAGE, BAREILLY.

The past has been a year of extraordinary interest in the institution; much of this interest has been of the saddest nature. We do not refer to the failure of crops, the scarcity of food, and the hardness of the times, but to the visitation of cholera, which swept away within a few months nearly one-third of the number usually reported on the rolls. The most of those who thus suddenly sickened and died, were from among the newcomers, those who had found an asylum from want and famine, there, and a pleasant home. The detailed account of this may be found in the report of Miss Cary, the Superintendent. The large influx of girls gives increased expenses, and additional care.

The examination of the classes gave very satisfactory results, and it is surprising that amid the accumulated difficulties and discouragements of the year, so much good teaching could be done, and so fair a record shown at the close of the year.

It is the clear conviction of the Committee that much less time, effort, and expense should be given to the impartation of English, and more to a good grounding in the vernaculars, and

As low as are the charges, and high the prices of food, there are some who ask for a reduction of rates, and refuse to send their children because such reduction cannot be made, without involving the school hopelessly in debt. It is difficult, if not impossible, to convince such persons that all schools are not established for the purpose of making money. The general distress and scarcity of food grains has added to our difficulties in steering clear of added indebtedness during the year.

The health of the boys has been excellent throughout the year; no serious visitation of any kind of disease, neither epidemic or contagious—though in many schools we have heard of their sad ravages.

The endowment of three scholarships by H. Petman, Esq., one of the Trustees of the school, has enabled us to place three orphan boys, of good promise, in the way of getting a good education. The three scholarships are filled for the present,—though applicants enough for double the number of vacancies, desiring to be put on the foundation, have sought aid thus. Will not some other good, kind Christian friend, with means at hand, endow a like number of scholarships? Treasure may be laid up in heaven thus.

The attendance on the part of many of the boys at the Lucknow Meetings during the Dasehra holidays, proved of great spiritual benefit to them. We number among the boys, large and small, not a few who live the life and do the work of real Christians. Some of them manifested their earnestness and desire for Christian work, by going each Sabbath day to the Hindustani Sunday-schools in the city to teach and sing, as also in other ways, by increased zeal and earnestness.

We very much need a good man from home sent out for this special work; one who may be a Missionary only so far as teaching is Missionary work—a man of culture and good abilities, one who is an enthusiastic teacher, and able to take over management of the school, and set a Missionary free for other work. We have good hope that the promise given us by Bishop Bowman may be realized at an early date, and that he may be able to send us such a man.

The almost uniform good conduct of the young men and boys attending the school, has been very gratifying. All attend the services at Union Chapel, twice on Sabbath, and also the week-day service on Thursday. Besides this, they are members of the Sabbath school, as teachers or scholars, and many meet for prayer in a room by themselves, or with some one in charge.

The progress in study has been excellent on the part of most of the boys, as the examination at the end of the term in November showed. The Report of the Conference Examination Committee is found elsewhere. Prizes of good value, were given to the more successful, during the closing exercises of the school, when the citizens of the place came to hear the recitations, songs, report, etc., and to cheer both pupils and teachers by their presence.

Three boys were most successful, as may have been seen in the public prints, in passing the Examination for Entrance in the Training Institution for Mechanical Engineers at Dehree-on-Sone. Two or three passed successfully the examination for the subordinate Medical Department, but were afterwards informed that the color-line must be drawn somewhere, and it was drawn at them. Two went up for the Accounts Branch of the Public Works Department Examination, but the result is not yet announced. The only candidate thus left for the Calcutta University Entrance Examination,—a very hopeful one, fell ill just before the close of school, and was quite unable to go up.

J. W. WAUGH,

Principal.

V. ON STATE OF THE CHURCH.

Temporally.—During the past year the famine has been a great hindrance to our work. No rain falling, there was no demand for field laborers, and no sale for shoes, cloth, etc., made by the artisan classes; hence many of our people were thrown out of work, and the suffering among them was very great. The aid given by friends in India and America, and by work provided locally, relieved to some extent, this suffering in most cases. The famine has left a burden of debt upon many that only years of toil can remove.

Our people are generally poor but industrious, and are more and more inclined to remain in their own homes rather than seek service, or wander away to some other locality. One thing more may well be mentioned under this head. Our Church is free from intemperance in drinking intoxicating drinks, or using intoxicating drugs, and the moral sentiment of the Christian community is at present very strongly against this evil.

Spiritually.—Notwithstanding all the apparent opposing influences of this year, it has been a prosperous one in the spiritual growth of our Church. Many of the native Christians in various places have experienced blessed seasons of refreshing, others who were only nominally Christians, have been born again while many from without have entered the Christian fold. Several new and encouraging openings have been entered, among which the work among the Bairagis of Bareilly and Budaon is worthy of special notice. Two hundred and fifty-seven adults have been baptized this year, and our increase in communicants is 261. Attention is called to the following suggestions concerning mission work:

1. All of our people should be united in some way to aid each other in keeping out of debt, and especially out of the clutches of the professional money lenders.

2. As our success in the past has been mostly among the classes least bound by caste, and in the villages, and has been secured by gaining an influence over a few inquiring persons, and following up this slight advantage persistently for years through family, caste and sect lines, we suggest the practicability of noting these facts, and of encouraging every laborer with us to watch carefully every inquirer of whatever class, and to form friendship with all who gladly receive the Word, and to labor prudently yet persistently with such until fruit appears.

3. Great care should be taken to retain and teach every person baptized by us, and in order that our permanent increase may be proportionate to the number of adult baptisms, every convert should be well instructed and carefully tested before baptism.

4. We suggest the propriety of making our next year's Missionary anniversary an experience meeting of our Mission work.

MEMOIRS.

REV. J. D. BROWN.

Brother Brown died at Harrisburg, Penn., February 17th, 1878.

Although he was transferred from this Conference some time previous to his death, we take this opportunity of putting on record our high estimation of his character as a Christian minister and Missionary, and that we deeply regret his loss and do hereby convey to his family our sympathy with them in their great affliction.

MRS. CHENEY.

The beautiful life which found its earthly close in Nynee Tal, on the 30th of September last, still speaketh to us of better things, and leads us onward to yet higher attainments. In full and constantly increasing usefulness, she went in and out among us, totally unconscious of the call which she was so soon to obey. Suddenly she was not, for God had taken her. Taken her from a wide sphere of usefulness for which she seemed to have every endowment of nature and of grace. And we can think of her now only as increasingly useful in the unknown and higher work to which God translated her. Her complete consecration to Him bore early fruit. Probation ended, she was taken to a higher place in the eternal activities of the kingdom of Christ.

We pay this loving tribute to her memory, and with those on whom this bereavement falls with heaviest weight, we look up and away to the everlasting hills of peace.

PRESIDING ELDERS' REPORTS.

ROHILKHUND DISTRICT.

REV. E. CUNNINGHAM, PRESIDING ELDER.

With grateful hearts we record God's goodness in preserving us and our work in the midst of a sickness that has swept away thousands in this province.

There are now in this District 8 Missionaries, 5 Native Ministers, 3 Local Deacons, 35 Local Preachers, and 35 Exhorters. Of the Local Preachers, two are farmers, one is a Government Clerk, and two are students in the Theological Seminary; of the Exhorters one is a farmer, 10 are students and two are Colporteurs. We thus have 8 Missionaries and 60 Natives of all grades who give themselves wholly to preaching and teaching the Gospel. The above mentioned 86 men form a District Conference, practically Native, whose recent examinations in studies and character, sermons and essays, discussions of live topics in the Native Church, and spirituality in devotion were exceedingly profitable and interesting. One of our Local Preachers, we regret to say, has recently been suspended.

We have a comparatively large number of uneducated men, who, though very useful in their spheres, do not furnish us with a sufficient number of recruits for the higher ranks of the Ministry. The advanced requirements for admission to the Theological Seminary will, I am convinced, give us men better fitted for our work intellectually, and though the standard is now high enough for the intelligence of the Native Christian community, I confidently expect to see it again advanced in a few years. There can be nothing more repressive to the intellectual growth of the Native Ministry than the idea that young men can be ministers with less intelligence and labor than doctors, barristers, or teachers. A good education will not raise young men above "their own people" and turn them from the Ministry into Government offices and schools or lucrative secular professions if spirituality go with it pari passu. It is sacrifice springing from the deep spirituality demanded in the first promise of the Baptistal Covenant that will push the educated young man with a small salary and hard labor into the Master's service. In some parts of the District owing to former competition with Government Schools higher salaries are paid to teachers than to preachers of equal culture, intelligence and industry. The preachers naturally feel this very keenly, as, among natives, salary indicates ability and honor. Missionaries in trying to keep the salaries of preachers within the ability of the Native Church have tacitly admitted that Pastor and Church only are to sacrifice. But in the present condition of Christianity, education is a most important aid to evangelism and a powerful baptism of the spirit upon the Native Church would probably cause teachers to see that they too must sacrifice.

There ought to be no disparity between the two classes of men. Uniformity must come from sacrifice. Sacrifice is founded on deep spirituality. The Holy Ghost and the good example of Missionaries can alone remove this difficulty.

The Statistics show an increase in the number of Christian boys attending school. There ought to be much larger appropriations for this work even at the sacrifice of some schools for non-christians. We must at best educate as many boys as there are girls in the Boarding Schools; to do this will require a much larger outlay as the education of boys is more expensive than that of girls. Government grants are much more easily obtained for girls' than boys' schools.

Less English is taught than formerly. The quality of Vernacular education is slightly improved. Still in both English and Vernacular we need better teachers. Either all our Anglo-Vernacular schools in sadr stations should have a third class or one should be added to the Normal High School. The prevalent fever has most seriously impaired the efficiency of all our schools.

The contributions of the Native Church are about the same as last year.

There has been more care in instructing enquirers before baptism. There have been revivals at different points in the District, indicating growth in the Native Church, and more spontaneous work than ever before. Bazar preaching has, in some parts of the District, taken that form called "Mohulla work," with great success.

The castes open to us, viz., Mazhabi Sikhs, Chamars, Bairagis and Mehtars are yielding more and more to the Gospel. The outlook for the future is very hopeful. A good Industrial School is a pressing want in the Christian community.

The Medical, Orphanage, School and Zenana work of the W. F. M. Society, forming a most powerful aid to the work herein-mentioned, has been carried on with great ability, zeal and success during the year. A separate Report of this work is given elsewhere.

The Reports of the several Missionaries in charge of stations appear below.

BAREILLY.

REV. G. H. MCGREW, Missionary.

FORTY-ONE fewer full members are reported from this circuit than were reported last year. This decline is due partly to removals and deaths, but chiefly to a rectification of the Church records.

There are seventy-two probationers, twelve more than were reported last year. Of these nearly twenty are only awaiting a favourable opportunity to be admitted into full membership. During the year I have baptized twelve adults and fifty-nine children. In the out-stations others are reported as ready for baptism. Our recent converts have all stood firm. The young Mahomedan mentioned in last year's report has done remarkably well. His elder brother is now a candidate for baptism.

Work has been opened among two new classes of persons during the year, viz., the Bairagis of the district and the military cooks of the station. Of the former, two men have been baptized, both of whom live in the village of Pardauli and itinerate among their former disciples.

The opening among the cooks attached to the military messes is very promising. Nine men of this class have been baptized, and two or three more are ready for baptism. Although they occupy a position full of temptation, they have thus far done very well, and promise to be very valuable accessions to the church.

Early in the year the native helper who had been stationed at Ali Ganj was transferred to Mir Ganj on the Moradabad turnpike, where there were several families of recently baptized Christians. Some Mahommedans tried to prevent him from settling in the place and drove him out of the house which had been rented for him. But when they were arrested and bound over to keep the peace their zeal quickly abated. Since then there has been no trouble in the village. The Church there in spite of sickness among its members and of discouragements occasioned by the immoral conduct of one of our irregular helpers has progressed in every way.

At Pilibheet Brother James Jordan has been doing a quiet but highly satisfactory work. This field has been faithfully cultivated for several years, with but little apparent result. The city is strongly Mahommedan, and the inhabitants are very bigoted. This year, as usual, when we began to get people interested, the devil stirred up opposition. Several families of sweepers who were ready to receive baptism were turned back by one of their own caste in Government employ. Nevertheless, three or four families are said to be waiting to be baptized.

In the territory more immediately under the supervision of Abraham Solomon good work has been done.

The interest this year has centered in the village of Pardauli, where two families of Bairagis have been baptized. Three Christian families now live in the place, and the prejudice against them is fast wearing away. During the year we opened an inexpensive vernacular school there. It has been well attended from the first, and the fees collected have amounted to 35 per cent. of the entire cost of the school. In another village in this territory a Brahmin and his family are waiting to be baptized, and there are other enquirers more or less earnest and enlightened, scattered here and there in different villages.

At Fatah Ganj where Brother Solomon lives the chief interest centers in the school. Although the attendance has increased during the year, the grant-in-aid, without previous notice and without any cause assigned, was reduced in October to Rs. 3 per mensem; the reduction to begin with the preceding April!

Work has been opened at Aonla. As usual the first baptisms have been among the sweepers. The field promises well; and we hope to be able to record large results.

In Bareilly station, the work has assumed no new or striking phase. Since the close of the rains the health of the Christian community has been considerably disturbed by the prevailing fever; but the deaths have been comparatively few. In the Orphanage although the community has been in an unsettled and somewhat crowded state owing to extensive repairs, there has been but little severe illness and comparatively few deaths.

During the year much of my own time and thought has been given to effecting the repairs just mentioned.

The schools have all been somewhat interrupted. The teacher of the sweeper school died in June, and since then no suitable person has been found to take his place. This work is important and should be revived as soon as possible.

During the rains the Sadr bazar school-house, which was built ten years ago of unburned bricks, came down. Since then the school has been occupying temporary thatched sheds. The work of re-building has been begun.

The attendance on the main school in the city has increased 30 per cent. this year, and there has been an increase of more than 40 per cent. in the amount of fees collected. It is plain that a better class of boys are coming into the school. Although two of the new teachers have passed the Entrance Examination, the late examinations have disclosed the fact that the instruction is still very far from what it should be. The Bible and the Catechism have been taught steadily throughout the year with good success. I have been able to devote an hour a day to this work. The demand for a Third Class in this school is imperative. We are sending four or five boys every year to the Government High School because we can take them no fur-

I could record many striking facts showing how an interest in Christianity is growing among the people; but lack of space forbids. One of the most curious cases is that of an old man living in Bisalpur. Although he had never heard about Christ, eight or ten years ago he began to be troubled about his soul. Two of his sons were servants in Bareilly, and from time to time he came to visit them. In going from the city to cantonments where his sons were employed he had to pass our station Church. He knew no more concerning the building than that it was used for some sort of worship; and he was too timid to make enquiries. But following a sort of blind instinct he was accustomed to ascend the steps before the closed doors, and bowing down upon them to put his face close to the hot bricks. In this posture he would remain for hours at a time. He did not pray in words; for like Moses at Horeb, he knew not the excellent name of Him who was worshipped within. But in his heart was a long-drawn aspiration after light. This singular conduct was repeated at intervals for several years. At last the Light of the world dawned upon his soul and he found peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY AND NORMAL HIGH SCHOOL.

REV. D. W. THOMAS, M. A. President.

THE number of students in this institution has been 42, of whom seven have graduated this year. The numbers on our roll would have been much larger had our Theological candidates not failed in their Entrance Examination.

Our Conference Educational Committee had during the previous year fixed the following Test Examination for Entrance, viz. "That candidates for admission into the Theological Seminary should be required to either produce certificates showing that they have passed the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University or of the Panjab University; or that they have received an equivalent education and passed in some Institution of learning in the country. Exceptions to be made only in the case of persons who give special promise of usefulness in the ministry, and they must pass an examination in the Urdu, or Hindi, equivalent to the Middle Class Departmental Examination."

This entrance Test to which some members of the Committee had objected, proved to be "ahead of our age" or too high and severe for the young men of our infant Mission, they having had but very few educational opportunities. Hence, notwithstanding the great demand for even moderately educated native preachers, the young brethren who came up for admission could not pass the test and were obliged to return home, disappointed and in a measure discouraged.

We, however, entertain a hope that some of the brethren who failed this year will have prepared themselves for the examination next year, and that we shall have a much larger class of much better prepared students.

The students now in the Institution have worked hard, and with but few exceptions have made good progress, and give promise of much usefulness.

Dr. Scott, Principal of the Theological Seminary, has continued to hold religious services once a week especially for the students, and he is leading them both by precept and example to a higher and purer life, and to an earnest desire and effort for the salvation of souls.

Brother Banerjea, besides his other teaching in both Departments, continues his daily Bible Lessons in the High School, from which we anticipate grand religious results.

The financial condition of this Institution is about as it was last year. Though some of our scholarship patrons have failed, thus far, to send us the interest on the scholarships which they had pledged, yet by rigid economy and careful personal attention to our small scholarship investment here, we hope to close the year nearly, if not quite, free from debt.

We are still praying that the Good Spirit may move some of the Lord's "good and faithful" to send us donations, especially for the endowment of Professorships.

ROHILKHUND DISTRICT.

II

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

REV. T. J. SCOTT, D. D., Principal.

THIS school was opened in April, 1872. Since then 43 graduates have been sent out. Besides these, 27 preachers have taken a partial course. Two or three of those who carried away the diploma of the Institution have turned out badly. One supports himself by teaching but continues to preach. During the past year there were two classes in the school, a class of 14 who have finished their second year and a class of 7 who have just graduated and have been appointed to fields of work, some of them in the most distant parts of our Mission. Several men of the class who have finished their second year came to the school from active work in preaching and are men of sterling worth. Most of the graduating class promise well. Eight years ago one of them was a robust boy swinging a blacksmith's hammer in our Industrial School. The thought of becoming a preacher possessed him then and he clung to his purpose till he found an opportunity to enter this school. I expect to hear a good account of Patras. Benschoff is a little mountaineer from far up in the Himalayas, and he has gone back to his mountain tribes. He will do good work. Daniel P. Kidder has become a steady, earnest worker and seems now to have the root of the matter in him. The two best students of the class are low caste men, showing how little caste has to do with mind. Nand Ram is a converted bunya (merchant) who promises very well as an evangelist. He clings to his people and often visits the villages in which his large circle of relatives and acquaintances live. Soon after his baptism they tried to kill him. Now many of them seem drawn toward him.

As to their studies I may say that most of the men have made encouraging progress. A few of them read the type of some of our text books with difficulty and do not get on so well in some studies. I have never seen students anywhere go about their studies with more avidity than most of these men manifest. An intelligent interest is shown by an almost endless number of questions. It surprises me how they discover and drag up the real difficulties, and partial or superficial answers do not satisfy them. Great freedom is given in the class-room for conversation and days are taken up sometimes in the discussion of difficult points. This is necessary too from our want of vernacular text books. We are thus reduced to Socratic and Peripatetic methods which after all suit the genius and habits of our pupils best. In view of what they begin with, the result of instruction is not altogether unsatisfactory. We hope that the fundamental points of Bible Theology are grasped by them. We aim at this rather than to spend much time in speculative or theoretic theology. Our instruction is made to rest immediately on the Bible rather than on human authority and speculation. We aim at imparting habits of study and exegetical investigation. We seek to break up the traditional habits of dependence and imitation in this people. Several of our students are pursuing Greek with a good deal of promise. Our classes were much hindered by sickness during the last months of the year.

We aim at uniting evangelistic work with study. Every student is supposed to preach at least once a week in the city bazar or among the villages. Bareilly city is laid off in districts which are assigned to bands of students. By this scheme all parts of the city hear the Gospel regularly during the hot weather. In the cool weather the surrounding villages are reached some of them by rail. This arrangement for preaching is not only a constant practical drilling for the men, but is the means also of systematically spreading the Gospel and has borne fruit in the conversion of souls. With a number of the students, I spent several days at Rajghat (one of the bathing places on the Ganges. Crowds of people listened with an intelligent interest.

I am glad to believe that the religious spirit of our pupils has improved. Many of the first pupils were taken up without careful discrimination and some had to be turned away. We are now getting a more promising class of men. One pupil was sent away during the year for quarrelling and bad temper. All see more clearly that men of blameless and devoted lives are required for the ministry, and we are learning to "lay hands suddenly on no man." Our most interesting questions in the class-room are those that start up on the subjects of conversion, holiness, and his moral life generally. In an eminent and special sense this Seminary can be made a "School of Christ."

is what the men learn to feel and be that will make this school a power in India.

The outlook for future classes is, in some respects, not very flattering. First, the class of young men that we had hoped would turn to the ministry, seem more inclined to go into secular employment. Young men of Christian parentage who have received a better education do not seem inclined to the ministry. Again, we are training men, but their future support in view of the limited appropriations from the Home Society becomes a problem. We are ready to instruct men who may afterwards look for their support in secular employment while employing as much of their time as they can in preaching.

KHERA BAJERA.

REV. T. J. SCOTT, D.D., Missionary.

THE native Christian community at this little "out station," including all ages, now numbers 37. Of these 13 are full members and 9 are on probation. The general condition of the little Church has improved during the year. Last year one disorderly member, emboldened in sin, quite overrode the native preacher. Fazl Ulla who has taken the place of that preacher, is a man of more patience as well as more nerve, and the disorderly member has been cut off and put in check.

Preaching has been kept up more effectually than last year. A number of inquirers could be baptized, but we see that it would likely render them dependent on the mission for temporal support and we are not prepared for this. Among these is a thakur family and also a brahmin family. It is sometimes very perplexing to know just what is best in such cases. The thakur insists that we take his little boy of six years old, and support and train him. Besides these families there are three or four other inquirers. I would much prefer the native preacher at this station to have full authority to settle such cases of baptism for himself and assume all responsibility in the matter.

Our school work has been reduced for want of a school for girls. In the coming year we hope to have a school that was closed. Each of these schools has a school, and this with the scriptural instruction the week makes these schools a constant training for this community. A manifest blessing is seen in this rural district being removed 30 miles from the influence of any large city, is a more promising respect than our central stations. I indulge the hope that many of these children will yet be baptized in religion now are more Christian than pagan.

Since the rains this region of country, in the large part of North India, has been scourged by fever. Some 600 have died out of that community. Three times we distributed a large quantity of medicine. Nearly all the Christians have been sick but none of them have died. Pestilence has followed famine, and in the darkest and deadliest blight of all still reigns. We thank God for increasing signs that the morning cometh.

BUDAON.

Rev. R. HOSKINS, Missionary.

Rev. MAHBUB KHAN, Native Minister.

The past year has been a fruitful one: the workers have followed out openings in new directions and won many to Christ.

At the beginning of the year a series of meetings was held in Manota with very encouraging results. A church of eight persons was organized and a Sunday-school was started. In this village live the descendants of S. W. Gardner, Esq., who came out from England forty-five years ago and became connected by marriage with the Royal Family of Dehli. Of his own immediate descendants there are some fifty persons living in the village of Manota. James Jordan, a Local Preacher, has been appointed as Pastor and we hope to utilize the influence of the family among the surrounding villages. They own three villages and are connected by various ties to many other villages. This year Cheda Lall has been preaching in Datagunge, which is a promising place in a portion of the district where I have not sought to do much heretofore. The people are very friendly and three persons are ready for baptism, one brahmin, one bairagi and one thakur. In another section of the field we have gained considerable influence among the kolis, who are weavers. Three girls of this caste were placed in our boarding school and now their friends seem much inclined to become Christians also.

Near Bilsa there is a small village in which several chumars have been baptized and many more seem inclined to Christianity. The bairagis have frequently visited the Mission House and as a body they seem inclined to join us, but being a priestly class of people they find it exceedingly difficult to earn a livelihood after becoming Christians. Before baptism they get their support by performing religious ceremonies for the chumars and maraos. Among the sweepers Christianity has taken firm root: they come forward for baptism without thought of any financial gain and many of them reckon it to be their duty to support the Gospel. I have seen more of spontaneous giving this year than ever before. I find also that the Christians are separating from their blood relatives who have not become Christians. The name Christian gives them social position and respect in the Courts and they now seek to avoid contact with their unwashed relatives.

In one place the Christians who were derived from the sweepers have become a totally distinct and separate people; they have divided the old mohulla and opened up a new entrance. Men who ten years ago were baptized and who at that time dared not enter the chaupal of the zemindar are to-day invited to come in and take a seat. I find that a very few of the baptized apostatize, many commit serious faults, but they cling to the Christian name and the great leading principles of Christianity, so that although they themselves may not reap so very much profit from Christ still their children acknowledge the obligations of Christianity and are soon brought under its spiritual influences.

Some of our converts are gathering up property very fast: four are zemindars whose united property may amount to forty thousand rupees.

Several of the non-caste converts give promise of becoming wealthy men : every year they add to their property and now as Christians, can buy and hold land in their own names ; as non-Christians their fellow townsmen would never have allowed them to possess land.

In our preaching tours this year we have made it our rule to visit the leading zemindar and preach at his place, having first requested him to gather the whole village together ; after preaching we sought out the sick and administered such simple remedies as we could conveniently carry with us. After this preaching and healing service we went to the mohalla of the non-caste people if any of them were inclined to listen to the Truth. Then in the evening we used the Magic Lantern and Scripture Views in the chaupal of the leading man of the place. We visit each place within three miles of our camp and preach in all the weekly fairs. The Magic Lantern is a capital thing to open up the way for presenting the Gospel ; it never becomes wearisome to the people and it will always attract and keep an audience at a time when no other work can well be done.

Our Sunday-schools are doing an excellent work. Every Sabbath three hundred women and girls and as many men and boys gather to listen to the Bible instruction and join in the singing. Our hymns are sung by every class of people ; they are becoming as popular as Sankey's Hymns and Songs in America.

Much more is being done in Budaon City for the women by the Bible Women than we can do for the men. Five trained women go daily to tell the message of Jesus' love ; they get nearer the people than the Preachers, and their message is sending its sweet odour of redeeming love into every section of the city.

We have been favored with three seasons of revival : the Church has been strengthened and sinners converted to God.

Thirty adults and thirty-seven children have been baptized.

MORADABAD.

REV. E. W. PARKER, Missionary.

THE Native Church has grown but little in numbers during the past year. Twelve adults have been baptized, but several have also left with letters, so that our increase has been small. Spiritual growth however is manifest, from the constant attendance on the means of grace, the increasing intelligence of the religious experiences, and the efforts of many for the salvation of others. The entire Church is divided into classes, the meetings of which are well attended. Some of these classes are small, as our people are scattered in different parts of the city; but the attendance of inquirers often makes the meetings quite full. In different parts of the city, and also in some of the villages there are some well instructed inquirers who will ere long receive baptism. Most of these are of the artizan class and are independent; a few however from the Mohammedans are kept back by the lack of any means of support, as a change of religion will deprive them of their present income.

Evangelistic work is carried on through a variety of means.

(1.) The City Sabbath service held in the school-house hall, is attended, especially during the summer months, by many non-christians who are attentive listeners. Every Sabbath brings many of these Hindus and Mahommedans. A few often attend quite regularly for months together, others attend for a few Sundays and then disappear, while many come only for a single service. Through this service the people are receiving a more correct view of what our Saviour really taught. A week's course of Evangelistic lectures delivered by Babu R. C. Bose was very well attended both by Hindus and Mahommedans.

(2.) Our Sunday-schools also serve as very efficient auxiliaries in Evangelistic work.

There are 19 of these schools in the city of Moradabad with over 800 pupils, and in the entire circuit there are 25 schools with over one thousand scholars. Of these about seven hundred are non-christian children who are being faithfully taught the truth, and are almost imperceptibly receiving it. Our largest Sunday-school numbers about 300, and along with the Christian adults and children many intelligent non-christian boys and young men are being thoroughly drilled in lessons full of Christ and His truth. The other Sunday-schools are small but are no less important as agencies for the spread of the Gospel, as through these many of the parents and friends of the children are reached. In some of these small schools the children sing with us, kneel in prayer, and repeat the Lord's prayer. Our hearts praise God daily for these children, and our earnest prayers and anxious labours are given for their salvation.

(3.) Our day-schools, are also means of spreading the truth, as in these also the Scriptures are taught, and through these many friends are gained. There are in the circuit 51 Christian, and 326 non-christian boys, and 90 Christian and 314 non-christian girls, making a total of 781 children in our day schools, receiving religious instruction.

(4.) Our Mohulla work forms another very important means of spreading the Gospel; it consists in visiting certain places in the city where there are inquirers or friends, and holding open-air meetings in front of some house or shop. There are some ten friendly wards in this city where weekly meetings are held. Many of the laymen of our Church aid in this work. Two or three go together and sitting near the house of some friend, they sing a few hymns and when the people gather around they talk, exhort, sing or pray as seems best. This work has proved very successful in two ways. It has given members of our Church work, which interests them and increases their zeal and strength, and it has brought around us many friends and inquirers who will soon be added to the workers. If all those who are now Christians can be enlisted in this work, and if those whom they teach can be led to active efforts also, we must see very encouraging success during the next ten years. For this we are organizing and working. The Christian women are also engaged in similar teaching in the day-time when the men are away from home. On the first of each month a "Leaders Meeting" is held in which all the men report what they have done and plan for another month. At the same time the women hold a similar meeting to report and consult concerning their labours. We are thus trying to train up a working Church to reach, educate, and save the heathen around us: we have perfect confidence of success in the future, while we praise God for what He has already done.

REV. H. A. CUTTING, Native Minister.

THE rainfall has been plentiful and therefore the difficulties we experienced from the famine last year do not appear, but another has come in their place, viz., malarial fever, which has been so virulent and wide spread through this district as to cause the death of thousands of people. It is very sad to think that so many souls have died in their sins without a knowledge of their Saviour. Still we thank God that His power and glory are rising like the sun upon this whole people.

In many places the people hoping to obtain deliverance from the sickness offered gifts and sacrifices to their deities, but the fever still raged. When they saw that among Christians there was little sickness and no worship of the old-time deities they wondered. One of our Local Preachers thus describes a conversation which he heard: "A Hindoo asked the headman of a village, why it was that, although the Hindus spent a great deal of money in offerings and worship the fever did not in the least abate, while the Christians did nothing of the kind and were scarcely sick at all or if they were ill soon recovered. The headman with great earnestness gave this most admirable reply, 'The anger of God rests on you because of idolatry and do you think to please Him again by worshiping images? Never. The Christians always serve the true and Living God and in sickness and trouble putting their confidence in Him use proper remedies and so His hand of healing rests upon them.' From that time the people began to have more confidence in the medicine given by the Local Preacher and to cherish greater affection for him."

It is so throughout the circuit. The people, convinced of the sympathy and love of Christians, are more and more becoming their friends. Last year during the famine all our helpers showed great sympathy for the people, and during this sickness, with the New Testament in one hand and medicine in the other, they have gone from village to village, giving at the same time medicine for body and soul.

The worst case, "All this. An ancient people like birds who visited the miners and exhort money received supported an entrusted to educated at for non-christian or teachers. Middle Class Seminary. Their clothing, education and food has declared will be a great

A Camp-meeting was held for this circuit at a central village commencing December 22nd and closing December 25th. Notwithstanding the cold the meetings were all much better attended than the most sanguine had hoped. During the last two days about three hundred Christians were present. All the arrangements of the meeting were made by the native brethren themselves, except that tents were sent from Moradabad, and all brought their own food, placing no burden upon any one. Nothing has transpired to show more clearly that the village native Christians in this circuit are beginning to realize that they are an independent community than has this meeting. In the experience meeting many referred to their trials in sickness during the fever season, and the persecution they received because they would not perform the usual idolatrous ceremonies. It was encouraging indeed to see how well these poor, unlearned men and women had stood through all this severe trial, for scattered as they are, the visits of their preacher to encourage them were not frequent. The desire is to have another meeting after the wheat is gathered, in May, as all will then have food and will not suffer from cold. One native preacher has been suspended on this circuit so that our working force is weakened. He was a man in whom we placed great confidence, a graduate of the Theological School and a faithful worker, but while his family was sick and in great distress he permitted and shared in degrading, idolatrous ceremonies for the recovery of his wife. He confessed his sin and seems very penitent and much ashamed of his foolish and sinful conduct and will doubtless rise up again a wiser and stronger man.

SAMBHAL.

REV. ZAHUR-UL-HAQQ, Native Minister.

THE Church numbers 51 members and 51 probationers. There has been a gradual improvement during the year except among the Christians at Hatam Sarae. They have again denied their Lord and Master and though in conversation they often acknowledge their fault and ask forgiveness they are not truly repentant and firmly established in Him. At Sharikpore and Rasulpore the Christians have all done well except one. At the former place as also at Surthipore a whole family have become Christians. At Gungeshri about 20 miles from Sambhal, there are two families of Christians. I visited them in October and they received me with great kindness. Here also one family received baptism and many others said they wished to become Christians. I have no doubt that this whole neighborhood of about 200 persons will soon accept Christ. I have since visited them on my return from the great mela and instructed and baptized two more families. A young man from the Theological School will be sent to them in January. I have no doubt that with proper instruction a living Church will be planted here.

The education of Christian boys has received more attention than usual this year. Two small schools have been kept up for them. That at Rasulpore has done very well all the year, but the one at Sharikpore seemed to decline after about six months.

The school for non-christians at Sambhal has improved during the year. It is better classified, the teaching is better and more religious instruction is given. There is still need of

REV. A. D. MONTAGUE,

DURING the year 36 have received baptism, 7 adults and 29 children. The usual evangelistic work has been kept up, such as bazar preaching, itinerating, and visiting melas. We have just returned from a trip to Kiratpore, Najibabad and Mandaur. At the first named place an interesting work is opening among the chumars. Yaqub has visited the place regularly during this year, and taught a small school of half a dozen boys to read Urdu and recite the Catechism. Their parents are anxious to have their children learn to read, and to receive Christian instruction themselves. A teacher has just been sent to them.

During the year greater effort than ever before has been devoted to the building up of the Native Church, and in this we have had evidence of God's blessing. The schools in Bijnour and Najibabad have each about 50 boys—the same as last year. It is impossible to raise the numbers or increase their efficiency on the small amount at present allowed for them. Some better arrangement for the education of our Christian boys was felt to be a pressing need at the beginning of the year. Over 30 boys at Bashta were growing up in entire ignorance and as many more at other points in the circuit. A small allowance was secured for their special use, and the expenses at Najibabad, where the pupils are all Hindus and Mohamedans, were reduced, and with this a small Boarding School was organized at Bashta, consisting of 13 boys. Two more were soon admitted, making 15, who remained regularly in the school, until the fever broke out when they were obliged to go home for a few weeks. They have made good progress in reading and writing and in learning Christian truth. Their parents have supplied their clothes. The boys have been kept in closer communication with their friends who reside in adjoining villages than would have been possible if they had been gathered into the Bijnour school; and they do not seem to have become estranged from their simple village life.

At Mandaur and Mohamadpore small schools were established for the Christian boys of those villages. No board was given to these boys, but a small amount, varying from 2 to 8 annas a month, was allowed the parents of each boy as a remuneration for the loss of his work. We have just returned from a visit to those villages, and have been greatly delighted at the progress the boys have made. Some have read through the First, Second and Third Urdu Books and read well, and have committed to memory the Catechism, prepared by Rev. J. Mudge. Fifteen boys are reading in these two schools; and one of our helpers is about to begin a school among the chumars who live near him, and who are inquirers. There have been 14 Christian boys in our school at Bijnour and 3 at Najibabad, making in all 46, who have been under instruction during the year. The average expense of these boys, aside from the tuition, has fallen below one rupee a month.

The educational interests of the girls have been well attended to by the W. F. M. S. Forty girls are at present in the Boarding School, 36 of whom are boarders. The school has won for itself a place in the hearts of the villagers, and the prejudice against female education is giving way. Every effort is made to keep the habits of the girls simple, and the long vacation spent at home keeps them in sympathy with the lives they must lead hereafter.

The interesting inquirer mentioned in last year's report has continued steadfast and made remarkable progress in religious knowledge and experience. He asked in the early part of the year to be baptized and he and his eldest son, also a married man, have recently been admitted into the Church by baptism, and there is good reason to hope that their families will soon follow them, while there are others in their neighbourhood, who promise to soon become Christians. Two Mohamedan families in another locality, four adults and two children who have for some time been inquirers, have also been baptized. One of the men who was sick at the time has since died giving good evidence to the last of his faith in Christ: the others continue steadfast. In the sub-station of Tilhar two adults have been baptized within the year. Jane the wife of Edwin W. Gay, Local Preacher, died on the 18th of October. She formerly labored as Bible-woman and in her last hours declared that Jesus whom she had recommended to others fully sustained her. She died well. The work here and in Pawayan continues much as in the past.

BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

PRESENT number, 276. The greatly increased number in the Institution renders it a much heavier charge than formerly. Daily prayer meetings were held during the month of October resulting in great benefit to many of the boys as well as to other parties. The school has made fair progress. The teachers, most of whom have been educated in this school, are hard-working and successful. The higher classes are amalgamated with classes of the same grade in the city school, which works advantageously to both schools. All of the boys who are large enough go to school and are taught in the vernaculars, either Urdu or Hindi, they generally choosing the study; 91 are reading Urdu and 142 Hindi, and of these 131 are studying English.

All boys who give any promise of being able to acquire English are allowed to undertake it, but those who do not get on are dropped from the English Department after a reasonable time for trial has been given. The large number sent out of the Institution last year left very few fit to be sent out this year. One was sent to the Normal High School, three have been sent out as servants, and five have run away. The fever which has recently prevailed so generally in the country, found its way into the Orphanage and a large number of the children have suffered more or less, but all have recovered or are convalescing. A number of little boys admitted during the late famine were dirt-eaters and their emaciated systems so deranged that numbers of them have died from diarrhoea and dysentery: the great need of some place for the sick has been felt as never before, and the erection of a hospital has been commenced.

Two wells have been sunk in the Orphanage land and the work of cultivation by the boys has been greatly increased. A colony of nine of the larger boys who were not promising in study has been sent to Panahpur, the Christian village ten miles distant. They have built a house and dug up and are cultivating several acres of land. They appear interested in their work and have so far done well. Their wet-weather crop was all destroyed by the floods, but the present crop is promising, and the boys appear proud of their success. This branch of the Orphanage been done during the year. The shops are expensive because the mechanical teachers must be largely occupied in instructing the boys who, in this as in books, are not generally apt learners, and spoil a lot of material; still they can and must learn, otherwise the existence of the Institution, if not of the boys, would be a calamity. With so large a number of such boys great attention must be paid to manual labor as the great majority of them should become good mechanics or practical agriculturists, in order to earn their livelihood and become useful.

A Chapel for English service has been erected in the station during the year without any expense to the Missionary Society. It is substantially built, is 44 feet long by 22 wide, with a small room in the rear. The Chapel cost Rs. 1,700. Hindustani service is also regularly conducted in it. With thanks to God for His sustaining grace and to kind friends for their contributions, I close this report of another year's work.

PANAHPORE.

REV. HORACE ADAMS, Native Minister.

FIVE adults and eight children have received baptism during the year. Twelve persons have been received into full membership and twelve on probation. The Church now numbers 115 members, 79 probationers, and 137 baptized children.

All the people in the village are Christians, and religious services are held daily, the Minister's wife meeting women for that purpose at noon and the Minister himself conducting devotions among the men in the evening.

Every Sunday the true God is worshiped as in no other village in this province. At eight o'clock there is a meeting of the men of the village for prayer, singing and religious conversation and at two o'clock a similar meeting of the women. At eleven A. M. a Sunday-school is held in which all, young and old, are taught God's Word. This is immediately followed by a sermon by the Native Minister.

Under these influences the Church is slowly growing in knowledge and becoming a true member of the body of Christ. There are several enquirers who have not yet received baptism, but are being fitted for it by regular instruction in the truths of our holy religion. One of these, a Musalman, has been an inquirer for about five months. His wife received baptism last year and became a true disciple of Christ. This stirred up in her husband hatred towards her and bitter hostility to Christ and Christianity. Divine grace has so wrought upon his heart that now he loves Christians and believes in Christ as his Prophet and Saviour. There is no doubt that in a little time his whole family will accept the Lord Jesus. There are many villages of non-Christians near, in which the Gospel is preached as also in melas. The people are renouncing idolatry and becoming more and more acquainted with the truth.

Two schools, one for boys and the other for girls, have been maintained during the year, in both of which both secular and religious instruction are given. The girls' school has done well, but the boys' has not prospered. The teacher has been discharged and a better arrangement will be made for the coming year. The temporal condition of the people is not encouraging. This year also the grain crop has failed. Loans have been given to cultivators for seed, and work has been provided for those depending upon their daily labor for support, but with all that has been done the people remain like most cultivators, in extreme poverty.

records so inadequately represent the actual work done.

LUCKNOW.

REV. B. H. BADLEY,	} Missionaries.
REV. T. CRAVEN,
REV. J. MUDGE,
REV. I. FIELDBRAVE,	Native Pastor.

NATIVE CHURCH.—The Native Pastor has had a busy year, preaching, visiting, holding prayer meetings, and translating. That his services have been appreciated is seen by the fact that the Church pays Rs. 20 monthly towards his salary. At least Rs. 17 are given by the Hindustani members. This amount has been more easily raised this year than ever before, and we think the day is not far distant when this Church will be self-supporting. There has been an increase of eleven in the membership, chiefly from other stations. Three adults (Hindoos) and several children have been baptized.

This year for the first time the Hindustani Church has had its own Sunday-school, an arrangement very acceptable to its members. The school has been interesting; the highest attendance being 105, the average, 84.

The "Improvement Society" mentioned in our last report, has been more thoroughly organized, and its monthly meetings have been interesting and profitable.

This year the members of the Church have been divided into several classes, meeting at various houses; this plan bids fair to create a deeper interest in our class meetings.

The Church shared in the blessings resulting from the Dasehra meetings in October. Other special meetings have also resulted in good. At one of these meetings, just before the beginning of the services, the following note was handed to the missionary: "Dear Sir,—Nearly twenty boys out of 109 have been caught by the prevailing fever, therefore I hope that you will be pleased to pray for them, and oblige me." This note was from the head-master of one of our schools, a Hindoo; and the incident although unimportant goes to show that even Hindoos are beginning to understand the power of prayer.

BAZAR PREACHING.—This has been kept up throughout the sons have been regularly used. In the competitive examination at the close of the year three boys, all Hindoos, from as many different schools, recited the Lessons of the year perfectly (having thus memorized at least 300 verses of scripture) : one of these boys, Nanhai Lal of Saadat Gunge, had been present every Sunday during the year. Eleven other boys (also non-christians) passed the second-class examination.

The Christmas mela was held at Wingfield Park and was an enjoyable occasion. Our regiment of children with bands and banners presented a delightful appearance as they marched into the Park. Prizes and sweetmeats were distributed, swings provided, and the day passed very pleasantly.

This work loses none of its interest as time passes. We believe that these weekly lessons, well prepared and well taught, are bringing the children nearer Christ. The entrance of God's word does give light; and we expect great results.

Any of the missionaries at Lucknow will be happy to receive contributions from friends in behalf of this Sunday-school work. A considerable sum is required to meet the current expenses and to provide for the Christmas treat.

THE CENTENNIAL SCHOOL.—This Boarding School for Christian boys has had another prosperous year. The enrollment has been 109 as compared with 86 last year. The school is evidently growing in favor. The students have made progress. The weekly prayer-meeting held in the school has been very interesting and several of the older boys have been admitted as Probationers in the Church. Additional dormitories have been built, and we hope to receive a large number of boarders. The monthly charge for boarding (Rs. 5) is very small. The Principal will be glad to give further particulars on application. A "Wide-Awake Band" (girls) in the Sunday-school at Winona, Minn., (U. S. A.) supports a boy in the School, as does the Sunday-school at Ellenville, N. Y. (U. S. A.) Any one sending Rs. 5 per month can be the means of educating a boy here.

WORK AMONG EDUCATED NATIVES.—Concerning this, Babu Ram Chandra Bose writes : "I have had this year to extend my sphere of work, and visit several cities in the North-West Provinces and the Punjab, in addition to those where I am expected annually to preach. Evangelistic services, on the whole successful, have been held at Allahabad, Benares, Dehra Doon, practice between asceticism, abstinence and almost unrestricted self-indulgence. But the most unpromising feature of their intellectual and moral life is their lack of earnestness, their unwillingness to take the trouble of examining the evidences of Christianity, or of looking into the intensity of the darkness within them. They allow themselves to be driven to and fro by every wind of doctrine, ranging themselves now under the banner of Brahmoism and then under that of Aryanism, and almost invariably sinking, through these dreary systems, in absolute nihilism. They are in the words of a gentleman, who knows them well, 'a tough set;' and if the success of our work amongst them depended on ourselves, we would abandon it in despair. But we have the Great Master on our side, and our belief is that if we had been thoroughly faithful workers, full of power and the Holy Spirit, we might have had some success to report more tangible than what we nevertheless are thankful for.

My acknowledgments are due, not only to the Missionaries and native brethren who have cordially helped me, but to Mrs. Kennedy, of Scotland, for a splendid present of books, such as will be of great use to me in my work."

PRESS REPORT.

REV. T. CRAVEN, Superintendent.

ON account of the scarcity of funds last year, and the consequent dismissal of a number of workmen it was difficult to adjust the office at once to the replenished state of the treasury mentioned in our last report. The necessary reduction, when funds fail, occasions many inconveniences and seriously affects the efficiency of the work. Could the Press, while it must depend on outside help, enjoy continuous assistance from year to year fewer disappointments and greater efficiency would certainly result. Debt, while the present Superintendent retains his place, is out of the question, and so there must be this recurrence of reductions and additions, pulling to pieces and putting together, while a steady source of income is wanting.

The number of books published during the year has been about as usual ; the value of the same is greater than usual. The Concordance of the Holy Scriptures will be a valuable work of 850 pages. Dr. Wise's "Illustrated Life of our King and Saviour" put into Roman-Urdu, with binding worthy of the original MS. and the beautiful illustrations, will be the nicest reading book our Native Christians have had access to as yet. Thousands of Sunday-school scholars are glad over the easy and interesting catechism of Rev. Z. A. Mudge, while Urdu-readers will shortly be able to learn that the "Bible is not of man" as these books, with many others, are drawing near to completion.

The Superintendent in addition to the management of the Press, has conducted the vernacular newspaper Kaukab-i-Hind and, with the assistance of others, Sunday-school Papers.

Literature for the Sunday-school as well as for the Church and non-christians has had attention. The "Children's Friend" Series has gone on rejoicing, increasing in circulation. They have received kind words from old missionaries as well as young and more especially from missionaries of other churches—thus their influence has widened during the year. Sunday-been sold. Our aim in this method of procuring is growing. While the masses of the people remain ignorant and even wanting in the desire to be informed; while only here and there, very wide apart, is there the individual non-christian prepared to lay aside his prejudices, or with sufficient taste for books ready to take up a book and read it, it seems the business of the Press as that of Preacher, to arouse the slumberer and beget in him the spirit of enquiry. This we believe is very effectually done by a striking picture such as have been sent out by the thousand the past months. Remarks upon this class of work have been made heretofore and need not be repeated here. All that has been said fails to describe the importance of the work as it seems to the Superintendent of the Press. Yesterday we stepped into the book-room in connection with our Press and found several Hindoo boys buying the pictures of "Christ and Nicodemus," "Christ blessing Little Children," &c., at two annas each, the highest price charged, allowing of a selection. I asked myself how long those boys would have looked at a Christian book for two annas before they would have bought it. We have only to follow the picture home with those boys. On the wall of their rooms they are placed—day by day "Christ and Nicodemus" comes to their minds. On the other hand take the book. We all know what haggling there would be about the price; then if sold at two pice, how probably there would be an occasional look into it, then a laying of it aside. Books and pictures, any means at all, only if by them we may win some to Jesus. But for arousing the attention and making the non-christian community more familiar with and less prejudiced towards, books of Christian sentiment and teaching, we may profitably consider the influence of art in the bold and striking picture.

We hope during the year to come to see our Press move on still more efficiently. Additions in machinery are being effected, connections with purchasers of such books as we can print are being formed, and plans are being matured for securing to our vernacular work of the Press a more regular supply of funds.

SITAPUR.

REV. J. E. SCOTT, Missionary.

The year 1879 has been a good year on Sitapur circuit. It has been crowded with earnest work and crowned with some success. The Gospel of the Son of God has been preached in at least an hundred villages, and the common people have heard it gladly, and a few at least have believed unto salvation. In Harganw, a town fifteen miles north-east of Sitapur, a pujari is willing to leave all and follow Jesus. In Misrikh, Shio Gulam, a zemindar, declares that he is a Christian in heart and is only prevented from joining us by his family. Mannu, who was for years a teacher in the Khairabad school, is an enquirer. A woman and her daughter, the former of whom is a servant in Moonshi Peter Gray's family, are quite ready for baptism. Some of the enquirers have been very interesting. Sarain Das, has been attending our Chapel services and has been recently baptized. He was a guru among the mehtars, a venerable old priest, who now in his daily itineration preaches Christ instead of Ram and prays to Him who came into the world to save sinners and not to him who came to destroy them. He is a veritable traveling preacher, a backwoodsman without the woods, an itinerant whose saddle bags are his gourd and whose library his Hindue

New Testament. The case of Alexander is also interesting. He is a lad of about twelve years of age who, during the summer of 1877, was picked up by soldiers of H. M.'s 73rd foot in a village beyond Moradabad. His parents had starved to death and he was almost dead. Those kind men took him and cared for him: carried him with them on the march to Lucknow and afterward when a detachment was sent to Sitapur, his benefactors brought him with them, and when removed and under orders for home they put him in the Missionary's care. While with the soldiers he forgot his Hindustani and as he failed to learn English correctly he can speak no language properly. He has forgotten his parents' names: he can not remember their religion, and can only say in his broken language, "My father he have cows, then he get hungry, then he sell cows, then he sell goats, then get very hungry, then he die; then my mother she very good to me, she give me her dinner, then she die and I go away." He is a good boy and will no doubt become a good and useful man.

The schools have done well during the year, especially the Sunday or Bible schools. Nearly all the boys have committed to memory and understand the meaning of Rev. Mr. Mudge's "Sawalat-i-Ilm-i-Ilahi," a most excellent little book. Through the teaching of this little book the majority of the pupils have learned the leading facts of the Bible and the prominent truths of our religion. In the Khairabad Middle Grade school there are three Christian teachers and in the Branch schools the helpers teach several days in the week.

In his itinerations the Missionary with his Catechists and helpers has visited the out-stations of Misrikh, Khairabad, and Lakampur, remaining a week or two in each place, preaching in the bazars and villages, singing our hymns and bhajans and talking with the people. It is with much thankfulness and gratification that a good helper and colporteur have been secured for the station of Lakampur and district of Khiri. It is a fine field for itinerating work, there being a large bazar twice a week at each of the large towns of Khiri, Lakampur, and Mahewa Gange. The people are very friendly and the prospect for a good work most encouraging.

A most profitable and interesting season of bazar preaching has just closed in the Sitapur bazar, illustrating the benefit of having a settled place for such work. A tent was pitched opening upon the main street of Thompson Gunge, and in the evening large crowds gathered to hear the word preached, and at eleven o'clock in the day a meeting was held for any who desired to enquire further concerning the matter.

During the year a course of lectures has been given to the English-speaking non-christians of Sitapur during which Babu Ram Chandra Bose delivered some of his excellent lectures which were listened to by good audiences. Babu Bose of Lucknow has won for himself a high opinion among the Bengalis and other native gentlemen of Sitapur.

Some good has been done in the district during the recent fearful scourge of fever by the distribution of fever powders. Through this means many persons have not only been saved from physical suffering and perhaps from death, but they have become our friends and have learned something of "the Great Physician, the sympathizing Jesus."

Upon the whole there is great cause for thankfulness to God for the blessings of the past year. We do not boast of great things in Sitapur. God forbid that we "should glory save in the cross of Christ." Mention might be made of difficulties, discouragements and mistakes—difficulties, such as the opposition of caste, the indifference of the people to spiritual things, the fewness of our members and the feebleness of our efforts; discouragements, such as the weakness of Christians, the sordidness of their motives, the universal ma bay system of parwarish, the inefficiency of helpers, and the general lack of manly independence; mistakes, such as arise from ignorance and inexperience and lack of care and prayer; but in spite of all these things there has been general advancement and improvement in the schools, in the Church, in the helpers, in district work, in bazar preaching, in the conduct and life of the new converts and enquirers; hence with new hope and stronger faith, the workers at Sitapur, believing in the success of Missions and the triumphs of the Redeemer, that He must reign till He hath put all enemies under his feet, leave the things which are behind and press forth to those things which are before.

the night Sunday-school, remain until the school was closed before calling for them. 4 : The children repeat the Lord's Prayer and in some cases it is known that they pray in secret. 5 : They understand the Scriptures and in many cases try to carry out their precepts in their lives. We regard all these as encouraging indications of progress although no conversions are reported.

During the hot weather and rainy season we have preached in the bazar regularly, from three to four times weekly. Bibles and tracts have been exposed for sale during the busy hour of the day, from six p. m. to sunset. Nearly all the office hands pass our book-stand and very often examine and purchase. In the colder season about two hundred miles of camping were done. In company with our native preachers Isa Das and Wilbur Fisk we visited villages, bazars, melas ; sold books and tracts and put up a number of large posters such as the Lord's Prayer, the "Ten Commandments," the "Way of Salvation" &c., &c.

When not out in camp we have held one Hindusani Church service on Sunday and two during the week. When camping one weekly service was omitted. There have been two baptisms of adults. The financial exhibit will show the colporteur returns and also the amounts contributed by the Native Church.

Our English work comprises one Sunday service and two on week nights. Resulting from this service are one or two conversions, marked increase in vital godliness on the part of others, and new and valuable experience realized by the Missionary. Several of the English congregation have done good service in the English and vernacular Sunday-schools. The financial exhibit shows the amounts given by the English Congregation.

Thanks are due to all our friends for help and good will through the year. We would sing the doxology as expressing the thoughts with which we close one of our best years in India.

GONDA AND BAHRAICH.

REV. H. MANSELL,	Missionary,
REV. W. PETERS,	Native Minister.

THIS has been one of the busiest years of my life, but the results have not come up to my expectations. Three months spent at the Cawnpore Memorial School, left but nine for this circuit. Brother William Peters was faithful during my absence, and the work did not seem to suffer. Our preacher at Nawabgunge has proved inefficient and somewhat hurtful to the cause, and his license was not renewed at the last District Conference. All the other preachers have done well, and some of them have improved wonderfully during the year. There has been a great deal of sickness in the district. Small pox afflicted two of our helpers' families severely, but the lives of all were spared. One bright little boy lost an eye by it.

Brother Steven Paul of Ellenpur, has done well. There is a marked change in the moral tone of the Christian Community since last year. Some have given up opium eating, and others have reduced the quantity by half, and intend by God's grace to leave it off entirely.

Considering their means, they have given liberally, and the preacher has very wisely directed their contributions to the building of the church which was begun some time ago, and left unfinished. We have had to expend considerable money there

The ladies and gentlemen of the station gave Rs. 27 towards it, and the boys were well pleased with the books, pictures, &c., which they received. We listened for hours to the recitation of Scripture, Golden Texts and Topics, Hymns, Catechism, &c. One boy recited intelligently 63 Christian hymns. Thus an immense amount of Scripture truth has been sown in the most promising soil during the year. I shall never tire of Sunday-school work.

Bazar preaching has been unusually interesting, and has inspired us all with greater zeal than ever. Christianity and its claims are well understood by thousands. We have also preached at Devi Patan and Ajudhia, and at the Sayad Salar melas, and at other lesser ones in the district. I preached daily at the opium house for several weeks, thus reaching hundreds who came to bring opium to market. I have visited daily the shops and the houses of the people. Statistics will be seen in their appropriate place.

REV. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

THERE are thirty Christians besides children in the Hurdui circuit. The schools have improved much during the year, and the opportunity they afford for continued religious instruction has been gladly improved. Sunday-school lessons, catechism and Christian hymns have been taught, and the boys and girls are getting a correct knowledge of Christianity. The bazar preaching has been very encouraging. Large numbers have gathered to hear the Word of God and always listen very attentively. In the villages and melas especially the work of preaching has been very encouraging, but want of funds for necessary expenses in itinerating has prevented our visiting all parts of our circuit. The native preachers have suffered much from the prevailing fever; their families have also been sick a great deal and this has made it impossible to do much village work.

Sunday is market day in Hurdui, and our church, standing on the street, attracts the attention of the villagers as they pass and often the door is blocked up with men looking on and listening to our service. Five persons were baptized, three of whom were Hindus. Hard times and want of labor has dispersed most of these converts. There are a number of enquirers in the circuit, but they do not come out for baptism as this would apparently compel them to become wanderers. We are helpless in the matter and can only hope the way may open. The church building has been completed but is not all paid for.

CAWNPORE.

REV. J. W. WAUGH, Missionary.

REV. J. T. JANVIER, Native Minister.

WITH the same staff and facilities for work as last year, the success attained has been far in advance, and indeed very encouraging; not indeed in the number of baptisms, upon which within a very short distance of the same caravanserai in which he concealed his loved ones for a day, while the wretched Nana Sahib was shooting down the poor women and children, within sight, in Sir Hugh Wheeler's entrenchments. That little baby-girl is now the wife of a most excellent Christian Native Police officer, and herself the head of a beautiful family of little children. So much from the mention of Brother Joel's name, and its former connection with Cawnpore!

Our Native Christian congregation has kept up well during the year until toward the close, when nearly every member of it was laid low with an epidemic fever, and this attendance has been in spite of the lowly and cramped quarters in which for want of better, we have been compelled to worship. When able to be present, I have usually conducted the Services in Hindustani, and have enjoyed them much.

Besides the interesting cases of baptism which occurred during my absence for a time from the Station, there were two of much more than ordinary interest. Early in the year, a young Mahomedan, Ghulam Ali, son of a Government Contractor in the Punjab,—whose father had gone over from Hinduism to the faith of the Prophet, had made the pilgrimage to Mecca, but only returned to die, unsatisfied, as before, with his new faith,—came to us, and earnestly sought to know more of the Christian religion.

Having abundant means of his own with Rs. 12,000 or 14,000 in bank, and drawing interest sufficient to yield him some Rs. 50 per mensem, being well educated, in Persian as well as Hindustani and Panjabi, and desiring but one thing, viz., to know "What is truth," he was, after a fair trial, baptized, and was very attentive to his Christian duties. He desired to study theology, and had thoughts of entering our Theological Seminary at Bareilly, but the thought of giving up his chances of money making, and even expending a little of his ample income, was too much for him, and he left us, partly through shame, as he acknowledged, of his love of money. We afterwards found him to be, though a good young man, correct in his life and conduct, and anxious to do right,—a confirmed miser, and as such, we have little hope of him. We can only pray that his love of money may not result in the loss of his soul.

Jog Singh and his wife came to Cawnpore from Dehra Dun. He had received a good education, had read in English up to the Calcutta University Entrance Examination. Having translated a book on Cookery for some gentleman, he concluded to practice on the many recipes therein given, and became a cook, working and receiving a very good salary. He and his wife, both being earnest inquirers, were baptized in February. As he was very anxious to teach others of his new faith and its power to save, arrangements were made for his entering the Theological School as soon as a new class should be admitted. Meantime, he undertook the teaching of a class of boys in Urdu and gave every satisfaction. A few months afterward, while bathing with some of the boys of his class in a tank, he sank and was drowned. Thus one of the most hopeful of our converts was suddenly translated.

As stated in a previous Report, no place, perhaps within the bounds of our Mission offers better facilities for evangelizing agencies, than Cawnpore and its outlying district, filled with populous towns and villages. It is almost virgin soil, but little in the way of evangelism having ever been carried on in the city or district.

the very south-east corner of the peninsula. These places are more than 2,000 miles apart by the ordinary routes of travel. But the preponderance of our students come from Cawnpore and its more immediate neighborhood, as Lucknow, Allahabad, Agra, &c.

The boys have made good progress in their studies, when we consider the obstacles to be overcome, as the very long, hot season, followed by a very trying term of three months rain, with its moist, muggy, moldy atmosphere; and this again followed by an unparalleled visitation of fever, over all the country, and which has not yet entirely cleared away. Thanks to our kind, attentive and skilful Civil Surgeon, we have had the best medical care and advice, and nearly all our boys have been saved from the worse forms of this epidemic, only comparatively a few having been seriously affected by it. Earlier in the year the girls' school lost two pupils by typhoid fever.

One of the most noteworthy and hopeful things connected with this school, is the freedom from vice among the pupils. There are boys from all grades of society, from all parts of the land, and coming from homes where God is not honored, and from other schools where beer-drinking, swearing, fighting and filthy habits are common; and yet none of these deformities of Indian life are discoverable in this school. Many of the boys are earnestly pious, and those who are not thus outspoken Christians, still so far respect themselves, their fellow-pupils and the School as to merit the meed of "good" or "excellent" conduct, in the monthly reports sent to their parents. Thus the Memorial School is doing a work which no other school of its influence and character in this part of India, is accomplishing, and this is its legitimate work. A goodly number of young men have already gone out from its classes to enter the active field of duty, in various departments of labor, as members of the subordinate Medical Department, Practical Engineering, Police, Postal, Telegraph, and other services. So far as we have heard in every case their influence in their respective communities is for good. They have not forgotten the lessons they learned here.

The fever above-mentioned, despoiled us of our best scholars and only candidates for the Calcutta University Entrance Examination, who were so enervated as to be unable to go up, even after the entrance fee had been paid.

BARA BANKI,

REV. ENOCH JOEL, Native Minister.

BROTHER Joel has been alone on this circuit most of the year and calls loudly for a colleague. Rev. B. H. Badley and P. Andrew have made a few visits from Lucknow, on market days, preaching to the people. There are two small schools for boys in Nawab Gunge in which the scriptures are taught, but the work here is mainly preaching in the large Nawab Gunge bazar and in the surrounding villages. There are many large towns in this District and reinforcements are much needed. The apostles were sent out two by two and it is rather a forlorn business for a lone native preacher to visit large towns and villages where not a Christian is found. The people of Nawab Gunge are becoming acquainted with the minister and are quite friendly. Some of the Hindus and Mahommedans contributed liberally to his Sunday-school festival and the European residents also aid him in his work. There are some enquirers but they are not yet sufficiently in earnest to lose all for Christ.

generally broken up, and our work hindered in various ways. It was a matter of gratitude to us, however, that our Christian community almost entirely escaped this visitation. Only two were attacked and both recovered. The almost unprecedented rain-fall which characterized this season in turn rendered a vigorous prosecution of our work during these months impossible. Then again a wide-spread prevalence of a malignant type of malarial fever which followed the heavy rains, has proved a hindrance scarcely second to the visitation of the earlier months of the year.

Still the various kinds of Mission work have been kept up and prosecuted as circumstances would permit in all parts of the District, and in a number of places with very encouraging results. As might be expected there has been more or less of a falling off as regards the attendance in our schools. But there is no apparent reason why this should be more than temporary. It will be seen by reference to the statistics that the native Christian community has increased from 315 to 355. The growth would have appeared still more encouraging but for the fact that numbers have gone out from us to other stations, while very few from without have come to us.

It is manifest also to those who are acquainted with the lives of these Christians that there is quite generally a marked improvement from year to year, and an evident advance in spiritual life and experience.

The progress, encouragement and difficulties will appear, however, from the reports of the various stations.

NATIVE WORK.

REV. P. M. BUCK, Missionary.

REV. T. GOWAN, Native Minister.

THIS circuit embraces a portion of the belt of land skirting the lower Himalayas, known as the Bhabar, some forty miles in length, and quite an extensive area of mountain-country around Naini Tal. Thousands of the hill people have their winter home and raise a winter crop in the milder climate of this tract of land at the mountains' base. While here they are very much more accessible than when in their villages above. An important part of the work of this field therefore is done here during the winter season. Nine Primary schools at present are kept up this region, with an attendance of about 250, and the Missionary and all the native Assistants give several months to this part of the field. The year opened with a series of tent services at the more prominent places, which were attended by very good congregations of attentive listeners. Much good seed was in this way sown, and this mode of labor seems much more satisfactory than the ordinary one of bazar preaching. In connection with these meetings special services were held with and for the Native Christians wherever found, and with excellent results. There were seasons of refreshing in nearly every place thus visited, and nearly all our Christian people seemed to receive marked benefit. We deem it of great importance to bestow much earnest labour on our converts, and our experience is that such labour is attended generally with very encouraging returns. This portion of our field has yielded most of the fruit gathered during the year on the charge. Centrally located in this region is a small Christian village which has been in existence for a few years. At the beginning of the present year it contained six or seven families. This number has increased to a dozen or more. The place promises to exert considerable influence as an evangelizing

prayer, and fellowship meetings, have been kept up as a rule. One man, a servant employed in the station, sought and obtained baptism about the close of the year. He is the head of a large family, and it is hoped they will follow his example ere long. The usual amount of itinerating work in the mountain villages could not be done owing to the prevalence of sickness and the heavy rains.

ENGLISH WORK.

Rev. N. G. CHENEY, Pastor.

"THE work among the English-speaking people has been unusually encouraging during the past year. There has been a quiet, but steady and reliable spiritual influence in the services that has resulted in the enlightenment and conversion, it is hoped, of many souls. In this work it is constantly kept in mind that the English-speaking people have peculiar opportunities for assisting in the spread of the Gospel in India. We aim to secure their sympathy and co-operation with the work of God among the heathen. A holy life and a clear testimony, and consecration of money,—duties of every Christian in India, are swift instruments in winning the natives to the Truth."

GARHWAL.

REV. F. W. GREENWOLD, Native Minister.

THE present condition of the work in this circuit is good. The Church is growing numerically, temporally and spiritually. It never was better nor had it ever a more hopeful outlook.

This year we have had 30 baptisms, which, as an addition, has not equaled either of the two preceeding years. It is however encouraging to know that the Christian community during the last three years has increased from seventy to two hundred. We are gaining the confidence and good will of many outsiders. The circle of our friends and acquaintances among the natives of Garhwal is constantly on the increase. Among these a very salutary Christian influence is being exerted by our people.

A few years ago we made a list of persons who we might reasonably suppose would become Christians. It contained about a hundred names and represented at that time our most sanguine expectations. Since then we have worked especially for these people and gained many of them, but while every individual we thought of has not joined us, the total number has far exceeded the hundred. In looking over these facts we feel reproved and very deeply impressed with the exhortation, "Expect great things from God."

The past year had its times of sorrow. Some of our people fell into sin. They have been labored and reasoned with however, and in some cases hopefully restored. Others long absent from us on account of unwillingness to submit to the restraints of the Gospel have returned and brought their children for baptism and given up the evil practices that caused their separation.

They profess to have found that the Christian way of life is the more excellent way. These facts cheer our hearts. Our people are increasing in intelligence. Many who were perfectly illiterate when baptized, have learned to read and write. More than half of our adults can read and write, including twenty-nine of the women of the Church. The remainder know a good

Dispensary continues to do good work and will be spoken of by the superintending doctor in a separate report.

The Paori Sunday-school is of special interest. It is composed of both Hindoos and Christians. The large room in which we meet is often filled to its utmost capacity. The juvenile missionary society with its energetic staff of officers has done a great work this year in awakening interest in missions. Nearly every Christian, old and young, is learning to give according to his ability for God's work. Our receipts for the Missionary Society total Rs. 60, for the year. Besides, we raised Rs. 12, assessed on us for support of native pastor. The spirit with which these contributions were given augurs well for the future of our work.

The Girls' Boarding School and Orphanage has had a successful year. Mrs. Gill has the pleasure of seeing good results from the several hours daily spent by her among the girls and their teachers. One little girl nine years of age died, during the year. Her last words were about Jesus and heaven. This work is spoken of in a separate report.

The Orphanage for boys in the village of Dikhwali, contains the little waifs that drifted to our doors during the famine of last year. We intend to train them to habits of independence. They have the privilege of attending school two hours daily. The rest of their time is spent in work. A few months ago two very young boys died, both of them of inherited disease. A new station has been started in a valley called Cupologoon. A young man long absent in Kumaon, has returned to his home and promises to do a good work among his people here.

In the little space allotted us it is impossible to speak particularly of the labours of the past twelve months, the Sabbath preaching, the weekly prayer and class meetings, the quarterly meeting occasions, the itinerating tours, the bazar preaching, the village schools, etc. It is enough to say, we feel the importance of the work in hand. Not professing to be free from moments of discouragement we yet can confess to hours of living joy as we contemplate the progress of the Church. It has been blessed to preach Christ to a very simple, but very teachable and attentive people, sometimes amid the tears and prayers of the whole congregation. The Divine presence has been sensibly felt. The glory is His. In a word, we are labouring for the regeneration of our baptized Christians, and for the evangelization of the heathen of Gurhwal, and God gives us success in this work and blessed proof that our labors are not in vain.

EASTERN KUMAON CIRCUIT.

REV. R. GRAY, M. D. Missionary.

THE work in the circuit has this year been encouraging, not so much in the number of conversions, (though indications of success have not been wanting here) as in the changed behaviour of many. There are persons who, so far as we can judge, are earnestly and honestly inquiring after the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Many have been apparent seekers only, and that there have been such is no discouraging circumstance. We must expect some bad fish with the good in hauling the Gospel net, and our part is to be heartily thankful that some from the many are really in earnest. Such there have been, and, while the gathered harvest has been small, the indications of a coming abundant harvest have increased. The baptism of adults numbers four, and one nominal Christian has been born again. The growth of the Christians in grace has been very gratifying. The

The money has all been raised in this country except some given by friends in England. The opening services in October were well attended, and with one single exception, every service since then has been well attended.

For all which we are very thankful.

PALEE CIRCUIT.

THIS circuit includes some of the most densely populated portions of Kumaon and when properly manned and worked ought to be a fruitful field. At present there are two native agents employed here. One is a native Doctor and Local Preacher in Dwárahát, whose time is mostly absorbed in medical work. Another helper with him is very much needed. The other one employed in this field is stationed at Máshí, on the Ram Gunga, in a very rich and populous region. He gives his time to preaching, but as yet the time of fruit has not come. Two small schools have been kept up most of the year, but owing to various obstacles they have not been very prosperous.

The following resolutions were adopted :

1. Whereas, we have heard with great pleasure that our dear brethren, Revs. J. S. Inskip, W. McDonald, J. Wood, with others, are proposing to visit India some time this year in their evangelistic tour round the world,

Resolved, that we will heartily welcome them to these shores, and will co-operate with them to the best of our abilities, hoping that they will arrange to hold as many meetings as possible within our bounds, and will make a special endeavor to be present at our next session in Bareilly.

JAMES MUDGE,
H. MANSELL.

2. Resolved, that this Conference has enjoyed with pleasure and profit the visit of Rev. Dr. Baldwin of China. His ministrations and visits at our homes have been enjoyed and have much strengthened us in the Lord. His addresses concerning the Mission work, and his accounts of the holy, earnest men God has raised up to work and suffer for His name, and to plant the Gospel in China, have bound our hearts to that glorious work. Our trials for the Master and our successes are one. Our prayers go up to God for Dr. Baldwin and the other workers and the work in China and Japan.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

I. ON TEMPERANCE.

Our principles as well as practice upon the temperance question are so well known that it seems almost unnecessary to reaffirm them. Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church wherever found are known to be total abstainers from the use of all intoxicating drinks.

In our opinion this is required not only by the Church and physical law but in order to rapid development of Christian character.

One of the most important reasons for rigidly maintaining our position upon this question in this country as in all others is for the sake of others. What in the sight of the heathen can disgrace the Christian name more than a drunken Christian? to avoid this if for nothing more Christians should keep themselves free from habits which may result in such disgrace. Granted that a man may indulge in the use of liquor without ever drinking to excess, others may be led into the habit from his example, who may become drunkards and go down to the drunkard's grave and to a drunkard's hell.

We cannot afford to compromise in the least upon this question but will firmly adhere in practice and in administration to the requirements of the Discipline and rules of the Church.

auspices of Government is not yet known. It is to be hoped but scarcely to be expected that some of the boys who went up for the Entrance will pass. The Entrance Class in the Memorial School was broken up by sickness, while that which went up from the Normal High School was largely made up of boys who had not passed the Middle Grade Examination.

More attention has been given than usual to the state of our middle and lower schools. It is ground for sincere regret that the Presiding Elder of Robileund who had this matter specially in hand has not been able to report upon it. He had collected a large mass of accurate and interesting information which needs only slight analysis and classification to yield some strange and striking conclusions. From these facts it is plain that all our lower schools need scrutiny and adjustment. The course of study adopted by the Conference in 1874 has become practically worthless. In some places it is followed in part, in others, it is wholly disregarded. Some of the prescribed text-books have been superseded by new and better ones. Others, always and intrinsically worthless, have at last been recognized to be such. The pay of teachers engaged in giving the same instruction varies greatly in different stations. There is no common standard of attainment required for passing the examinations. Teachers are employed and discharged at the mere caprice of the missionary—and not uncommonly a change of preachers in charge means a change in many of the school teachers. In short the whole management of schools depends entirely too much on the preference and whim of the individual missionary. All this is wrong, and before our schools can become really efficient must be righted. Therefore your committee suggest that the Board of Education be authorized and instructed to look into the whole matter of school management, and to report at the next session of Conference, a scheme for the better supervision and government of our lower schools, the essential feature of which scheme shall be, that the amount of money given by the Mission to a particular school shall be governed by the efficiency of that school, and shall be reduced when the school declines and increased when it increases.

Your Committee is glad to learn from the statistics that a larger number of Christian boys are in attendance upon the schools than were reported last year. This matter demands serious and sustained attention. It will not do to "spurt" on it for a year or two and then drop into indifference. The Christian community should be an educated community, and it will be to our shame—if after ten years from this date there can be found among us any Christian young man who cannot read his Bible for himself and write an intelligible business letter and keep his own accounts with the bunya.

IV. ON SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

WITH feelings of gratitude to God for His goodness to this most precious of our Institutions we have the pleasure of reporting continued interest and success in the Sunday-school work.

We own to having looked with some fear to a possible declension owing to the affliction in the form of famine and sickness of late having befallen many parts of our work, but instead of declension increase is evident on every hand. The army of the M. E. Church Sunday-schools has added 400 recruits to its numbers, and we believe that success in number is not alone the cause of gratulation, but evidence prevails on every hand that the drill of the Sunday-school is more thorough and the hearts of the young soldiers are showing increased loyalty to our institutions and instructions.

If by way of suggestion we may be allowed to point out any weakness, we suggest greater preparation on the part of the teacher. Very evident must it appear that with such a large army of Sunday-school scholars a large corps of officers is necessary and that there must be among so many those who need special attention given in the Teacher's Meeting or in some such Institution. We therefore suggest attention to the Teacher's qualifications in view of the great work God is graciously giving us.

We ask further for the attention of the writers of this Conference to the need of pleasing Sunday-school books.

V. ON PUBLISHING.

YOUR Committee beg leave to report, that your publishing interests have been carefully and energetically managed during the past year.

The full report of the Superintendent of the Press will show that a marvelous amount of work has been done and that the character of the work is steadily improving. We have one of the leading and in some respects the leading Mission Publishing House in India.

The resolution from Rohilkund District Conference concerning the Kaukab-i-Hind which was referred to us has been considered and shall be considered during the year, and you shall judge of the result. In the meantime we press the duties of writing for the Kaukab, upon all our Missionaries and native preachers and teachers. We ask you to send contributions to the editor at stated times. Tell briefly what you are doing, what you see and hear are on sale at the Press. Persons would do well to send for them and subscribe for the others so as to get them as soon as printed. This book like the Bible will never wear out. Logio has been reprinted and is on sale : the index of logical terms in English and Hindustani is worth the price of the book. The Commentaries are first class. The little book on the Divinity is an able work and leaves but little more to be said on that subject. Miss Blackmar's book on the Life of Jesus is especially worthy of commendation. It is going carefully through the Press and is beautiful.

Let us have more and let us try to have those that will carry Jesus to every heart and home in India.

REPORT ON STATE OF THE CHURCH AND MISSION WORK.

In presenting this Report, your Committee beg to acknowledge with thanks, the hearty co-operation they have received from most of the Brethren of the Conference. Their thoughtful and well written Reports enable your Committee to make a thorough and searching Report on all departments of our work. So much that is valuable and suggestive has been elicited that your Committee feel sure this Conference will be glad to indulge a Report much longer than those generally presented here, especially as any thing so searching and introspective of the work and the workers may not soon be called for again.

I. METHODS AND MANNER OF WORK.

We cannot report that our missionaries are finding any "royal road" or "short method" for the salvation of India, other than what Paul used on Mar's Hill, the "foolishness of preaching." We are glad to find that our missionaries almost all preach regularly from "one to three times on the Sabbath." We hope that regular preaching is increasing among us. In most of our stations, a printed or written plan gives all systematic work. The example of one station with its ten fixed places in muhallas and its twelve voluntary unpaid workers, is worthy of all commendation. We are inclined to think that too few of our unpaid laymen are called out in this way and that in many stations monthly or regular meetings are neglected. Only some stations have sermons or lectures in the schools. In several stations systematic village work is kept up, but we fear that a little more system is called for in some places. Results, so far, show that our lines of greatest success lie in this direction. As to bazar preaching, we seem as a Mission to be gaining some valuable experience and as the native Church grows and other forms of work open out, many find less time and strength for this. Still, apparently in all our stations, bazar preaching is kept up from one to five times a week. But opinions as to its value vary from that of the Brother who writes, "upon the whole it is the most unsatisfactory part of my work," and another, "I do not estimate city bazar preaching to be very valuable on account of the noise," to such emphatic Roy Bareilly, itinerating is carried on from three to four months in the year. In Lucknow, "no one has time to itinerate," and work is limited to melas. In Budaon, some 30 different camping places are occupied during the cold season. In Garhwal about one-tenth of the population is reached in this way. In Eastern Kumaon from twenty to fifty thousand scattered villagers are reached. In Bareilly District about half a hundred villages, lying immediately around the city are frequently visited by the theological students. It will be observed that as a rule the Districts in which most itinerating is done are yielding most converts. These statistics of work and results are more reliable than theories. We observe that these itinerations extend largely to places where Christian Communities are growing up. This is as it should be. As directed in our Book of Discipline, we should go where God seems pleased to pour out His spirit.

Itinerating furnishes a fine opportunity for intercourse with the natives, and as this Report deals with the manner of work as well as its method, we may state something of what we have learned of the views and practice of our missionaries in regard to visiting and receiving visits from the natives. Our missionaries, whatever their practice may be, as a rule, hold strong views in favor of free and hearty intercourse with the natives. One writes "this is an important part of mission work;" another, "I highly approve of this method of work;" another, "this is one of the best means of reaching the natives." And so the testimony seems in favor of visiting and receiving visits, with but little variation of opinion. One missionary writes, "I have never been very successful in visiting any natives except Christians. As a pastor I never got into their life much by visiting them: have always depended upon native assistants for this part of my work." This last fact, your Committee would remark, is a very good reason for not getting into the "life" of the native. We heartily endorse the method and opinion of one of our missionaries on this point, "Keep a list of all native callers and acquaintances and call on those that seem accessible. This is a much neglected but most important matter." Paul's evangelism was from house to house; why not ours. It was a wise native member of this Conference who wrote, "I join my heart to theirs in this way." It is heart power that moves and moulds the world. We may "speak with the tongue of men and of angels" and be as empty of power as the sounding brass because heart does not touch heart. One of our Brethren visited a Moslem Deputy Collector, on his dying bed and asked to pray with him which was thankfully granted. That man's son, now a tahsildar, became a fast and apparently affectionate friend of the missionary. Jesus, making himself "of no reputation, loving us, knocking at the door of our world and of our hearts, is the great model.

As to receiving visits from the natives, your Committee are gratified to report a growing sense of its importance, although some seem to fail in surrounding themselves with an attractive atmosphere. A few are troubled because natives are apt to have a motive when they come. One says "they never come except to gain some end." Another writes, "in three months no one has come. There are so many hakims here that natives do not seem to care for the Pádri Sáhib. They know that he can do nothing for them temporally." Here is a delicate point. Your Committee submit that the Pádri sahib can do much for the visitor temporally. What of education, of advice, of medicine, of sympathy in loss and sorrow? Here it is that heart may touch heart for the lift to higher things. Jesus reproved yet fed the multitude that followed him for the loaves and fishes. Most true, we must be wary here but let us hold on to the heart that forgets to seek first the Kingdom of God. Peter said, "Lord we have followed thee, what shall we have therefore," and the eleven at the ascension asked, "Lord at this time wilt thou restore the kingdom?"

Our missionaries generally take noble ground touching the matter of receiving visitors. Some have fixed hours. Some practice something of the courtesies natives use among themselves. One writes, "I always make myself as agreeable as possible and make the visitors as comfortable as possible. The same people call again and again which looks as if they did not feel ill treated." Another writes, "I always treat them with the same courtesy that I show to others." One writes, "I receive all," another, "my door is always open;" another, "we keep an open house for visitors." Another, "I receive native visitors at any time and converse with each man individually. I tell them of Jesus. Every other work and call on my time yields to this." Here is noble testimony, and your Committee observe that these are the men who are winning most souls.

To resume our report on the work carried on, we observe that the colportage enterprise seems to have varying success. In five stations the work is reported "increasing." The missionaries generally, as one of them expresses it, "thoroughly believe in it." One, however, says of the work "it is an immense bujh to me." He has two colporteurs of whom he writes, "I would rather keep the accounts of all this Mission than those of these two men." The reason of this sore trial is found perhaps in the statement of two other missionaries. One writes, "I have no particular method;" the other, "carried on without method;" Competent men with some regular method, is the secret of accomplishing this work with ease and success. Colporteurs are at work in almost all of our stations. Lucknow has none because the Church Mission has two, but the missionary in charge of the station writes that a colporteur is much needed, and that thousands may be reached by this work. Various obstacles are reported in carrying the work on, foremost among them the difficulty of getting competent men. We endorse the opinion of one of our missionaries who writes, "I think all our native preachers ought to sell books always and everywhere." "They think it undignified," the writer says, and he expresses the opinion that "the preachers in Oudh do more than those of Rohilkund in this line." Whatever the future may indicate, we think that at present the old fashioned colporteur habits of the early Methodist preachers will avail much Christians not in attendance in the day-schools, still leaves a large margin drawn into the Sunday-school that is not found in the day-schools.

The Berean series of Lesson Leaves is used among us with but little dissent. Most of the missionaries speak in very emphatic terms of their value. They are suggestive of most excellent instruction for the schools. "they are full of texts for short sermons" as one of the missionaries writes: They are something for the pupils to carry away and ponder. We have intimations from some missionaries that they might be somewhat changed so as to adapt them a little better to non christian schools. One report says they contain "a superabundance of material." We need hardly suggest that superintendents and teachers should not hesitate to use the Lesson Leaf in the way best adapted to each school and each class. Your Committee think that our Mission cannot do better than confidently continue the use of these Lessons, containing as they do the combined wisdom of many religious denominations on two continents.

We heartily approve of the use of tickets, cards, books and sundry rewards as generally practiced by the missionaries. Sunday-school anniversaries are coming into more general use among us, and well they may. India likes fairs and feasts and festivals, and you never saw a child that did not like candy and the juvenile pageantry of a gala day. We have not space to make suggestions here, but our missionaries may well study the methods of such stations as Lucknow, Moradabad, and Budaon.

Touching the organization and directing of native helpers, your Committee are glad to believe that as a rule this matter is well in hand, but the silence of some leaves room for the suspicion that it may not be so in every case. We find in some cases each helper is furnished with a written or printed plan, in some stations the disciplinary leaders' meetings are kept up, where work is planned and reported. In some stations a point is made of keeping the helpers up to their studies. In one station each helper is furnished with a list of the studies for the year, divided into four quarters to be completed if possible in the time allotted, all of which can be made very useful. In one station a "Young Men's Christian Association" is kept up. This we commend, and also the method, we fear only partially kept up, of making the Quarterly Conference a place for careful reports of the work. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of this matter. The success of the work in each station depends on the esprit de corps of the entire band of workers. Your Committee wish to emphasize this point. The continued and increased efficiency of our Mission in these Provinces depends on it. Some may imagine that because they have but few workers the matter of organization will take care of itself, but we heartily indorse the report of one Brother who writes, "helpers are so scarce about here that one man in respect to the kinds of work done is a legion and is severely organized. I have an exhorter here, organized into five workers."

Besides this general survey of the work and the manner in which it is organized, your Committee have tried to look into special forms of work carried on in the Mission. Medical work, in the mountains, is reported "increasing in usefulness and interest every year." More money, it is claimed, will go a long way to make it more effective. We do not infer any special enlargement or development of medical work in the Plains, but of its usefulness we have no doubt. Our three Orphanages are steadily enlarging and we think in point of sanitation, education, moral government and industrial management, were never more effectively carried on than at present. The building at Bareilly has been vastly improved by enlargement and some new arrangements. The attempt to settle boys in Panahpore as cultivators is a happy plan. We approve the more practical view that has curtailed the over-English education formerly attempted in Shajehanpore and Bareilly Orphanages. The idea of industrial training is becoming more prominent. Paori takes the lead in this matter and perhaps there is nothing to be added to what is there attempted. "The girls do their own washing and ironing and assist in cooking, they shell rice for their own use, they make their own clothes and razais. They are learning to spin woollen yarn and are turning out socks. They often work in the garden and help make improvements in leveling ground when needed." With wives and mothers like these the evangelization of Garhwal on purely natural grounds, is only a matter of time and that not long. "The boys are kept in school only two hours daily, the rest of the time is spent in farm work and in learning to spin and weave hempen cloth." Facts seem to indicate that the numbers in our Orphanages will tend to increase rather than decrease while the demand on these institutions for teachers and preachers will become less as the multiplying Christian community furnishes more numerous candidates for these posts. We absolutely must turn more attention to industrial training in these institutions.

Within the bounds of our work we now have three Christian villages. All of these are somewhat problematic as to their best management, but their importance can hardly be doubted in furnishing homes and a center for the better control and development of many Christian families. Our missionary in Gurhwal claims that a Christian village is needed there now.

Our Press goes on steadily developing in the extent of its operations. In connection with Sunday-school work, especially, is of very great utility. The buildings have recently been much enlarged and publishing facilities have been added as a fine cylinder press and sundry other machines. In connection with the Press and as a special form of work we may state that several missionaries have in hand translations or original productions. Our Press will continue to be furnished with something in the future.

We may refer to the Theological School and suggest, that as it moulds in some degree the mental, moral, and practical life of the preachers in our entire Mission, it is an enterprise that should be looked after with very great care. The attitude of our Mission towards it should be one of sympathy and prayer. Already 43 regular graduates have been sent out to all parts of our work and 27 preachers have taken a partial course.

Your Committee think that our missionaries are striving more and more to make school work give the pupils the gospel in the place of the faith that is pulled down. This is done by making the day-schools Sunday-schools, by regular lectures and preaching in schools, by Bible and catechetical instruction, by the use of text books infused with Christian truth, by employing good Christian teachers as far as possible. Your Committee urge the importance of this matter on the Conference. They regret that all our day-schools are not Sunday-schools and that in some instances where formerly regular lectures were kept up, this has been abandoned. If we would have the time and money so largely expended in this work, tell for the evangelization of the masses, we must not relax our vigilance here, but study even greater effectiveness.

In this matter of education we have tried to find out if there is any neglect of the Christians and have been gratified to find how carefully this matter is being looked after. We doubt if much more can be done without making the Christians too dependent. We must guard the point of self-helpfulness where there is such a tendency to make the Mission "má báp" in everything. We want no educated dependent Christian community. In those districts where Christian children are most numerous we think this matter is being looked after wisely.

As to the wants of our educational work, investigation has brought into greater distinctness several points. Many are calling for more money. Government aid, wholly or in part having been withdrawn at some points, our educational work has suffered. Besides, as the Government has in some degree contracted its efforts, a more available field is presented. Our opportunity was never so good as now. The money and strength we were expending ten years ago would be much more effective now. In some places the want of money is pressing in connection with the education of Christian children. The need of Christian teachers is greatly felt. The demand is very urgent from some of our missionaries. We propound the question for our Educational Board and for the Conference, What can be done to supply Christian teachers? Again, the cry is for better vernacular teaching. At every point we find too many of our Christians more deficient in vernacular training than other natives. The causes of this are various, as the indifference of non-Christian teachers, want of early drill, carelessness of parents, indifference of the pupils themselves because they think their big, wealthy "má báp" the Mission, will take care of them somehow. Here also is a point for our Educational Board to ponder. Another is want of uniformity. One missionary writes that we need "more thorough Christian supervision and a more decided connectionalism in the educational work of our Mission." Another writes, "we need better and uniform text books." Another, "the educational work needs systematizing and working up." Another writes, "we need one set of text books for all Christian schools, especially Vernacular text books. Our Press publishes the Ten Commandments in McMahon's First Book in one way—the Urdu Catechism in another—Allahabad books give different words, and so on, confounding young pupils who happen to meet these differences." Your Committee do not know how far this last difficulty can be controlled, but we urge our Educational Board and Conference to carefully review this whole matter of education among us. Can this work be more completely unified? Can anything be done to meet the demand for Christian teachers? Can anything more be done to make all our schools more effective for evangelism? Let Presiding Elders scrutinize our schools and let delinquents be stirred up to zeal and good works.

III. ENGLISH WORK.

Your Committee have been scrutinizing the question of English work. The stations in which more or less is kept up, are Pooni, Nynee Tal, Bijnour, Moradabad, Bareilly, Shahjehanpore, Lucknow, Seetapore, Cawnpore and Roy Bareilly. In two of these viz. Nynee Tal and Cawnpore the entire time of a missionary is taken up. In Moradabad, Bareilly, Shahjehanpore, Lucknow and Roy Bareilly a considerable part of a missionary's time is taken up, e. g., in Roy Bareilly it is about one-fourth of the time, in Moradabad one day in the week. As to the importance of the work, a variety of opinions have been called out. In one station where there is no English work and apparently but little need for it, the missionary writes, "English is needed here." In another station where the work is kept up extensively, a missionary writes, "I think our English work outside of Nynee Tal, Lucknow, and Cawnpore had better be left alone if it is to tax the missionaries." Your Committee have tried to find out from the missionaries the utility of English work and its bearing on the evangelization of the masses of India for which the missionaries are supported in this country. Replies to our queries have varied. One writes, "no bearings of this on native work are manifest." Another writes, "I cannot tell." Another gives the curious reply, "My own heart is saved from drying up." One would think that the purely native work, so great and glorious and so calculated to arouse every sympathy and energy of the soul if need be would prevent this result. Still it is manifest to your Committee that outside of Nynee Tal, Lucknow, and Cawnpore, where the importance of the work is generally admitted, a measure of good is done for the native work in some instances at least. Money is raised for the work. Sunday-school teachers are secured, in some instances perhaps souls are saved, and the Christian Community raised in moral life, all of which must affect something for evangelism among the natives. At the same time it is the unhesitating conviction of your Committee that any tendency to multiply and magnify English work to the engrossing of the missionary's time and strength so that the work for which our Board is supporting its missionaries in India is neglected, is jealousy to be guarded. Besides it is worthy of thought, whether or not the spectacle of a missionary in the Spirit of Christ nobly devoted to his work, raising up

We learn still of their bigotry and "hatred of Christ," as some of the reports state it—their intellectual revolt at divine mysteri-s, and we may well use the prayer expressed in the report of a native brother submitted to us, "Kash ki Khandā un kī aqloḡ ko apnī Rūb i pāk ke zar-jē se roshan o munawar kare ki yih haqq ke qāil howēḡ."

As to Hindus, we infer that the opposition from them is less in most places than formerly. It is the old story of caste with the repeated statement in the reports of "indifference." Twenty years of preaching and teaching and printing has produced a wide-spread intellectual and perhaps moral preparation and there must be in all this apparent indifference much silent conviction. Oh for the breath of Jehovah on this valley of dry bones!

In the bad example of Europeans we still find a sad obstacle, but this too is less than formerly, rather perhaps from the intelligent discrimination of the natives than from any marked change in the European community. We have striking testimony on this point. One missionary states that "the bad life is seen by thoughtful natives to be no part of Christianity." Another writes, "some live loosely but people here know the true and the false Christian and they know such are false to Christ's teaching. I think they hinder the work but little after all." Still we have pointed testimony to the evil influence of some Europeans. Their Sabbath-breaking and drunkenness stand in the way. One report states that "the too frequent indifference to the salvation of souls," is the great obstacle from Europeans. The indifference of those who claim to be real Christians produces the impression of want of confidence in the Christian system. One missionary writes that "a stupid fear lest they should seem to aid us in proselyting," and "a contempt for native Christians," is a great obstacle. To the same point is the testimony of a native Brother's report; "Ham dekhte haiḡ ki is mulk meḡ Angrezon se baḡī thokar hai, yāne agarchi Angrez īsāī mazhab rukhte haiḡ par us kī taraqqī ke khwā-hāḡ nahīḡ haiḡ balkī butoḡ ke chaukidār haiḡ. Haqiqat meḡ Angrezon se mazhab i īsāī ko kuchh fāida nahīḡ pahunchā hai." All this is most humiliating and a strenuous effort should be put forth to make any English work we keep up contribute to correcting these great evils.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT ON MISSION WORK.

Your Committee have taken note also of the obstacles presented to evangelism by the native Christians themselves. Among these we find mentioned frequently, "Sabbath breaking," "bad character," "want of regeneration," "religious weakness," by which we suppose rather is meant weak religiousness—and "debt." To state and recognize these points with emphasis should be the signal for more vigorous efforts for the salvation of our own people. The most powerful gospel is the pure "living epistle." The necessity of personal holiness should be pressed with unceasing watchfulness on all. It is a pure Church that is "terrible, as an army with banners." The great crucial question with thousands in these Provinces to-day is, can sin be forgiven and can man be saved from sin? This question must be answered by fact, not by theory. As one of the reports puts it "one question soon, will be the only one, 'have we a divine Saviour.'" Frequent revival effort should be put forth wherever we have Christians. Are these saved, let us ask again and again.

The question of debt in some quarters is a crying evil. One missionary writes, "debt is a great obstacle. It 'badnáms' our people in the eyes of others to whom they make promises they cannot fulfil. They are sometimes summoned to court on account of debt." We must grapple with this obstacle, and yet must not aggravate the evil by too much help, for we fear that the radical cause, too frequently, is a sense of security in missionary backing—and our people are encouraged to get in debt by many who think that the Mission somehow is a kind of tacit security.

From this part of our report we turn to one more inviting i. e.

V. INDICATIONS OF SUCCESS.

The report from Roy Bareilly, one of our hardest fields echoes the watchward of Methodism—the glorious legacy of its dying founder,

"God is with us."

Like practiced artillery men watching the shots and with field glass sweeping the wall for signs of the breach, we have turned our eyes toward caste, well called in one of the reports, "the devil's strongest fortress." While some converts are made from all castes, so far the higher castes have stood quite solid, and the body of our converts are from the Chamars, Mehters, Mazbi Sikhs and Doms or "tail fellows" of the Hills. In Bareilly and Budaon the Bairágis, a kind of priesthood to the Chamárs, are being reached. They seem to be losing their hold on their old Chelás and are looking about for new moorings. We find nothing discouraging in the fact mentioned in many of the reports that these low castes are giving way because they have little to lose and much to gain. Man is the same in all ages and countries. The lower motive will awake in the lower moral nature first. Moreover these lower castes form the great mass of the population. Think of more than a hundred thousand Chamárs each in the districts of Budaon, Bareilly and Moradabad. No high caste reaches anything like this number. In some parts of our work the low castes even, have not been affected to any appreciable degree. For instance our native Conference Probationer in the splendid, populous field of Gonda District, writes "is zila men koí kḥás zát yá qaum nahin hai jis men kí ziyáda ummed paí játi hai," and this after more than ten years of work. The solution is doubtless expressed in the report of the missionary in charge of this District who writes, "we have no break in any caste. I think the lowest castes most accessible but our helpers seem afraid to work hard and openly upon them for fear the higher castes will look down upon them and refuse the Gospel." Your Committee can make no better reply to this than quote from

We heartily agree with one of the reports that we should be very cautious that Satan does not entangle the Church in caste. As God makes the wrath of man praise him, so He may yet turn the strength of this hoary institution in favor of evangelism. As it now keeps the people away in masses so ultimately it may bring them in in masses.

Your Committee found much that is encouraging and hopeful in the minute reports of our stations. Only one report seemed pervaded in considerable part with a despondent tone. Others speak of decreased antagonism from Moslems and Hindus generally, except in the case of some reformers. The reports speak of something very hopeful in the education of the country. The controversial literature of the country is toning to a better spirit. Brahmo literature becomes more tolerant of Christianity. The Keshab Chander Sen section, now presents much the appearance of Christian heterodoxy. A ferment of new ideas is going on in most parts of our work, although one report says "ideas do not ferment here," and another, "new ideas are not felt here that I can see." These are the extreme geographical wings of our mission. Generally rapid changes are going on. One report claims that "the ferment indicates that a quarter of a century must bring vast changes in the intellectual life of the people, perhaps not much in their moral life. But the moral will follow." Your Committee endorse the sentiment of one of the reports as to the hopefulness of the ferment of new ideas, and native reform movements, and the increasing power of Christian morals, and ideas, "These are God's agencies for shaking the nation. Missionaries should not stand aloof. Wherever there is a movement of any kind that touches head or heart, the missionaries should be there by throwing into the midst of the ferment the pure doctrines of salvation. When the mind of India is full of controversy, we should not fear discussion. Christian ideas and morals are imperceptibly taking a strong hold of the people through our secular and Sunday-schools and literature."

We here turn to our greatest and most palpable indication of success :—

COMMITTEES REPORT ON MISSION WORK.

VI. THE NATIVE CHURCH.

Your Committee have tried to make a searching investigation into its growth and condition. Only from one station comes the doleful report, "no increase." From one station in Oudh, the report is, "increase slowly from Rohilkund." From several stations the increase is fully ten per cent. per annum. Paori seems to carry off the banner, there being now about 50 baptisms a year. The number of Christians has almost trebled in three years. Apart from the Orphanages, Paori, Moradabad, Budaon and Bareilly now have the greatest rate of increase. Some of the reports point to the significant increase from Christian families. One has it, "a good per cent. especially rapid from Christian families." Another says, "one child to each family every year." May the Psalmist's blessing remain with them.

Your Committee have tried to probe the dependence of the Christian Community on the Mission for support. The result upon the whole is encouraging. The effect of the climate on the liver of some missionaries is apparent in their views of everything. All is seen with jaundiced eyes: apart from this, too, some have not given a careful answer to this question. Your Committee tried to guard it by the qualification that "persons who could easily find support elsewhere should hardly be counted a dependent" on the Mission. The Gonda report says "all teachers, preachers, and servants could get as good service elsewhere." May we continue to be blessed with such dependence as this. Still we do find some genuine dependence apart from the orphanages which are of course exceptional. In Bijnour one-fifth are reported dependent. We think a review of the question would modify this. Moradabad reports "none" from that large community; Bareilly one, Khera Bajhera perhaps two Nynsee Tal, a half dozen out of a community of 130. The Budaon report reads, "there are no Christians in Budaon zila dependent on the Mission for support except some girls in the Boarding school made over to our care during the famine. The great body of our Christians are cultivators who remain in their village homes." Your Committee found much encouragement in this part of their report.

On the question of "self-support" in the native ministry we can say but little more than that, using the language of one of the reports, we have found "a good disposition generally." On this question it is "the day of small things" with us yet. Your Committee take a more encouraging view of this subject than one of our missionaries who writes "the day of self-support is so far away that the nearest fixed star is our neighbor in comparison." In perhaps all our stations now something is given either to a pastor's fund or for the support of the work in some way. In many places from one to two pice per rupee of income is paid. In several stations now, this amounts to from Rs. 3 to 10 per month and in Lucknow to Rs. 20 per month. On this last many a good man could live. In Roy Bareilly even they "give Rs. 5 per mensem," and only "one or two complaining." We have begun and are drilling right. It requires no great draught on faith or imagination to see how on this line we will reach the desired goal. One of the reports puts it thus and well, "It seems to me self-support on a large scale will be feasible only when the native Church increases." We must not be impatient with this poor little Church struggling for an existence in the Indian wilderness. Let us toil away and get men saved in numbers, and, trained aright, the support will come. We have this cheerful and cheering statement from Gurhwal; "the people will be ready to support with food and clothes a man from their own class when the time for this step comes."

touch the rim of a vast question which we close with a quotation from one of the reports, presented for its suggestiveness, not as the mature opinions on every point of this Committee, "The question of the material prosperity of the native Church is one of very great importance. We ought if possible to save our Christians from debts arising (1) from marriage expenses (2) from burial expenses (3) from exorbitant interest. If we had a good kâr-ḵhāna well managed it would be a boon to many of our boys. There can be but little prosperity for the average tiller of the soil in these days. I used to think we ought never to touch these matters but I am doubtful if native Christians will ever learn worldly thrift until they are taught. Who will teach them? To have material prosperity, we need of course Christians in all the walks of life, farmers, mechanics, teachers, government servants, merchants, &c. European capital has been freely used to develop industry in heathen India. Why should we be afraid or ashamed to develop industry in Christian India? We have got to meet this question sometime and we had best be thinking about it now."

Turning to the education of the native Christian community, we find much variation among the stations depending doubtless very largely on the way the community has been got together. Villagers who have remained where they were converted do not generally read. Churches made up largely of munshis and their families of course are taught. The following items will indicate somewhat the way the matter stands as to adults:—In Paori 56 per cent. read, in Pitoragurh all except one who has a valid excuse; she is blind. In Bijnour only "a very small proportion read;" in Moradabad 85 per cent. in the city, and 17 per cent. in the villages; in Budaul 15 per cent; Shahjehanpore 50 per cent; Khara Bajera 25 per cent; Hurdul 85 per cent; Lucknow from 80 to 90 per cent; Gonda nearly all. These are specimens. For children we have a better showing. In most of the stations all children of suitable age attend school. In a very few instances a trifling proportion are out of school. In Moradabad circuit out of 148 children only 7 do not attend school. In Lucknow "perhaps 5 per cent." These facts show that the Christians are the best educated community in these Provinces and this alone will soon make of them a people of intelligence and power. It is very encouraging to find the children so generally cared for. Let us do the best we can for them. Yet we must remember, that it is possible to entertain utopian ideas on this matter. Most of our people are very poor and their children must earn their bread by the sweat of hard manual toil. We should aim at least to teach them to read and write. More than this perhaps in some instance is impracticable and might only act as an element of disturbance and discontent. A suggestion from one of the reports might be adopted where schools cannot be kept up, "Let the native helper, and low salaried teachers, teach from house to house and village to village, giving if necessary a small scholarship to the poor children to enable them to attend regularly when the teacher comes."

From this we turn to a subject of greater importance i. e. the moral life of the native Church. The Church is valuable and vital only as souls in it are fitted for eternity. We should be able, as did Paul, to point to the fornicators and idolaters and thieves and drunkards and revilers and extortioners around us and say "and such were some of you but ye are washed; but ye are sanctified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God." It is easy to take a disheartened and disheartening view of the moral condition of the native Church. A peculiar spiritual fitness is required here. It is possible for the missionary to be too tolerant of sin. And yet he must, like the great High Priest, be touched with the feeling of human infirmity and be able "to have compassion on the ignorant and on them that are out of the way." Your Committee put the question to the missionaries "what can you say of the moral life of the native Church?" A few strangely enough passed the question in silence. One gave the answer "I believe is not yet so as ought," which it will be observed came from a native member of the Conference, and is all the more valuable as indicating a correct ideal and moral sense. This part of our report has decided encouragement in it. With great unanimity our stations report "improvement." One report says "while not what it ought to be, I esteem it encouragingly above that of Hindus among whom they live." Another, "the moral tone of the community is so high that it frowns on such as are guilty and in no way winks at or countenances looseness in morals. We find honor and truth in our members." Another report reads, "improving, they will reject bad members." From two stations, we have almost startling testimony. One reads, "improving, and better than in the English Church;" the other, "the moral life of the most of our native Christians is much in advance of the European Community about us and it is manifestly improving every year." This from two of our oldest missionaries, men of large observation and sober judgment. Depressed as we often become, let us thank God for what He has wrought and take courage. The points to be guarded as we learn from the reports are, Sabbath breaking, tendency to rest in the form, selfishness and perverting to Islam. One of the reports well says "a native Church can be kept up to a good moral tone if the preacher in charge is watchful and keep himself up."

Lying close to this subject is another which we have tried to study, viz., have we any indications of an indigenous evangelistic spirit in the native Church. We regret that this part of our report does not give ground for much gratulation yet. India must be saved, as far as the human agency is concerned, by the love and fire of an indigenous and spontaneous evangelism. As one of the reports has it, "there is little hope for us until our native Church begins to work for the salvation of others." The immediate product of foreign missionary effort is exotic and hot-house in its character. Hence the true missionary watches with a loving, trembling heart the plant the Heavenly Father by him has planted. By indications of an "indigenous evangelistic spirit," your Com-when we throw more responsibility on our native Christians. Another report puts it thus: "Every Sudder station ought to have a native minister on the Church as far as possible. The missionaries do not under such circumstances give the natives freedom enough. They touch everything themselves and make natives mere puppets. Amroha is the most spontaneous, live, interested and interesting quarterly conference in the District simply because there is no big 'bossing' white preacher in charge in the assembly to make all the motions and plan everything. I say more native Padris. Let them make mistakes; the P. E. and the Annual Conference and Finance Committee can keep them straight." To which your committee say Amen. The time will soon come if not fully here now when we must take a new departure. Let us discern the signs of the times. As missionaries we must learn, in order to lead. Let us be filled with wisdom and the spirit, with the true fire of evangelism and it will catch and spread. And here we are brought face to face with the question of:—

VII. PERSONAL PREPARATION FOR THE WORK.

Paul's motto should be ours, "study to show thyself a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." The aggregate efficiency and power of our Mission in these Provinces, depend on the fitness and power of the individual missionaries. That is a bald truism but it needs perpetual emphasizing. Your Committee have tried to pry a little into the intellectual "manner of life" of the missionaries. Paul forgot not his "books and especially the parchments," and kept company with "Zenas the lawyer." The length of this report precludes our dwelling long on this important subject. We are glad to find that all our missionaries except those more recently recruited, and who are at work on it, have completed the Conference course of study. Part of the questions proposed by this Committee have been passed over in dubious silence by some. Having finished the course of study, some of our missionaries seem to be doing but little in studying and reading the vernacular. Some vaguely reply, "I have kept up my studies in the vernacular." One has read only

MSS. for the Press, which, while it may be profitable, is depraving if not guarded. One is multum-non-multa and reads "the Bág o Bahár annually," a plan very good for giving correct idiom and abundant phraseology. A few have read "chiefly popular tracts," good as far as it goes but far short of the best. In two years some have read from 5 to 15 books and tracts, and one "some 25 in part or whole, large and small." It is manifest that only a few of our missionaries read much in the vernacular, far less than would be tolerated at home. Some books named indicate that a few of them very commendably pass beyond "popular tracts." We have the "Qisis ul Ambiyá," "Shad Darshina," "Khirad Afroz," "Misbá ul Balághat," "Mabád ul Hikmat," "Alaf Laila," "Krisht Dharma Khandan," and "Mizák ul Arafin in four volumes, a complete system of Theology from the Mahomedan stand point, very full and in good clear Urdu."

The very general opinion of our missionaries seems to be in favor of cultivating the Urdu. Some say "both;" Urdu for the cities with a large admixture of Hindee words for the villages. The missionaries in the mountains are decided as to the importance of Hindee there, and yet in illustration of the fact that Urdu tends to assert itself over Hindee, one of our missionaries in the mountains says "personally I prefer the Urdu but am compelled to cultivate the Hindee." Your Committee agree with the universal reply of the native members of our Conference who say both Urdu and Hindee should be kept up. Urdu should be freely read and studied and Hindee should be kept up to some extent by all even in the Plains. As a help to the better understanding of the vernaculars our Conference wisely requires some study of Persian, Arabic and Sanscrit, and your Committee have tried to find out to what extent these languages are studied and in what estimate they are held as helps in fitting one for the work. Silence and dubious blanks in large part have rewarded our pains. Of opinions expressed we have all grades from unqualified disapproval to unqualified approval. One writes, "I think they demand more attention than I have given them, to fit me for my work." Another writes, "I have studied a little Persian. I say pro if you can get time." Another writer, "I find the Persian and Arabic line most useful. Every missionary should study Persian, Arabic, and Sanscrit to some extent, as an aid in understanding the vernaculars." On the other hand one writes, "I do not study any of the so-called classics. I am against the study of these languages." Equally emphatic, besides being phenomenal, is the opinion of another, "I have studied a very little in each and do not keep up either. The words bother me while trying to preach to the uneducated. So, for efficient work either as preacher or writer, the continued reading of Sanscrit, Arabic, or Persian is injurious." Here in both directions are emphatic opinions emphatically expressed. In this last statement it may be noted that we have a homeopathic experiment. A "very little" had been studied in each. Possibly this "little," especially as qualified by "very" is the "dangerous thing" that caused the "bother." Your Committee venture the opinion that our Conference is right in requiring some study of these languages. Wesley wrote and spoke such pure and simple English that unlettered servants and ignorant coal-heavers understood him, and yet he spoke a number of languages and made grammars of several. Knowing the greater does not preclude knowing the less. Knowing only the less may greatly circumscribe one's power. How many of our missionaries take up one of the many Urdu periodicals of the N.-W. P. e. g. Newal Kishor's very excellent Awadh Akhbār, and read or hear read with perfect understanding a single leader or "Káraspándans?" Count how many words will "stump him," and then reflect if knowing English to this extent would fit one to be an effective preacher and worker in England or America.

Manual should have a list of the most valuable, recommended for study, in addition to the Conference course. It should be a voluntary course."

On this matter of study the reports reiterate many obstacles. They are, "bad climate," "bad health," "interruptions," "multiplicity of duties," and most frequently, meaning the same as this last, is "want of time." One puts it "want of leisure" but we think on a point connected so intimately with efficiency in work, this ought not to be a question of "leisure." This is one and not least among the "multiplicity of duties." No time lost in whetting is an adage of the reapers freighted with wisdom. It is the keen blade that cuts. It is the quality not quantity of work that tells. And, all for God and souls, with the pure purpose breathed with simplicity in the report of one of our native brethren: "Agarchi koí kḥass course of reading nahín hai táham merí dólí kḥawábish aur duá Haqq Taʿlá se yih hai ki yih mulk i Hindustán jald Masíhi ho jae."

OF THE

First Session.

THE North India Conference and the South India Conference by joint action met in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Allahabad, January 13th 1880, for a Conference reunion. Rev. G. Bowen President of the South India Conference called the assembly to order. He announced the 783rd hymn beginning :—

“ Our God is love and all his saints
His image bear below,”

And after singing, he led the conference in prayer. The President then gave an address of welcome to the members of the North India Conference who had joined the South India Conference at their place of session. E. W. Parker of the North India Conference made a reply.

The Conference reunion was then completed by the election of G. Bowen of the South India Conference as chairman and T. J. Scott of the North India Conference, as Secretary. The 785th hymn beginning :—

“ Jesus united by thy grace
And each to each endeared—”

Resolved 1. That as instructed by our respective conferences we do hereby constitute ourselves a corporate body for the management and control of our common interests in India, and to exercise such functions as may be assigned to it, by the General Conference. Provided that the delegated body shall take no action contravening the organic law of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Resolved, that a committee of five be appointed to watch the progress of the proposed educational measures now before the supreme Government, and that they have authority to take such action from time to time in the name of these united conferences, as the exigencies of the case may require. J. M. Thoburn, D. O. Fox, D. Osborn, E. W. Parker and G. H. McGrew, were appointed said committee.

On motion the following relating to a Sunday school Union for the Methodist Episcopal Church in India was adopted :—

Whereas, the Sunday School is one of the chief institutions of our Church for the winning of this world to Christ and—

Whereas we the members of the two conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church in India, met in joint session, find that the requirements of our work in India demand united action in the interests of Sunday schools, therefore :—

PRESIDING ELDERS' REPORTS.

ROHILKUND DISTRICT.

REV. E. W. PARKER, PRESIDING ELDER.

THE working force of this District consists of eight Missionaries with their wives, two American ladies of the Woman's F. Missionary Society, nine Zanana assistants, seventy-four Bible-women and native Christian Teachers in girls' schools, fifty-four Native Preachers, fully devoted to pastoral and evangelistic work, seventeen Native teachers in boys' schools, and six native Colporteurs, who give their entire time to selling Scriptures and Christian books. Besides this force of paid Christian workers, we have many Exhorters and Leaders who support themselves by their own work, and yet are efficient helpers. We also have a large force of non-christian male and female teachers in our schools. Several of the preachers are wholly or partially supported by the native Churches, and we have raised in India through Government aid, subscriptions of friends, collections from native churches, etc., $10,654. This does not include the income of endowments. In connection with the native Church and mostly under native pastors we have 2,199 communicants. In our Sunday-schools there are 5,043 scholars of all ages and in our day-schools 4,063. There have been baptized during the year 110 adults and 170 children.

There are some facts, which in our annual review always give the Missionary new courage. (1.) The native preachers are becoming better educated, more experienced, more entirely

Still our progress is slow. Old systems, which are so interwoven with all the customs and habits of thought and belief and life of a people that at every stage of life from birth to death, and connected with every event and every change and season, some religious ceremonies must be performed, which are as sacred as life itself, do not die quickly. Add to this fact, that we strike a death-blow to so much that the people hold as sacred, this other fact, that we present a heart-purifying, life-renewing spiritual religion in place of outward ceremonies and observances, which interfere very little with the thoughts or passions or moral lives of the observers, and any thoughtful person can foresee that a difficult task is before the worker who would lead sin-loving men away from these sacred observances and from such a sense-pleasing religion to one that is spiritual and self crucifying in its nature.

The station reports written by those in charge will explain each phase of our work.

BAREILLY CIRCUIT.

REV. T. J. SCOTT, Missionary.

REV. J. T. JANVIER, Native Pastor.

Our work goes steadily on. Baptisms for the year are adults 26, children 40. Three new schools for boys and one for girls have been opened. One school for boys has been closed. We have an increase of 5 new Sunday-schools. There is much encouragement in this form of work. This brief general statement shows that we have growth.

Bareilly City.—The native Church here now consists of 250 members and probationers. In Bro. J. T. Janvier we have a good native pastor, for years so much needed in this station. I am confident that the tone of the native Church has been improved during the year. We have had a few excisions but many more accessions. The new preaching Hall in the city is a fine place for work, and when its surroundings are opened out and arrangements made for gathering more of our Christian people there for worship, it will be much more effective. School work remains about the same in the city. Mrs. Scott keeps up a school for Christian women on the verandah of the mission house. More recently a school for small Christian boys has been opened in the same place.

During the year we have secured a much needed burial place for the native Christians near the Mission premises. A small gift of land was obtained from Government to which we added by purchase, and the place has been surrounded by a neat brick wall, the whole costing some Rs. 630, of which Rs. 100 were contributed by the native Christians.

Pilibheet.—Continues to be an out-station to Bareilly, and is at present occupied by D. P. Kidder, a graduate last year from our Theological School. He has worked well. He built during the year a small school-house costing some Rs. 80, half of which he collected from Hindus and Moslems.

Aonla.—Is still an encouraging point in our work. A number of Sweepers were baptized there early in the year, and they have endured persecution firmly. The helper Silas reports a spirit of inquiry among the Sweepers of other villages and also among the Chamars. We are planning to press the work among this caste, numbering in this District considerably upward of 100,000 souls. We have encouragement in the fact that two of their Bairagi Gurus or teachers have been baptized and are now preaching.

Other out-stations reported in connection with Bareilly last year are here now omitted, being formed into separate circuits under native Conference members. This has narrowed the present report some. The territory formed into a circuit has been well worked by the native Brother in charge.

THE THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.

A Missionary of a Society, representing perhaps the largest experience and widest effort of all the Societies at work in the country, in a Report on the Society's educational policy in India, claims that Theological Institutions should be regarded as of paramount importance. We have felt during the past year more deeply than ever the gravity of this difficult work of selecting and training a native ministry. We have twenty-one men under instruction. Of these thirteen are about to graduate after the usual course of three years' study. Some of these are men of experience in the work, who came here for a course of training. They are happy now to resume their places in the field. One of the best men in this class was removed after two years' study, so urgently were his services needed at Cawnpore. A second class of eight is pushing along and already recommendations have been made for a new class of nine. Three members of our middle class are from the Rajputana Mission. A few men who were present in a preparatory class were sifted out as not possessing the qualification and promise required.

Great as the burden of the school has been in connection with many other mission duties, it has been no small pleasure to assist these men in fitting for the work. They come, as a rule, so ill prepared, either in secular study or knowledge of the Bible and Christian truth that the task of training them in subjects special to a Theological School is tedious and difficult. But their eagerness to learn, and manifest happiness in acquiring fitness for their work, sweetens the toil of teaching. Rev. M. L. Banerjee and Rev. J. T. Janvier, the native pastor of the Church in Bareilly, have rendered important aid in carrying on the instruction of the School.

Our course of study remains the same with some slight changes indicated by experience. All theology and every opinion is brought immediately to the test of the Bible. In matters not clearly revealed, large latitude is granted to the men in forming independent and original opinions. The great difficulty is to form in these men independent, self-reliant and enterprising character, in thought and action. A class of seven have been pursuing New Testament Greek with some degree of encouragement. I am convinced that, although in many cases no great progress be made, there is for the men an important element of influence in this study, in dealing with Moslem and Hindu opponents. It often adds force to a point to produce a Greek New Testament and read a text to men who deny or doubt its existence. It is quite a problem to determine how to make a Theological School what it should be in India. What Cordova became to Islam in Spain, what Iona of Scotland, and the ruined castle of Vosges in France became through the learning and piety and zeal of Columba and Columbanus to Christianity in the West, and what Alexandria became to Christianity in the East—such should our Theological Schools be in the nascent Church of India now—centers of learning and of spiritual power and of training in all that will fit the preacher for the conflict with paganism and Islam as they now exist in India. The problem is to use the time allotted, to the best advantage for all this. Two points may well be kept clearly and constantly in view, thorough training in the Scriptures and qualification to understand "the situation" and requirements of the work. It would be well perhaps so to arrange that some of the men return for an addendum course of study in certain directions, when they have more experience and can be spared from the work.

The wives of these students are regularly trained in a class that meets at the Mission House under the superintendence of Mrs. Scott. Some of them make good progress and bid fair to be helpful in the work of their husbands.

It has not been all study, for our students have preached extensively during the year. They work in bands in the city during the hot months, and among the villages during the cool weather. Places at convenient distances on the Railway are visited and all the melas within reach become seasons of preaching. Thus the influence of the school is felt within a considerable radius. A new point in our working plans has been the daily visiting of the Railway trains by the students for colportage work. Something is thus done in the distribution of Scriptures and books and the men are taught to make this a part of their evangelistic work.

A pleasant matter in the experience of the year was a reunion of a number of former graduates, at the Christian mela held at Shahjehanpore in October. There were representatives present from every class that has left the School, men from all parts of Oudh and Rohilkund. An Alumni Association was formed which will increase and perpetuate the sympathy of our graduates for each other and for the school. God has graciously preserved the lives and honor of the men. We have had no deaths among the old graduates, and with but rare exceptions they are working well. One present at that reunion has passed through sore trials during the year. First his wife, an intelligent gentle worker, died suddenly from afterwards to secure Government Service, while our offering scholarships has brought the poorer class to us. We had expected to receive Christian boys from the Moradabad and Shahjehanpore schools for our Entrance or Upper Classes, for there are scores of such who need education. None however came this year from either school. From our experience I am confirmed in my opinion that we should aid only Christian boys and that the school should be so changed that lower classes may be formed for smaller boys.

During the year valuable additional land has been purchased to enable us to enlarge our accommodation in connection with the City School. The Suddar bazar school numbers fifty boys. The building, which fell down during the rains of 1879, has been rebuilt and is now a good substantial building. Most of the boys in all our day-schools attend the Sunday-schools held in their school buildings.

FATEHGUNGE CIRCUIT.

REV. IBRAHIM SULEMAN, Native Pastor.

The work of this circuit is similar to that of other country circuits. There are Christians in several villages who have shown true courage and real perseverance in remaining firm through the persecution that has assailed them. There are two day-schools with forty-one pupils connected with them, and three Sunday-schools with eighty-one scholars of all ages. The Church numbers twenty-three communicants. The pastor here is a converted Jew and he has gained a wonderful influence in the community. At one place it looks as though a heathen temple would by the conversion of the owners come over to the side of Christ, as a temple to the living God,

All the people in the villages around know and respect this pastor, and a foundation has been laid for a good work.

KHERA BAJHERA CIRCUIT.

This work is mostly supported by the endowment of Colonel Gowan. There are three good day-schools, one for boys and two for girls, and also three good Sunday-schools. The Christian community is still small. Our work here has met with hindrances of all kinds year after year. It has seemed at times as though the enemy of all good had tried his very best to prevent the cause of Christ from prospering here. In former years unfaithful helpers brought reproach to the name of Christ, then, when a young and hopeful Church was formed, some of the most hopeful of these were led astray and did all they could, with all the ingenuity of the evil one, to injure the cause they had professed to love. During the two past years the little Church has been at peace and the work is now encouraging again. The schools have constantly continued their work, and now a foundation is laid for a future Church. One young man from this school who was converted a few years since is just about to graduate from the Theological School, and has received an appointment as a native preacher. It was worth much to save and send out this one man to preach the Gospel.

BUDAON CIRCUIT.

REV. MAHBUB KHAN, Native Minister, Kukrala.
REV. ANTONE DATT, Native Minister, Bilsa.

DURING the past year our Sunday-school work has considerably increased; in fact the attendance has nearly doubled, increasing from 500 to 950; especially in Budaon city the increase in attendance and in interest has been very marked. In the city there are twenty-one Sunday-schools: five of these are Sunday-schools without any day-school connected with them. In the case of three of these we employ a Mahomedan lad for each to act as chaprasi and gather boys on Sunday, and we pay him at the rate of Re 1. per hundred for the average attendance of his school for the month. The chaprasi furnishes a room for the school, and usually his father, mother, brother, and sisters, help him in gathering the children. A Christian man goes to the school and teaches the children. Each Christian teacher has two schools to care for. In Datagunj, Chhida Lal has kept up a school averaging about fifty pupils, which meets only on the Sabbath, and has no connection with a day-school, and the children come of their own accord. Appearances indicate that this form of Christian effort will increase almost indefinitely. Every educated Christian in the District can give a few hours each Sunday to this work. The Mission employees do not find it burdensome to conduct two, or sometimes three purify man. At the Kakora Mela I visited them in their own encampments and sat down in their midst. I found a number fully ready to join us, some of them being independent cultivators. Eight men came at one time and requested to be baptized then and there. Among the Thakurs in the Bilsa and the Dataganj direction, there is quite a marked tendency towards Christianity. Bro. Antone Dutt has done faithful work among them for five years. At first they would hardly allow him to enter their houses; now he is heartily received, and many give a little towards his support. He is steadily gaining in the estimation of all the people.

The Christians derived from the Sweepers are separating themselves from their unbaptized relatives, and the second generation seem determined totally to break the connection; this to a degree is favorable for it helps to raise the people from their social degradation, but at the same time it closes the door of access to the unbaptized. The whole body of the Sweepers, some ten thousand, is open to the Gospel: they are at the bottom of the social scale, and usually there are but a few in a village so that we find it difficult to properly instruct them. A qualified man is needed to pass from village to village and tell this people of Jesus and His love. Helpers derived from the Sweepers' caste and working in the District where their relatives meet them are not able to reach people of other castes. We have faithfully tried the experiment for ten years, and find that it does not succeed. This year most of our out-stations are manned by men from other castes, and the way is now open for work in every section of the community.

The Kakrala work is in the charge of Bro. Mahbub Khan. The Honorary Magistrate of Budaon, Sharf-ud-Din, who is a large landholder in Kakrala, gave us an eligible site in the heart of the town, and this year we have erected a commodious mud house for the Preacher. Bro. Mahbub Khan is getting his work well in hand. At first he found the field exceedingly sterile and the prospect for a harvest very small, but steady application has enabled him to overcome the difficulties, and he now reports a great change in the people and in their feelings about the Gospel.

There are Christians living in sixteen villages about Kakrala, and a Christian community of nearly one hundred. With one or two exceptions, they are all steadfast in the faith, though they lack in knowledge and must be instructed.

The work among the women and girls is exceedingly interesting. Daily the good tidings are carried to scores of homes, and about five hundred women and girls are under daily instruction. Budaon city is filling up to the full with Christian truth. Like the water during the rains, the thirsty land absorbs its falling streams and it leaves no apparent impression until the parched earth is filled with the sparkling water and the small lakes cover the land.

MORADABAD CIRCUIT.

REV. H. MANSELL, Missionary.

AFTER thirteen years' absence from this field I return to find things I had earnestly prayed for and hoped to see, more than realized. There are now hundreds of converted men and women in the Circuit where then among the few scores we had baptized with water scarce one could be said to be truly converted. There are now also native ministers and preachers able to lead them on to exemplary lives and efficient Christian propagandism. Two flourishing circuits too have been cut off from my then field, and there is more left than any one man can manage properly even with all the efficient help there is here. This state of affairs caused me to begin the year with joy and hope.

I. State of the Church. My predecessor had left all the machinery of Methodism well oiled and in running order. There was no adjustment necessary; nothing to do but take the helm and order "Forward!"

The Class-meetings, Prayer meetings, Love Feasts, and Leaders' meetings have gone on as usual like clock-work. Sixteen weekly class meetings and five or six prayer-meetings have been kept up during the year; the growth of the church in grace has been on the whole satisfactory; though some quarrels have saddened our hearts and somewhat impeded the progress of the Gospel. Thirty-five have been received into full membership, and five by letter, while only a few have left, so we have gained some in membership. Not so many have been baptized as last year, so we have fewer probationers. Crops were better and times easier than last year, but the liberality of the church has not kept up with the prosperity. Our Missionary collection is less. They have paid their pastor Rs. 84, and distributed about Rs. 30 to the poor, besides keeping up a school at Rs. 3 per mensem and supporting three or four boys' schools at at Rs. 2 each per mensem.

We still have the utmost faith in this kind of work, thinking it the most efficient mission work that can be done.

III. Sabbath Services. The congregations in the City School Hall have fluctuated much, on account of cholera and other causes. With the girls in Mrs. Parker's School and our native Christians living in the city, we have a regular attendance of over one hundred and fifty Christians, while the number of Hindus and Mahomedans varies from fifty to two hundred or over. Yet it is cheering and inspiring to have so many non-Christians sit quietly and listen as they do with deep attention to the Gospel of Christ.

Years ago as I used to stand upon a well by the wayside in the crowded bazars to "sing up a crowd," if only a few boys came at first and the crowd was slow to gather, the thought would come, What will you do when the novelty wears away and none comes to hear you? I then resolved to follow them to their work in the shop or the field. But thank God, the novelty has not worn off, and instead of having to follow them they follow us into this Christian temple which many of them helped to build. What proof this is of the power of the Gospel, and what assurance of ultimate and complete success in the near future! Thank God for this house of God among these two hundred temples and mosques!

IV. Sunday-Schools. The City Sunday-school is about as it was last year; and by constant effort it can not only be kept up, but increased. We use the Lesson Books and Leaves and make part of the Wednesday evening prayer-meeting a teachers' meeting. We read the lesson and recite Scripture proofs of its doctrine, explain the difficulties, and then pray for help to teach it properly next Sabbath.

We started three new Sunday-schools here and one in Chandansi, and some meetings are called Sunday-schools which were not reported last year. This accounts for the increase. In all these Sunday-schools there is an apparently large increase during the year. We have in these schools the most blessed opportunities of sowing the good seed upon the best of ground. And the brightness of many of these Hindu and Mahomedan boys gives us hope that the seed will soon spring up and the harvest will come. Of the 1,200 scholars of all ages, only 300 are reported Christian and 900 non-christian. What a field !

V. Day-Schools. Our local subscriptions have greatly fallen off, but since April we have received a monthly grant of Rs. 30 from the Municipality for our schools. The numbers in the City Boys' school have increased a little and we have started two new ones in wards in the city, and one in a village twelve miles away. We report thirteen boys' schools and eighteen girls schools, with a total of one thousand and seventy-five scholars on the rolls.

AMROHA CIRCUIT.

Rev. H. A. CUTTING, Native Minister.

We have had no special hindrances in our work this year. All the different kinds of work have been carried on regularly according to our plan and the policy of our Church. The scattered condition of our people is still a great obstacle in the way of giving all the instruction desirable, especially inquirers and new members ; still we have used every means within our reach for the advancement of the people in knowledge and experience. Their spiritual and worldly condition seems to be much in advance of last year. In the Christian Mela (Camp-meeting) held in our Circuit, the Holy Spirit came upon us in power and many of our most experienced Christians were wonderfully blessed, and others were awakened to new zeal, while several persons were converted and in their own peculiar idiom gave clear testimony for Christ.

The Church is trying as never before, to keep all unworthy men outside and to keep itself pure and clean. Leaders and stewards are especially growing stronger in every respect and are a great help to us in all the work of the Church. Still there is not that love and zeal for regularly attending the Sabbath services and for family worship that there should be. There is one especial reason why all do not manifest the intellectual and spiritual growth we much desire : our people being poor are often subject to those who are not Christians, and hence cannot always be free to attend the Sabbath services, or to properly keep the day holy. But I have noticed that those who are faithful to God are also blessed in worldly affairs and are becoming independent and free. God seems to be showing us that those who serve Him faithfully shall also prosper in this world. These are happy and thankful for the truth as shown them in Christ. Others who are not faithful in their religion remain poor, and fail in their

THERE have been twenty-one baptisms during this year, of whom nine were adults and twelve children. There are connected with the Church fifty-four members, seventy-one probationers, and sixty-four baptized children. Our evangelistic work has been done this year more by visiting friendly communities in the city and holding meetings in their midst, and in preaching in villages and at religious fairs, than through bazar preaching. In the city of Sambhal there are four schools, two for boys and two for girls. In the larger boys' school there are ninety-six scholars, of various classes, and English, Persian and the Vernacular are well taught. We have at present no Christian teacher for this school, and hence the religious teaching is not as regular and thorough as we could desire. The other boys' school is at Hetam Sarai and thirty boys attend, all of whom are of the Chumar caste. The grade of this school is low, but the religious teaching is thorough and satisfactory. There are also several sincere inquirers at this place. It is under the charge of Mutwassi Singh, and his wife is regularly teaching the women and girls,—mothers and sisters of the school boys, who listen and learn with great earnestness; so that we have great hope from all this work. There are Sunday-schools in connection with both of the above day-schools. In Chimman Sarai there is a girls' school of twenty-five girls among Mahomedans, and another in Nuriya Sarai, of eighteen girls. In these also there are Sunday-schools, and the Christian women who conduct them find excellent opportunities for talking to the women of the vicinity who come together at the school. There is no prejudice against our teaching in these vicinities. In a large village six miles from Sumbhal there are two more girls' schools similar to those at Sumbhal. Several girls here have read the entire New Testament. Mrs. Haqq has charge of these schools.

At the village of Rasulpur, Ummed Singh has an interesting work. There are about fifty Christians, great and small, in the vicinity, and their children are well taught daily. The Sunday-school here is also very good. At Sharikpur, Kallu is the preacher, and in the villages around there are many Christians and inquirers whom he is teaching. We have also here an itinerant teacher who goes from village to village teaching the children to read as they are so scattered that they cannot come together at one place. Christianity has made a favorable impression throughout all this section, and we hope for more fruit here ere long. At Gangeshri, twenty miles from Sumbhal, Yaqub is the preacher. There is here a nominal Christian community of about thirty adults and children, and a very large number of lukewarm inquirers. All are being well taught. Our people experienced loss and trouble from the flood, and have had other trials, but all have remained firm, none have fallen away during this year. We praise God for the help He has given us, and we are praying that His grace may be manifested in great abundance.

BIJNOUR CIRCUIT.

REV. A. D. McHENRY, Missionary.

THE Missionary has been absent from his work eight months of this year on account of sickness; during which time the burden of the work has fallen on the native preachers. They have all proved themselves trustworthy and efficient, and have shown their ability to occupy responsible positions, which has been our greatest consolation while separated from the work. The number of baptisms and accessions to the Church has been less than it would have been could the closing months of the year have been spent in itinerating and visiting the inquirers at the various points. At the close of last year a preacher was obtained for Dhampur where a community of Sweepers desired instruction. A school was opened for their boys and all the inquirers have been well taught for a year, and a number are awaiting the visit of the Missionary to receive baptism. The work in the vicinity of Mandour under the care of Yaqub, is very promising. His love and zeal know no bounds, and his influence is consequently very great. He visits all regions round about and has inquirers in several villages, the most notable of which is Sudpoora, where two years ago he began visiting a community of Chumars. He first taught their boys to read by giving them a weekly lesson in a shoe-maker's shop. The shoe-maker himself also learned the lesson and prompted the boys during the week, so that on visiting the village at the close of the year we found about seventeen boys, the more advanced of whom could read one half of the first reader, and all could recite about one third of the catechism and sing several hymns. A young Christian man has been sent as a regular teacher for the school, the people building a house for him among themselves, we furnishing only the materials for the roof and door, and he has been teaching a school of seventeen boys at one time in the day, and about the same number of girls at a later hour. more advanced Christian boys in our Central School have been sent to the Government School as we have not the means to keep the staff of teachers required to teach the higher branches. The girls, owing to the ample provisions of the Women's Missionary Society, are being provided with much better educational privileges.

The heavy rains that caused the calamity at Nynsee Tal did much damage to our Mission property at Bijour. The girls' school, the teachers', and preachers' houses were much damaged, and the front veranda and tower of our Church and School building were both so much shattered that what did not fall down had to be taken down.

SHAJEHANPORE CIRCUIT AND BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

REV. T. S. JOHNSON,	Missionary.
REV. C. L. BARE,	Do.

THERE is so much to do, and time is passing so rapidly that it is difficult to find much time for writing Reports. There are in different places, both in the City and District, very interesting inquirers after the truth. In Muhamdee, eighteen miles to the east, a young man became a Christian a few years ago; but has not been able, because of persecution, to live at his home much of the time since. In the early part of the year he accompanied our itinerating party to his old home, and in the evening he succeeded in getting to his house, where he found his mother, who was so pleased to see him and to learn that he was trying to lead a pure life, that she arranged to quietly send food to him and the native brethren of the company during our stay in the place. A young man, a former associate, who wished to come to our camp for further instructions was guarded day and night while we remained there, his friends fearing he too would become a Christian. There are two respectable families in the place who declare their belief only in Christ and their intention to be baptized in His name. A good Native Preacher is greatly needed to labor in this place.

Eighteen miles to the south of the City where the interesting enquirer lives whose baptism was mentioned in last year's report, a Native Preacher has been laboring for more than a year.

At the time of our visit there, last March, it was found that a daughter about eighteen years of age, who had been faithfully instructed by the helper's wife, had made up her mind to receive baptism, but the mother and brother were determined to prevent it. The brother demanded of the father an immediate division of the estate in order that he might be separated from the contaminating influences of Christianity. Upon being informed that this could not be done, he said he would either shoot his father or be shot himself. When he was informed that he must recant and ask his father's pardon or the Police would be called and he would be arrested at once, he joined his hands and asked for pardon, and the sister was baptized. After conversation and prayer the young man seemed in his right mind again, but upon returning to the house he began to abuse his sister, striking and kicking her in the most vindictive manner. He, however, was soon brought to terms again, and seeing that he could accomplish nothing gave over his persecution for the time. The pandit or teacher, who for years had been employed in teaching in the family soon became an inquirer, and with his wife broke his caste, and they are candidates for baptism.

Sunday-Schools. An interesting part of our work is in the Sunday Schools. These have been inaugurated through the agency of the day-schools, in each of which, twenty-two in number—including girls' schools—there is a Sunday-school, composed generally of the scholars of the day-schools, with a few others who are induced from time to time to attend. This brings between seven and eight hundred children and young people into the Sunday-schools, the good effects of which are apparent in many ways. Beside the general impression made upon the minds of the children in favor of the truth, numbers of them learn to personally accept Christ. A girl of the Brahmin caste, about fourteen years of age, who had for several years, been regularly taught in one of the schools, was stricken down with cholera, and when her parents and friends were calling upon their imaginary gods and preparing to perform idolatrous rites of worship, she forbade them, declaring that such worship was not only useless, but wrong—that she believed in Jesus Christ, that her heart was stayed upon Him, and that he sustained and kept her in perfect peace. She repeated the eyes and the lungs of the boys, and several boys died. In the midst of this, when it seemed certain that the disease would go through the entire school, daily prayer meetings were commenced, with the twofold object of asking the Lord to stay the disease, and to restore those who were sick. Some of the sick ones died after the prayer meeting was begun, but the further spread of the disease was checked from that day, as there was but one more attack, and that not a serious one, while up to that time numbers came down daily, and as the boys live together, all had been exposed. For such a disease, under such circumstances to stop short on the day the prayer meetings were inaugurated, indicated clearly enough, that it was of the Lord and in answer to prayer, to whom be praise for ever. The Hospital, the erection of which was begun last year, has been completed, and is of very great use to the institution, as well as to many outside of it. The daily average throughout the year of persons treated, was about eighty, the daily average for the month of May was one hundred and twenty-one. Government kindly gives the medicines, and Hindoos and Mahomedans, as well as Christians and the Orphans, receive treatment.

The colony of boys sent last year to Panahpore—the Christian village ten miles distant—has been increased from nine to sixteen, and the work of cultivation there has been considerably extended. One of the boys sent out last year will soon be married, and land will be set off to him, when he will commence work upon his own account, which causes me to hope that other boys will follow as fast as they become able to meet such responsibilities. The control of the village has been transferred within the year from the Theological Seminary to the Orphanage, and it is hoped that a number of the boys will eventually find means of livelihood here.

The Mechanical Department continues to prosper; thirty of the boys are learning tailoring, twenty-four carpentry, twenty shoe and boot making, sixteen weaving, and six smithing; while the others who are big enough, work in the fields and gardens during work hours. Five hours daily are devoted to school, which all the boys who are big enough attend, excepting the sixteen at Panahpore—who devote their time mostly to agriculture, and a few others here who read but two hours daily, giving the rest of their time to manual labor. There has been a little change in the staff of teachers, as three of them, and one from the City School, have recently been transferred to the Mission Schools in Lucknow. While this caused a little temporary inconvenience, it speaks well for the Orphanage School, as three of the men were raised and educated in it. The present staff of teachers are competent and are doing their work well. One of the boys has just been recommended by the District Conference as a proper candidate for the Theological Seminary. He is already a pretty good preacher, and also a good carpenter, while one of the best shoe-makers from among the former boys is now a member of the Annual Conference.

PANAHPORE.

REV. HORACE J. ADAMS, Native Minister.

ALL the people of this village are Christians and are farmers, and my work is especially among these, though I often preach in the villages around. The Church is large, there being 130 full members and 53 probationers. These people love our religion and are faithful in attendance on the means of grace. My plan of work is as follows: On Sunday morning at eight o'clock we have our Sunday-school in which there are 260 scholars of all ages, at half-past nine we have a class meeting for the men, at twelve o'clock our preaching service is held, at half-past four the class for Christian children meets, in which the children show great interest, and at seven in the evening a general prayer meeting is held. The class-meeting for the sisters meets on Wednesday, and Mrs. Adams has a daily meeting for women at twelve o'clock in which she reads a lesson from the Bible and teaches the women and has prayer with them. This has proved a very profitable means of grace to our sisters in the village. On Thursday evening another public prayer meeting is held. During the year five adults and fifteen children have been baptized. In the villages around there are many enquirers, and our people have a good name among "them which are without." Much preaching has been done in the villages around, and one Bible woman is also employed especially for this work. There are two day-schools in the village, one for boys and one for girls in which both religious and secular instruction is given.

Our converts are still generally from the lower strata of society and are mostly people of the villages. There can be found, however, in these provinces not a few educated men of the higher classes who are entirely convinced of the truth of Christianity, but lack the conviction and courage to face the opposition and shame involved in openly accepting Christ.

The numbers baptized in our native work since our last report was written are, adults 45, children 32. Our Christian community has grown from 355 to 396. Our people are generally poor, but, with the exception of children under instruction, are self-supporting. Notwithstanding they are generally quite recently from heathenism and lack commonly in the degree of intelligence we would like to see them possess, and have many imperfections and weaknesses, still they serve as an evangelizing agency perhaps second to none, and their power in this line increases as they improve in knowledge and Christian experience and life.

A very prominent need of our work at present is an increased number of native preachers and Christian teachers.

NATIVE WORK.

REV. P. M. BUCK,	Missionary.
REV. T. GOWAN,	Native Minister.

A summary review of our work may be given as follows:

1. Schools—These are nine in number for boys, and have been attended during the year by 380 pupils. With the exception of the one in Naini Tal proper, all are vernacular and of a primary grade. Considerable care has been exercised to secure to the boys attending these schools proper religious instruction. Mudge's Catechism of the Bible has been used and found well adapted to these primary schools. The want of Christian teachers has been felt in this work.

The Anglo-Vernacular School in Naini Tal has been conducted most of the year by Mr. Marston, a European, and the result has been a higher degree of efficiency than existed last year. An encouraging degree of advancement was made until the storm came, resulting in the terrible land-slip of September 18th, which rendered the hill above the entire Mission premises so unsafe that our work was quite broken up, and the school when opened again assumed its winter proportions, during which time, Naini Tal is largely depopulated. Much and careful attention has been given to the religious instruction of these boys, and their theoretical knowledge of the Bible and Christianity would not compare unfavorably with that found among children of the same grade in a Christian land. But a deep conviction of sin and a pressing sense of the need of such a Savior as is found in Jesus Christ are required before one can hope to see them embrace Christianity in the face of the opposition involved. A weekly preaching service has been kept up in this school by the Missionary.

2. Sunday-schools.—These are five in number and have been attended by 160 scholars. They are kept up in connection with the secular schools. The Bible pictures given as prizes for attendance are found very attractive and, while conveying important lessons, are made the means of gathering many of our heathen boys.

3. Itinerating.—The season opened as usual with a series of tent-services held in all the centers of our work at the base of the mountains. Our modes of work were preaching, conversation, and book-selling, and each night Scripture views were exhibited by means of a Magic Lantern, and lectures given on the subjects involved. The last named part of our work especially drew large crowds and they never wearied of these exercises. Not only were the common people attracted by this means, but all classes were reached. Through these various modes of work much seed-sowing was done and the results left with Him who giveth the increase. After the annual migration to the hills some itinerating was carried on and bazar preaching was kept up with considerable regularity.

E. W. Parker were secured, who each delivered a series of four lectures. The audiences were never larger, several times quite filling the English Chapel, and the interest manifested was encouraging. Large numbers were in this way reached who cannot be drawn into ordinary services nor will they listen to preaching in the bazar.

6. Results.—As is common in India, the meagre results do not seem to compare favourably with the amount of labor performed. Often is the labourer inclined to exclaim with the prophet, "Lord who hath believed our report and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" In Naini Tal proper little more fruit is discernible than an increased spirit of friendliness. There are perhaps not a few who understand the theory of the Gospel and admit its correctness, but the fear of man and indifference to spiritual things paralyses all inclination to action. One man, a household servant employed in the station, applied for and obtained baptism. He was formerly the servant of a chaplain who took an interest in the spiritual welfare of his native servants, and held daily prayers with them. In these exercises seed was sown in this man's heart which resulted in the fruitage of Christian faith. Were there many more of this class among the European population of India how much might by them be done toward the evangelization of its people. In our work carried on at the foot of the mountains several families have been added to our Christian community.

The conversion of two of these families is deemed worthy of notice as illustrative of the manner in which God, to a considerable degree, carries on His work among these people. In the early history of mission work in Naini Tal a native contractor from the interior, carrying on business here, was induced to make over to the missionary a young brother, a bright lad attending the mission-school in the place, the parents being dead. This lad grew up to manhood and became a Christian preacher. His influence upon his people became such that the oldest brother, who made him over to the missionary, dying a few years since in the preacher's home, passed away in the faith of Jesus Christ, and now the remaining brother comes into our Christian community with his wife and children.

The other case is as follows: Some years since death came to a village household a few miles from Naini Tal and two or three victims were claimed: much money was expended in offerings to the gods and Brahmins but to no purpose. Finally the eldest son of one of the brothers constituting said household, a lad of six or seven, was prostrated by disease, and in spite of all the offerings made, grew worse and worse, until the heart-broken father sat watching to see him die. While in this extremity he remembered a Christian book he had read some time previous, which contained accounts of deeds of healing performed by Jesus Christ, whom Christians worship. He determined as best he knew as a last resort to apply to Him. He knew not how to approach Him, but taking water he sprinkled it on his boy in Jesus' name and promised if he should recover to become a Christian. The child began to come round and in due time was well. The father kept his vow, and in the face of stern opposition declared himself a Christian and brought his wife and children with him to the missionary for baptism. He has ever been one of the most consistent and zealous among our people. It was not long until a brother and his family, except one son, became so favorably inclined toward Christianity that they were willing to accept Christ openly, but this one son possessed such influence and was so bitter in his opposition that all were kept back by him. During the latter part of last year, however, when the terrible fever scourge swept over these parts, he was smitten down and was given up to die. In this condition his eyes seemed to be opened, and he saw the mistake he had made. He called for his Christian uncle and expressed a desire to become a Christian himself before he should die, and in January last we had the pleasure of baptizing him and all the members of the family that could be present. He has since recovered from his illness. Thus is God using the bonds of human relationship to draw men to the Cross.

The terrible storm resulting in the memorable land-slip of September 18th, in which more than a hundred natives and near half a hundred Europeans perished, proved most disastrous to our mission premises in Naini Tal. Not only were all our buildings save one, filled with and half buried by the shale brought down by the streams from above, but in addition to this the hill back of the place was rendered so unsafe that all our buildings have been condemned, and their occupancy at any time in the future is a matter of serious doubt. The loss is heavy and must continue for some time to be seriously felt. It is as yet too soon in the face of the uncertainty existing with reference to the future status of the place, to make plans for time to come.

It is to us a matter of profound gratitude that, while the missionaries and Native Christians on these premises during the above men-

The Boys' High School.—A Boarding school was opened under the above name, in our own home, on the first of April. It increased so that in a short time it was found necessary to remove to more spacious quarters. The large house called Ivy Park was rented for the use of the school. The Rev. Dr. Waugh being obliged to spend a part of the season in the hills kindly took full charge of the school. Under his careful management a most excellent organization was made and an aggregate of forty-two boys have received instruction. The expensive first year of this institution of learning was made a financial success by the warm interest and liberal assistance of H. Petman, Esq., under whose reliable support it is now proposed not only to advance this school, but also to inaugurate a similar but separate institution for girls.

The Land-slip. On the 18th September occurred a catastrophe that marks that day in the history of Naini Tal.

There was a huge protuberance of the mountain that overhung the buildings of our next door neighbor,—“The Royal Victoria Hotel.” After two days of most rapid rain, this stupendous mountain side—a thousand feet in breadth and five hundred feet high, became surcharged with water, and yielding to the force of gravity broke from its rocky bed, and rushed down in a precipitous avalanche. Everything in its course was instantly swept away. Trees three feet in diameter, and walls of buildings six feet thick were as nothing before it. The buildings of the Hotel, the great shop of Bell & Son, the Reading and Assembly Rooms and the Hindu temples,—property of many lacs in value, were utterly destroyed. More than two hundred human beings were overwhelmed and killed. And the weltering bulk of earth, rocks and water,—a million tons in weight, rushed on and plunged into the lake. It was all over in eight seconds.

Loss to the Mission. The storm that caused the land-slip unsettled and cracked the hill sides immediately above our mission premises. Torrents burst out above our grounds and brought down upon us great masses of shale and rock. The space behind our parsonage rapidly filled, the windows and doors burst in, and the rear rooms were heaped up six feet deep with earth. We were obliged to abandon both our residence and our chapel.

Two weeks later the threatening hill above us was thoroughly examined by a committee of experts appointed by the Government. Their printed report condemns our location as unsafe in the following words:

“Passing to the east, the mission premises are reached. The hill above these is cracked in all directions, and its appearance proves beyond doubt that it was in a very dangerous condition during the late heavy rainfall. The committee consider that no reasonable expenditure of money would render this hill, between Staff Quarters of old Government House and the Mission premises, perfectly safe from the risk of most dangerous slips during heavy rain, and is therefore compelled to express its opinion that the Mission premises should not be re-occupied. Very possibly no serious slip may occur for many years to come, but that a dangerous slip will, sooner or later, occur at this point, there can be no reasonable doubt.”

The New Church. It is known that we had been arranging to replace our old chapel by a more appropriate House of worship. We had secured suitable architectural designs and had gathered, in cash and reliable subscriptions, Rs. 15,000; material had been collected, and it was our fixed intention to begin building on the 15th October.

But now that the storm had rendered the old site insecure, we were thrust out in search of a safer place. Providentially guided, and greatly assisted by the earnest kindness of Genl. Sir Henry Ramsay we finally secured a convenient plot at the lower end of the lake. The new site is easily accessible, spacious enough for our purposes, and is pronounced absolutely safe. Our new Church will quite literally be founded on a rock.

It ought to be noticed that a native Hindu gentleman, Kishna Sah, who had recently bought the place, although he was offered for it, for other purposes, large advance, sold it to us for what he had paid for it. And he is also now, without pay superintending the workmen in clearing the ground and laying the foundations.

The land-slip caused a very serious loss to our subscriptions, and the cost of the new site, Rs. 4,500, has by so much more reduced our available money for building. But the immediate necessity for a place of worship and our acquaintance with able and generous supporters of Christ's work, make us confident that we shall raise the whole amount, and be able to dedicate the new church, this next season, entirely free from debt. A full list of donors, amounts and expenditures, will in due time be printed.

Since the land-slip our pastoral care has greatly increased. Many who lost either property or friends, or who were greatly shocked by the to come and live among them and teach them.

The total number of baptisms among the natives since the work in Garhwal began in 1866 is two hundred and ninety. Of all these I am aware of but three persons who could now be called useless wanderers. The rest who are living are hopeful members of society, and even the forementioned three are not apparently beyond hope. There have been several removals and thirty deaths, leaving us a Christian community of two hundred and thirty-two souls. Of these one hundred and twenty-five are communicants and one hundred and seven are baptized children. Among these Christians are forty-three married couples. From however low a caste or condition these people may have come, and but one or two of them could be called of high caste, and some confess to have lived formerly by the gains of fraud, they are all now among the best people in Garhwal which boasts of a population of 500,000 in its two provinces, British and Native—if we judge of goodness, not by the accident of birth, but by the appreciation of the heinousness of sin, and a purpose to avoid it, and an honest intention to live a life of integrity, purity, and holiness. A lady visitor who was present at a recent meeting where forty of them related their Christian experience remarked that “they were the most intelligent, fresh and free from routine phrases she had ever heard among Native Christians.”

We have a large number of children. They are being instructed in letters and in doctrine. But there is still much practical work to be done in teaching them truths.

Our orphan boys are at present learning to spin and to weave cheap cotton cloth, but native methods of doing this work are so slow, that without improved machinery there is little hope that the outcome of this will be profitable where there is so much competition from the plains.

We have eleven schools for boys in operation with an aggregate attendance of 394. The Honorable Sir Henry Ramsay, Commissioner of Kumaon and Garhwal, and the Rajah of Native Garhwal visited Paori during the year, and 318 of our school children were collected for the occasion. The Commissioner spoke kind words concerning our work, the mission and its agents. In our visitors' book he wrote, "I have felt real pleasure in seeing so much good done." Among the former students of our schools some are sub-overseers in the Public Works Department, some clerks in the Civil, the Engineering and the Forest, Departments, some are teachers in our own schools. One young man of eighteen years of age, belonging to our highest class in Paori, was baptized this year. Another who, with our advice and aid, was pursuing his studies in a neighboring city with a view of passing a difficult examination, died not long ago, and from the account of his death we received from a brother missionary we hope that "he died in the faith of a Christian." All the posts now filled by Hindoos in our schools should be speedily taken by Christians: some of our young men have qualified themselves for such places and others are fast maturing. An attempt has been made to render our primary schools more efficient as agencies in teaching religious truth by placing each one under the charge of a Christian helper, who is expected to visit it at least once a month, and when it is near his home, every week.

Our Sunday-schools number four. Of this number three are full of promise. The Paori school is a power for good. It has an excellent attendance, great attention on the part of the students, and deep impressions are made by the religious truth taught. In this school our Juvenile Missionary Society has raised during the past year Rs. 72-7-0. The auxiliary of our Woman's Foreign Missionary Society among our Native Christian Women has raised Rs. 9-7-0. But these women are likewise liberal contributors to the former fund. Our sacramental collections have amounted to Rs. 18. Besides these, other sums have been raised for special purposes.

It is expected the medical work will be reported separately. It is however, a most necessary part of our machinery, not only for the health of our Christian people but also as an agency in influencing the heathen. The arrangement by which Dr. P. T. Wilson resides among us is very acceptable to the missionary and the Native Christians and we hope it will be continued.

As a mission field Garhwal is attractive: masses of poor people, living in great simplicity, are open to instruction. Faithful persistent labor among them is sure to win them for Christ. It would seem wise to pay more attention to these people in preference to the classes who steel their hearts against all Christian teaching. The need of the work is devoted native helpers, thoroughly converted, who can speak the dialect of the people and who will patiently preach to and instruct them: such will be sure to find multitudes of disciples.

The encouragements in this work are many. I say this notwithstanding the difficulties and hindrances we have had to meet—hindrances idols have cast them away and have learned to adore Jehovah, the only true God, and Jesus Christ his only begotten Son our Saviour.

MEDICAL WORK.

REV. P. T. WILSON, M.D. Missionary.

The Mission Medical work in Garhwal has been under the charge of Rev. P. T. Wilson, M. D., who also fills the Government appointment of Superintendent of Pilgrims' Dispensaries in Kumaon and Garhwal. The Mission Dispensary in Paori which has been under the immediate charge of Edward Thompson, a Christian native doctor, who has been raised up among us, has done well: not only is it a great blessing to the Christian community, but it is also an important means of access to the non-Christian population of the region.

Dr. Wilson has made during the year three extended tours of visitation to the dispensaries under his charge, and a number of minor ones. He has performed with his own hands nearly a hundred major operations. In connection with his official work he has distributed several thousand tracts, and a large number of the Gospel of Matthew in Garhwali. So far as his special duties have permitted he has co-operated heartily with Mr. Gill in his work. He has had charge of the important Sunday-school in Paori whenever present in the place. His presence in this field is undoubtedly a great boon to the mission laborers and the native Church, and his work, if it can be continued, bids fair to prove an important factor in the evangelization of Garhwal.

EASTERN KUMAON CIRCUIT.

REV. R. GRAY, M.D. Missionary.

OUR mission field in Eastern Kumaon contains a population of about one hundred thousand. The missionary is most favorably located in Pithoragarh. The place is surrounded by rich and beautiful valleys, densely populated. Within a radius of four miles are forty villages or more, all easy of access to the missionary and his co-workers. The Chapel erected last year is located at a point where several ways meet, and seldom, if ever, is a service held which is not attended by numbers of outsiders. Sometimes the place is well filled with respectful and attentive hearers. The average attendance on the usual Sabbath services during the year has been sixty-three. There are but half that number in the Native Christian community at this point.

Village preaching, in the region of Pithoragarh especially, has been prosecuted with considerable vigor. The people are generally exceedingly well-disposed and friendly to the mission, and not a few seem entirely convinced of the truth of the message delivered them. These simple-hearted villagers are usually found much more open to the reception of the Gospel than those living in the larger centers.

The nine primary boys' schools in this field have been attended by 508 pupils and have continued to do their usual work. They are an important medium for the communication of a knowledge of Christianity.

Several important melas or fairs have been attended by the missionary and native helpers, and much preaching to large crowds has been done at these places.

Six adults and five children have been baptized and the Native Christian community has grown from sixteen to thirty-three.

The second center from which work is carried on in this field is Lohoghat. John Barker a local preacher and native doctor is in charge at this point. While as yet no fruit in the way of conversions to Christianity has appeared in this region, still a very marked change is manifest in the spirit and temper in which the people listen to the declaration of the Gospel, as compared with the time when this field was occupied by us in 1874, and there seems good ground to hope for still more tangible results at no distant day.

On the whole, the continued spread of Christian knowledge in Eastern Kumaon, the friendly spirit in which many receive the teachings of the Gospel and the success in gathering converts already granted seem to point to an encouraging growth in the work of this field in the future.

The Mission Medical work in Kumaon is also under the charge of Dr. Gray. In this field are four dispensaries, located at Pithoragarh, Lohoghat, Dwarahat and Bhim Tal. This work during the past year has been extended beyond that of any former one and the more extensive-

PALEE.

Two missionaries occupied the Mission bungalow in this field as a sanitarium for several months during the past year, and a Sunday-school and preaching service were kept up. The usual amount of work by native agents has been carried on. Two small schools have been sustained which have done very well. The Mission dispensary has continued its operations and seems to have exerted a good influence. It is hoped the staff of workers in this one of the most important parts of our mountain mission field, may be strengthened for the coming year.

ODUH DISTRICT.

REV. J. W. WAUGH, PRESIDING ELDER.

WHILE the results of one year in Mission work, compared with those of the preceding year, may not give to the Christian optimist all he could desire in the way of advancement, in conversions from heathenism, in newly established and rapidly multiplying churches, in more enlightened and better educated adherents, and in securing hold upon the higher classes of society,—yet when one decade, or even one lustrum is compared with its predecessor, the advancement becomes very apparent, and at times most cheering. We need only ask any one dissatisfied with the results of Christian effort in heathen lands—(and the name of such self-afflicted ones is legion—they have not faith in God)—to compare the Oudh, or Rohilkhund or Kumaon District of the American Methodist Missions of the decade 1870-80, with that of 1860-70,—the task is not a difficult one, though too long to be written out here,—and we are confident he will, if possessed of an honest and unprejudiced mind, arise from the comparison, convinced that daylight is at hand, that darkness flees apace, and that even here, where Satan for untold centuries has had his seat, the Gospel of Christ is winning its way, and the time hastens when “the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ.”

The year 1880 has been one of hard work, earnest effort, and good success on the part of the Missionaries in the Oudh District, (which also embraces Cawnpore.) The writer is sorry he can not boast of having shared to any considerable extent in these labors and successes, as absence in the hills forbade; but he found there a work, which he is assured will not be fruitless, in connection with the Naini Tal High School.

The health of the Missionaries has been good, amid their arduous labors, except in the case of Bro. McMahon, who, as may be seen from his curtailed but characteristic report, is hardly yet able to do any literary work. No one but a man with a powerful constitution could have stood the virulent and

REV. L. FIELDBRAVE, Native Pastor.

1. The Church — We close the year with about the same number as last, 55 members and 47 probationers. With the exception of two Hindoo lads (orphans attending the Centennial School) there have been but two adult baptisms. We have in our midst several unbaptized Christians, and are glad to report that these are doing well : they attend our services, speak in class-meeting and pray in prayer-meeting. Their baptism is only a question of time ; perhaps a lack of courage is the chief obstacle. In one instance a young man is waiting until he can bring his wife ; he is a Hindoo, and she has not yet joined him, although married.

The Sabbath and week-day services have been well attended and profitable. The average attendance on Sunday is 100. It frequently happens that Hindoos and Mahomedans are among our auditors, attracted by the excellent singing and by the earnest preaching of our Native Pastor.

Brother Fieldbrave has done the Church good service by translating into Hindustani a number of the later "Songs and Solos." He has especial gifts in this direction and is the recognized hymn-writer of our Conference. Our people take up these hymns at once and sing them heartily, seemingly giving them the preference to the vernacular hymns set to native airs. We rejoice in the prospect of a new Hindustani "Hymnal," to contain many of these favorites as well as other hymns.

The Church continues to pay the Pastor Rs. 20 per month, and this is really doing very well. The Board of Stewards manage this as well as the church expenses, without the help of the Missionaries. We expect ours to grow into a self-supporting Church at an early day.

2. Bazar preaching has been carried on as usual. Many short addresses have thus been delivered in various parts of the city, with good Results. Scores of tracts and Bible portions have been sold, and thus the good seed is being dropped into many hearts.

3. The Hindoo festivals in and about the city have been attended as usual by Missionaries and native helpers. Lay brethren often accompany us on such occasions and assist in singing and speaking. In this way thousands have heard the Gospel message.

4. Our Evangelistic work has been greatly assisted by a Magic Lantern which the kindness of Lucknow friends enabled us to order from England. Our pictures are chiefly scriptural, and we have found them very attractive. We have exhibited these in all our school houses to hundreds of school-boys and their friends, as well as at private houses upon special invitation. Explaining the pictures, singing and preaching, we are able to bring the truth very close to the people. These occasions give us good opportunities for finding out how much our school boys know of Bible history : we are not disappointed with the result. From our experience this year we feel like saying and emphasizing it—the Missionary Society should supply every one of its stations in Asia with a good Magic Lantern and a number of Bible pictures.

5. Our Sunday-school work continues to prosper. In so brief a report it is simply impossible to do justice to this subject. Many interesting incidents are constantly happening to cheer our hearts and strengthen our faith. The Berean Lessons are a great success in Lucknow : they are faithfully studied and thoroughly taught. This year we have instituted a “ Roll of Honor ” : this gives the results of the quarterly examination held in each school. The scholar reciting perfectly the Lessons for the quarter has his (or her) name entered on this “ Roll,” a copy of which is hung up in each school-room where it remains throughout the year. This incentive has proved a success : at our third Quarterly Review (in September) no less than fifty names were thus entered, a great advance over previous quarters.

Cholera has prevailed in various parts of the city and has carried away among others quite a number of our Sunday-school boys : in one school four were taken in a single week. Several of these were excellent singers, others proficient in the Catechism ; all interested in our Sunday-school work. We rejoice to believe that they have gone to learn more of the Saviour whose praises they so heartily sang with us here.

We now have two Central Sunday-schools attended by 200 Christian boys and girls, 6 boys' and 8 girls' Sabbath-schools with 700 boys and 200 girls in attendance : in all, 15 schools with 1,100 scholars. We are glad to say that all our church members take an active interest in this work. With more helpers we could open other schools.

6. The Boys' Day-schools are all doing well. They number 6, with 35 teachers and 740 pupils. In four of these we have Christian headmasters and hope soon to have in the others. The boys are becoming better acquainted with the Bible. In one school we have lost several students, as their parents objected to our making the Bible a text book. Of course the Bible must stay in the schools. We hope by and by to see

REV. B. H. BADLEY, Principal.

This year has given us a larger number of students than any previous one, and has fully convinced us of the need of the Institution. We close the year with 90 enrolled, and an average attendance of 70. Government has shown its appreciation of the school by giving a monthly grant-in-aid of Rs. 50, which greatly assists us in solving the financial problem. The school is becoming better known, and with larger funds at our disposal we shall be able to attract students from every part of North India. Recently, a Native Preacher of the United Presbyterian (Scotland) Mission at Jeypore, in Rajpootana, brought us two of his sons, and promises to send a third next year.

The students are making satisfactory progress, and our earnest hope is that before many years this Institution may begin sending out its graduates as teachers, preachers and useful laymen. The Boarders are regular in their attendance at church and Sabbath-school, and enjoy all our services. A course of weekly lectures by the Principal on the chief characters of Biblical History has been listened to with great attention. Other missionaries have also favored us with lectures.

We are crippled by the want of funds, and are sadly in need of maps, globes and other apparatus. When we think of the delay that must ensue in securing these things in the usual way—by estimate, waiting, and appropriation—we can not but indulge the hope that these lines may meet the eye of some good friend who believes in Mission Schools and would be glad to see a hundred Ram Chandra Bose's at work in North India, and would count it a pleasure to help us to these needed appliances.

Several scholarships have been established this year by Sabbath-schools in England and America. These are made available for orphan or other poor boys who are thus prepared for a useful life. The small sum of Rs. 60 per annum supports a boy. We need at least ten more scholarships. Who will help us?

We ask the prayers of the Church for this school. We have lost much by delay, but if supplied with funds we can put forward the Institution rapidly, and with God's blessing it will be a great help to our entire Mission, as well as to the other Missions in North India.

PRESS REPORT.

DURING the past year some very important works have been issued from our Press. Among these are the following:—Commentary on Matthew and Mark in the Lithograph-Urdu; this makes a large Quarto volume of 350 pages: another work is the Concordance of the Holy Scriptures, a portable, well-bound volume of 912 pages: a third we may mention, viz. the handsomely got up, beautifully illustrated Life of Our Lord Jesus Christ, a translation of "Our King and Saviour," by Dr. Wise. The total number of books, tracts, and periodicals issued during the year is 57,000 with a total number of pages of over four millions.

Advertising our books has had more attention the past year than heretofore. The Pioneer and other means of making known our books have been subsidized for this work. The Pioneer investment has not been much of a success. The greatest success we have met in this respect has resulted from the sending out of Catalogues in the Vernacular. It was noticed that English School-books were ordered by scholars and teachers in the Urdu language; that the advertisement of the Royal School Dictionary sent out in the Urdu language aroused general interest in that book. This led to an inquiry into the merits of the different styles of advertising—as a result this conclusion was reached that all books seeking a market among a purely Hindustani people should be made known in their Vernacular. I do not know what the real facts in the case are, but so far as my information goes I cannot say that there is a descriptive Catalogue of any religious Society's books in the Vernacular in India. Next year greater attention still will be given to this part of our work. There is no doubt that the results will be highly satisfactory.

Our Periodicals, we may say, are in a flourishing condition. The Church papers are in demand. A number of subscribers, whose accounts were far in arrears, on their papers being stopped, were found neither to have removed or died but alive, and the money was immediately forthcoming. This has encouraged us in that part of our work. Attending our Sunday-school as usual on a Sabbath we noticed the pleasure with which the "Children's Friend" was received. Very soon the elder boys had a discussion

Rev. E. JOEL, Native Minister.

THIS is a large native city, 17 miles by rail from Lucknow. It offers excellent opportunities for bazar preaching, and the people listen very attentively. The native minister and his wife are laboring diligently and not in vain. The Zenana work is especially interesting. There is one boys' school with two teachers (one a Christian) and 50 scholars : connected with this is a Sunday-school attended by 40 boys.

There are numerous Hindu festivals held in this District which are attended by the minister and his colporteur. Tours have also been made to the larger towns and villages ; in some instances the preacher is very hospitably entertained and is urged to come again.

At present there are only six members of our church here, but from this small beginning much, we trust, will result. The field is promising.

Barabanki is frequently visited by some one of the Lucknow missionaries. On one occasion, a Magic Lantern exhibition was held in the Government school-house, and was attended by 400 people.

SITAPUR AND LAKHIMPUR.

REV. J. E. SCOTT, Missionary.

"THE world was not made in a day" is a maxim of such practical truth that it has passed into a proverb and is handed down from one to another to teach a lesson of patience in the midst of seeming difficulty and delay. The Province of Oudh, in Missionary circles, is considered, and perhaps rightly, a hard field, but as no one should be discouraged over the difficulty of a problem whose solution is certain, so no Missionary who has faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and believes in the ultimate success of Christianity should be disheartened one moment because India is not converted in a day. But in Oudh it is not all trust in the dark. There are many indications of better results than those already achieved. There is a better day dawning. During the year 1880, there has been light in the darkness in Sitapur and Lakhimpur Circuit the precursor and harbinger of the coming time when the whole land shall be full of the glory of God. Some of these rays of light are, (1) An earnest desire to hear the Gospel. In hundreds of villages where I have gone, industrious, hard-working farmers have left their fields to listen to Christ preached and to ask concerning Him and his religion. Multitudes are prompted not by mere idle curiosity, but by personal interest in their soul's salvation and their eternal welfare to listen time and again to the story of the Cross. School boys are often heard singing Christian songs and hymns, and in Sitapur district two hundred of them know that excellent book, Mudge's Questions in Theology from end to end. A Hindu pandit, Mouni Lall, takes in the Heathen Woman's Friend, and a landlord, Sheo Ghulam, patronizes the Kaukab-i-Hind, published at our Press. (2) An honesty in confessing the weakness of their own systems. Men on every hand confess that the religions of India have gone bad. In the emphatic language of a high caste Hindu, Men in the courts uplift the sanctifying water of the sacred river and press upon their breasts the pages of the Prophet's book, and yet speak that which is false. The age of sin has crushed the world and the advent of a western empire has precluded all hope. (3) The appearance of numerous enquirers. These have increased year by year. We used to rejoice over one—now we are discouraged if there are not a score. I may mention a few of the more interesting cases: Ram Gopal, a well-to-do Hindu, the Sub-Overseer in the Public Works Department, a man well thought of by his superiors, who was educated in a mission school, has attended the Sabbath services during the year and has contributed Rs. 20 to the new church. He confesses himself convinced of the truth of Christianity and only wishes to learn more about it before being baptized. He is my warm personal friend and a man in whom I have great confidence. Ram Sahai, a religious teacher and temple priest at Har Ganw, in the district, has been under instructions for three years and is most earnest in his avowal of the truth of the religion of Christ. He is a man known and well respected by all the town. Mrs. Scott the same cup, thus evincing the fact that the "twice born" in the sight of Hinduism had become an outcaste for ever, but in our eyes had entered the fellowship of the saints in light. On a recent tour through Khiri district I was enabled to lay the corner-stone of a house not made with hands in the town of Lakhimpur, by baptizing four persons in the presence of a congregation of Hindus and Mahomedans in the bazar. I believe this is the beginning of a large Church in Lakhimpur.

These are a few convulging rays which betoken the rising of the Sun of Righteousness and the dawn of a better day. It may be interesting to note now the general methods of work by means of which under the blessing of God some of these results have come about and to briefly state the labors of the past year. The work on this circuit is educational and evangelistic. There are seven day-schools, three for boys and four for girls, with a staff of twelve teachers whose combined salaries amount to Rs. 110 per month, and an attendance of two hundred and fifty pupils. The main school (middle grade, Anglo-vernacular) is at Khairabad, six miles from Sitapur, and has one hundred and fifteen on the roll. All these schools are doing well and have a decided influence in favor of Christianity. These day-schools are the basis of the Sunday-schools into which they are all organized, and, together with two others which are formed independently, make the attendance on Sabbath much larger than on week days. There are now over three hundred Sabbath-school scholars in the eight Sunday-schools on the circuit. All these are conducted after one uniform system, using the same lesson upon the same day with general examinations held quarterly. The ticket and card system is successfully used for attendance. The Children's Friend, the little paper in Urdu and Hindee, published at our Mission Press, Lucknow, has proved very attractive to the children. In short, the educational work carried on through the day and Sunday-schools has prospered during the past year, the attendance, work and results are more satisfactory, and I can most emphatically pronounce it a most valuable agency in the enlightenment and salvation of the people.

The evangelistic work among the two millions non-christians in the two districts of Sitapur and Khiri is carried on from four centres, at which helpers or catechists are stationed. Associated with me in this out-door evangelistic work are six helpers—four catechists and two col-porteurs—stationed at Sitapur, Lakhimpur, Khairabad and Misrikh, in which they preach, and from which they tour among the surrounding villages, selling books and tracts, preaching in the markets and fairs, and talking with the people in the fields, at the threshing floors, by the wayside and at their humble homes. In the cold season from October to March, I join in this most interesting and profitable work, itinerating through the districts in tents everywhere, preaching the Word. About five months of each year for the past five years have been thus spent. A month's tour of over a hundred miles during which I examined a number of schools, preached in a score of markets, visited the adjacent villages, baptized four persons and attended one mela, has just been completed. And thus, moving from place to place, often on foot, some times on a half-starved, saddleless native pony, sometimes on a huge elephant or stately camel, and sometimes in a palankin or jolting bamboo-cart across country through the waving corn, by the high ways and hedges and among the numerous villages of this thickly populated circuit—in hope of speedy and abundant fruition, has the Gospel seed been sown. Oh, that the blessing of Heaven would rest upon this work more and more.

But the past year has been one of interest and profit in other respects besides the above. Not speaking of the privilege of preaching the Gospel in my own tongue in the Sitapur Station church, or of the miscellaneous duties which must always fall to the lot of a missionary in a Civil and Military station left without a chaplain, or of English work done at odd times among educated non-christians, I pass to that which lies nearest my heart, viz: (1) The prosperity of the Christian community. There are about eighty Native Christians on the circuit. While the most of them are in humble circumstances, yet none of them are without employment and visible means of support. Those who are servants are far superior as such to non-christians in the same position. Recent converts have grown in knowledge and grace. The old priest, Sarain Das, still itinerates among his people. I am trying to educate the people to give to the Lord, but in this they are slow to learn. It is true they have poverty to plead, but the most disheartening thing is that the helpers and catechists who live comfortably upon mission money contribute the least to its support and thus their example proves a hindrance. Mrs. Scott has a school for the Christian women and children and we make it a rule to allow no one to remain in our community who is practically opposed to education. We make a constant effort to impress that good old doctrine prise by their contributions.

Although among those who would keep in the foreground the brighter experiences of mission life and work yet perhaps it is not best to confine this report to them alone. Are there no difficulties and trials? Yea, hundreds of them. The stolidness of caste, the opposition and maliciousness of Islam, the insincerity of enquirers, the poverty of Christians, the bad lives of Europeans, the ignorance of missionaries, the fewness and inefficiency of helpers and catechists, the lack of funds and the unhealthiness of the climate are facts which have truth enough in them to drive the earnest missionary to a closer walk with God and to give the professional grumbler a perpetual confirmation in his grumbling. I am taught by observation and a hard-earned experience this one thing that there is but one way to convert India and that is to work on, and work long, and work hard to plow, and plant, and water and weed, and to look to God for the increase.

GONDAH AND BAHRAICH.

REV. S. KNOWLES,	Missionary.
REV. W. PETERS,	Native Minister.

OUR missionary work in this country is very much like the building of the walls in Jerusalem in the troubled, sceptic days of Nehemiah, "When Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah the servant, the Ammonite, and Geshem the Arabian," laughed the prophet to scorn, and despised him and said: "What is this thing that ye do?" There are those who still ask in the same spirit, as the missionaries go forth to preach and to teach, "What is this thing that ye do?" With the deeply seated zeal and hatred and the fierce enthusiasm of Islamism; with the hoary systems of Hinduism, woven into the very texture of social, moral, and intellectual life; with proudly defying, painted, caste, binding millions of men in the iron circle of a dread necessity; and with Brahmo Samajism so successful in offering its Hindu-Christian Socinianism to the educated youths of the country emancipated from Brahminical rule, all haughtily fronting you—do you expect by your simple teaching and preaching to advance, and conquer, and win this vast Empire of 250 millions of souls for Christ?

Our answer is, the noble one which the brave Nehemiah gave: "The God of Heaven, He will prosper us, therefore we his servants will arise and build."

Over twenty-one years ago we met, in a Prayer-meeting, held in a small building, once used as a sheep-house, in Naini Tal, two native Christians; one was borrowed from another Mission, the other was a convert from Brahmanism. Those were the only two Native brethren in our Mission. A few days ago we were privileged to attend a Christian mela, held in a large grove of mango trees near Shahjehanpore, and there we saw over 830 native Christians as representatives from our Mission in Oudh and Rohilkund, collected for the purpose of praying and worshipping God, and of being lifted into a higher and happier and more useful life. As we looked upon those hundreds of converts from Hinduism and Islamism so reverently yet earnestly and confidently bent at the "Throne of Grace," our hearts beat with joy as we said, Truly God has prospered us beyond all our expectations; and in the thousands that shall yet thus gather in the Camp of the Lord, He will "prosper us" beyond "all that we can ask or think!" Hence it is to God who *prosper*s, and not to short-sighted, unbelieving man who objects, that we are to humbly look and boldly hope.

Our District.—This extensive and important Gonda Mission Field of labor, with its 1,169,562 precious souls, was chosen by the late Rev. Bishop Thompson and occupied in 1864. Bahraich, with its smaller population of 760,000, but containing many large towns and villages accessible to the Gospel, was taken up in 1868.

Looking back over 16 years of toil given in the first, and twelve in the last, by four different missionaries, and then looking at our little Church of 46 members and 13 probationers, our 21 Day-schools and 645 Day-pupils, with the same number of Sabbath-schools and scholars, and also at the 615 average attendants on Sunday worship, we feel, at first sight, sadly disappointed and somewhat discouraged. But we are not to look only at what appears at present, and sum that up as the only result of so many years of labor of mind and body, and the expenditure of so many thousands of rupees; but we are to remember the number of converted men and women who have been baptized in the past, and gone forth as services are conducted in Bahraich in a native Christian gentleman's house. Special Sabbath-day services are also held in all our out-stations at Colonelgungo, Nawabgungo, and Ellenpore. At the latter place there is a native Christian congregation numbering over forty. These native Christians are engaged as Asamis, or renters of the land on the estate of an English Official, about 28 miles to the east of Gonda. It is pleasant to hear the sound of the gong on a Sunday morning and evening wafted over this partially cleared jungle to the scattered huts and rude homes of Christians and heathens, and to see the former in twos and threes wending their way through rich, green cornfields, dressed in clean, home-spun garments, to the small and rudely constructed place of worship attached to the native Preacher's house. During the year Mr. Stephen Paul has collected Rs. 279 in cash, and has obtained the promise of more money, for the building of a church in this promising place; and as soon as the land promised for the same, has been doeded to us, we hope to lay the foundation of it, and begin building.

2. Sabbath-Schools.—Sabbath-schools are held every Sunday in Gonda and Bahraich, and in all our out-stations. Our native helpers and school teachers have generally engaged in this necessary work with cheerfulness and intelligence, and many with real enthusiasm. The average number of scholars in the two Districts is 648. The Sabbath-schools in Gonda and Bahraich are the largest and the most important. The Berean Lessons, the New Testament, the Hymn-book, mostly in Hindi, have been the means used to teach the principles of our holy religion, and to bring the knowledge of the true God and His Son Jesus Christ home to the minds and hearts of the scholars.

It often happens that outside of each Sunday-school a number of people will gather to hear the hymns sung, the prayers offered, and the exhortations given; and thus, through the Sabbath-school, the seeds of Divine Truth have been sown in many hearts.

We cannot report the conversion of many in our different stations. But two Sabbath-school Hindu boys in Bahraich died during the year. Before their death they sent for their Christian teacher, Samuel, to read and pray and converse with them about the true Avatar; and this honest teacher believes that these two dear youths, amid all the scenes of idolatrous ceremonies, died with firm trust in Jesus Christ as the Saviour of their souls.

3. Bazar Preaching.—If it is true that “Jesus Christ tasted death for every man;” and if it is possible for “every man” to believe and be consciously saved, then “every man,” if possible, ought to know these glorious truths. But how is he to know them unless they be published and explained to him? And ought not bazar people to have these blessed truths made known to them as well as any other kind of people? We know that to preach in a crowded, heated, dusty bazar to a cold, unsympathizing people, and sometimes to a very hostile crowd, is physically and mentally wearing and wasting. It is certainly not so agreeable to the senses as preaching behind a comfortable reading desk, under a swinging, cooling punkah, in an atmosphere made deliciously cool by tattti and thermantidote, and to a sea of upturned, sympathizing faces; and, yet, if men are to know the Gospel of Christ that is to save them, the bazar, with all its inconveniences, is one of the places where the missionary is to win souls for God.

One marked feature of this work during the past year has been the almost entire absence of opposition from either Hindu or Musalman. Large crowds of city people and villagers have collected round the preacher’s stand, and have, almost without exception, listened attentively and respectfully to the singing of our hymns, to the offering up of our prayers and to the exposition of some part of God’s Word.

A Hindu faqir living in a village called Disar, 14 miles from Gonda to the south, has been a constant attendant at our preaching. He now calls himself a Hindoo-Christian faqir. I have often conversed with him and asked and urged him to embrace the discipleship of Christ. He has three almirahs at his house, which are full of books. The first is full of books on Islamism, the second on Hinduism, and the third on Christianity; but he always points to the third as his best almirah. We yet hope to see this man a true and single-hearted believer in Christ.

Mr. Bihari Lal has carried on regular bazar preaching in the large corn-market of Colonelgunge. He has two very promising inquirers, one a Hindu, the other a Musalman, whom we hope soon to baptize.

Mr. Stephen Paul has no opportunity for this good work in Ellenpore itself, but a few miles distant from this place, there are large Bazars held, in which he holds up Christ as the Saviour of their souls to the listening crowds of villagers that press about him.

itinerating or visiting Melas.

In company with Mr. W. Peters, we made one itinerating tour to Ellenpore to meet the owner of the Grant by appointment. The cleared part of this jungle called Ellenpore, with its waving fields of corn ripening to the sickle, its scattered grass-covered huts, its flocks of lowing cattle, its groves of Mahua trees, with the native Preacher's white house standing up clear in the centre, presented a very pleasant appearance. The Grantee kindly showed us over the whole estate, or rather as much of it as was under cultivation, and we were glad to find that two native Christians were his very best Assamis, or renters of his land: and certainly the 250 acres of one of them stretching out from where we stood, to the very edge of the forest, a rippling sea of living green, showed what the energy and perseverance of one native Christian can do; for a few years ago this beautifully cultivated place was a wild, impenetrable jungle.

We spent a few days here preaching, and holding prayer-meetings among the native Christians, and helping them up into a higher and brighter and more joyous experience in the believer's life. Rev. I. Fieldbrave from Lucknow, and Mr. E. Joel from Bara Banki, were with us and rendered good service to this small native Church.

We also made another itinerating tour to Bahraich in April. Our principal objects in going were, to arrange for carrying on the school building which had been begun by my predecessor and was, we found, only a few feet above the ground; as well as to preach, renew old acquaintances, and make ourselves acquainted with others likely to aid us in our work. We visited and examined all our Boys' and Girls' schools, preached repeatedly in the bazars, conducted a service in Hindustani in the morning and preached in English in the evening on the Sabbath day, and visited all the leading native gentlemen in the District. Among the latter we had the pleasure of meeting H. H. Kunwar Harnam Singh, brother of the Maharajah of Kapurthala, and his lady, from whom we received much kindness.

We also paid two or three visits to Nawab Gunge 24 miles from Gonda, the work there being so encouraging among the Koris; and in November, in company with all our native helpers, we journeyed to Ajudiya near Faizabad and in co-operation with the Lucknow Missionaries, we preached two or three times daily to large crowds of the followers of Ram and Shiva, and Hanuman, assembled for the great bathing in the river Ghogra at the time of the full moon.

6. Baptisms.—We have baptized eight adults and nine infants during the year. We have two inquirers at Colonel Gunge, and many more in Nawab Gunge; but we prefer to wait before we baptize them till they become fitter subjects for this holy rite, and are likely to remain steadfast after they have received it. Men too, principally traveling faqirs, have come to us from various places and at different times, asking for baptism; but I always found that the chief motives of these painted peregrinating individuals was ready money or easy service. For either of these could have purchased us any number of willing candidates for baptism and the name of Christian; but we would rather give such some homely advice and our verbal blessing, and let them pass on their ways, still bearing upon their foreheads the signs of Rama, Shiva, and Vishnu.

(1.) Chunni Lal, a young man of the kayath, or writers' caste, aged 22, was the first we baptized this year. He was in the service of a native Christian gentleman in Bahraich, and regularly attended our religious services there. The truth made a deep impression upon him. He became greatly troubled, and sought relief in repeating a set number of prayers, and trying to do all the "good" he could; but it was not till he saw Christ as his only Saviour, and accepted Him as such that he experienced a new life, and saw a new meaning in prayer.

He obtained leave from his master and walked all the way from Bahraich to Gonda, about 40 miles, to see us and to be baptized. We held a special service, and baptized him on the 25th of March. His master has since given him a very excellent character.

(2.) Kinahi Lal, a young man of the Bais, or trading caste, aged 20 was the second we baptized. He is the only brother of Bihari Lal, our native Preacher at Colonel Gunge, upon whom we performed the sacred rite fifteen years ago.

(3.) William and Hira, the one a Brahmani youth, aged 14, the other a girl of the same caste aged 10, would not be classified as adults at home, and yet, in a country like India, where such early marriages are performed, and the responsibilities of a family are thrown upon mere children in years, they would so be reckoned.

The youth in physique and promising intellect is the finest specimen of a young Brahman I have ever seen. He first came to us as an orphan, and was under our instruction for many months. He often asked us to "make him a Christian;" but after a time when he understood this important work of making Christians better, and learned of Him who has power to change the heart, and make him a "new creature," he gave so much promise that we baptized, and sent him to the Centennial School, Lucknow.

The Brahmani girl was an orphan, too. Her mother brought her all the way from Bombay to the Devi Pathan mela in Ouddh. There this poor woman died of cholera. The girl was brought to Gonda, where she was saved from a life of infamy by being made over to us by the Deputy Commissioner of Gonda. She is a very quick, bright intelligent girl.

ROY BAREILLY.

REV. J. T. McMAHON, Missionary.

ON returning from Conference viâ Allahabad where I went to attend the reunion of the North India and South India Conferences, I stopped over night in Futtelpore, where my friends Messrs. Young, Thornton, and Andrews took the best of care of me ; and Brother Thornton sent me on his buggy eight miles towards Roy Bareilly. In return for all this kindness I preached to them in English at 4 P. M. Had 19 present, including children. I fear that they had the worst of the bargain.

On sending back Brother Thornton's buggy at the end of eight miles, Mr Blunt kindly sent me on to the Ganges six miles in his mule cart. The mule liked to have his own way. In this I heartily sympathised with the beast, being naturally inclined to like my own way. Two years ago I found Mr. Blunt living out here in the jungle with his wife and children and mother-in-law. I had prayers with them, and obtained his name for the LUCKNOW WITNESS; since then Mr. Blunt has been my fast friend. At the Ganges there were two miles of sand to be crossed under a burning sun. Mr. Blunt had thoughtfully put his saddle into the cart. So all I had to do was to mount the mule, and in a short time I was in the Roy Bareilly district, and in my own buggy, and home.

On the 26th January went into camp. At Ahar, 13 miles from Roy Bareilly, a landholder asked me to go and see his father who was 89 years of age, and almost blind. He asked me to explain what was in my book; I told the old gentleman of the birth and death of our Lord Jesus Christ, and prayed that it might be blessed to his soul's good. Most of the time on this march there were three preachers with me, Brother Isa Das, Local Deacon—an experienced preacher, Brother Luke—a good preacher but suffering from fever, and Brother Ransom, a new man. So I was not very well off for help. Usually the native preachers had one or two texts which they used daily, and sometimes preached without any text, in which case they might as well have left out the sermon too. I found, too, that I was stepping into the same habit, and that my texts were decreasing in number. I told the brethren that we had better begin with the New Testament to read a few lines or verses, and comment on them, the second preacher taking up the subject where the first one stopped. The plan worked excellently. The brethren preached with new power, and the people listened as never before. In the Bhoj-pore bazar, Bro. Luke's turn was explaining the judgment. The people stood breathless while the preacher had the books opened and had the wicked separated from the righteous. When the sermon was ended an old man with gray hair said to me, "That man is very sharp." About 25 days were spent in camp, during which time we marched and rode 126 miles. This fall probably about 80 miles will include our whole camping, as the Doctors have ordered me not to overdo it; 20 miles are all that I shall probably go myself.

Visiting. (1) In February, a native gentleman asked me to come and read the Scriptures and pray with him. This I continued to do for about four months, (having been kept from seeing him for about two months while in camp and while in Bareilly,) during which time I read through the Gospel of Matthew, and four or five chapters in Mark, when, on going one morning in July, I found the Babu had just died. He told me more than once that he believed in Jesus Christ as his Savior. He was a high caste Hindu, but was not ashamed to have me read and explain the Testament before his friends and neighbours. (2) During the summer I visited Bhawani, a Christian farmer once in two weeks, to have prayers with his family and to instruct his servants who are Hindus. One servant Ganeshi, can read and write and has an intelligent idea of the Scriptures. He ought to be baptized. (3) Bro. Ransom has taught Sister Bird's servants twice a week and has done a good work among them. (4) Bro. Luke has taught the munshis and servants of Major Orr once a week. At first they were unwilling to hear: now if Bro. Luke misses a week they ask him why he did not come. They ask for this and for a Bhajan and sing a little.

(5) Bro. Isa Das at Bhojpur visited Megh Nath's house twice a week where about 15 men came to listen. He taught these people to repeat after him a verse or two each, beginning with Mathew, which Gospel he finished in this way, explaining the meaning also. He sang with them. One man, a singer by profession, learned many of these hymns which he other schools are holding their own.

Day schools, Hindustani Services, English Work, Class, and Cholera
I can not now write up, as this last subject has rendered me unfit for prolonged literary effort.

HURDUI.

Rev. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

Bazar Preaching —Bazar preaching has been kept up more efficiently than last year, and has been unusually interesting, inspiring us with greater zeal than ever before. People listen to the word attentively ; the moral and religious claims of truth are well understood by the multitudes ; enquirers pay frequent and respectful visits at the minister's bungalow now and then. Seed is sown with faith by the earnest laborers, and great is the hope of the harvest. The fields have been very hard, but now seem to be ripening all abroad for the harvest and by the grace of God many will come to a knowledge of Christ and be saved.

Boys' Schools. There are three small schools containing fifty boys ; they are improving both in the religious and secular instruction given. They are doing much more then last year: all the boys attend the Sunday-school.

Girls' Schools.—The Girls' schools are a great help to the Zenana work. On this circuit native females have become more easy of access, than before to the Christians. There are six Girls' schools within the mission bounds containing 100 girls; all of them are improving in religious instruction as well as in knowledge. These pupils also attend the Sabbath-schools.

Colportage.—This work is not so fruitful as it ought to be; the people of this circle know very little of learning; there are few who can read Urdu perfectly or even fairly. Most of them know Hindee. Colporteurs go daily to the various towns and stations and offer their books for sale. They try their best, and succeed in selling some books each day; they also go out with me in the circuit.

Building.—The minister's building has been completed, but is not quite all paid for. A good well has also been constructed in the sadar station of Hurdui for the use of the native Christian community.

Itinerating.—Itinerating has been limited owing to the want of funds. Still we have tried to see all the out-stations and to attend the melas; and have made one trip to Dasahra and to Balgram and Dhanuk-jug; we have also made visits with our helpers to several other small melas. We, with our brothers and sisters, are always heard with great respect, and are sure the word will produce its desired effect hereafter.

There are in all sixty-one Christians, including children within the bounds of the Hurdui District. All of them seem to be people of promise in regard to their moral and religious conduct. The schools have made considerable progress both in numbers and in the matter of real education. Bazar preaching has been very encouraging; people listen to the Word with greater interest than ever before. They gather together in crowds on the market days, on Sundays especially, being the day of general mart in Hurdui. They often visit our Church, which stands just close to the public road, as they pass by, and sometimes drop in for a little while.

Five persons were baptized during the year; one of these was a Hindu, and one Mahomedan; the other three were Christian infants.

CAWNPORE.

REV. G. H. MCGREW, Missionary.

THE story of the year's work may be told in few words. At the last session of Conference, Doctor Waugh who, in addition to being Principal of the Memorial School, had been in charge of the native work was translated to a wider field of usefulness in the Eldership. Bro. Knowles, who had been pastor of the English congregation, was transferred to the native work in another station.

The Memorial School, under the joint management of the two Conferences, was placed under the charge of Bro. Bowser of South India. The degree of interest. At the late Dasahra Camp meeting in Lucknow several young people of both sexes, belonging to the congregation were happily converted to God.

In addition to the services kept up in the church, one has been held twice a week in a private house in Mitpur, and preaching has been had once a week for the greater part of the year at the East India Railway Station. In all these branches of work the Principal and teachers in the Memorial School have given indispensable assistance.

In August, a Sunday-school was started for the English-speaking children living near the East Indian Railway Station. It has been notably successful thus far, in the face of an attempt on the part of the High Church chaplain to draw away the scholars, who are now thirty-five in number.

The lack of pastoral visitation has been remedied to some extent by Bros. Webb and Plomer of the Memorial School. But it is plain that the spiritual welfare of the congregation depends very much upon visitation from house to house. There are many persons living most heathenish lives in the bazars of the city, who can be reached in no other way than by calling on them in their houses, and urging them to come out to service. Hence the demand for a thoroughly competent preacher and pastor to devote his whole time to the English congregation is imperative, and so long as we maintain the two Schools, a regular preaching service in English must be kept up. Moreover, with the conflict between Ritualism and Evangelical piety deepening all over the country, to abandon this outpost would be little less than criminal. But the English Church should be put upon the same footing in relation to the Conference as the one at Naini Tal:—having a minister who can devote his entire time to its interest. The two English schools have been visited by me from time to time throughout the year. In both the religious welfare of the pupils appears to be carefully promoted.

In the native work the old lines have been followed, and in two or three directions a new departure has been made.

The Leaflets in Hindi and Urdu published by the North India Tract Society have been given away in connection with bazar preaching. The effect has been excellent. The leaflets are eagerly sought for by all classes, and appear to be read by all who can get them.

A magic-lantern, kindly loaned me by Miss Ward of the Union Zenana Mission, has been used in three places with good effect. The pictures were exhibited at the native preacher's house in Mirpur, the yard about the place was packed, the walls of the compound covered, and the roofs of the surrounding houses lined with the people. Six or seven hundred persons saw the exhibition, and many others went away because they could not find standing room. Most of the pictures drew from the crowd noisy expressions of wonder and delight. But there was one picture which produced an instant indescribable hush of awe. It was the head and bust of our Lord in the "Ecce Homo," delicately drawn and tastily coloured.

Since then, many invitations to exhibit the pictures in their houses have been sent us by respectable native gentlemen. But the borrowed lantern had to be returned to its owner, and has been sent to another station. Who will supply its place by sending out from America one of Marcy's Sciopticons with a hundred coloured slides representing Scripture scenes and animals? Whoever shall do so will add a most potent Mission agent to those already at work in Cawnpore.

During the greater part of the year, a meeting for English-speaking natives has been kept up at the house of Mr. Oppenheim, a layman, by the teachers in the Memorial school, and Mr. Oppenheim himself. Although the attendance has been small and irregular, the influence of this meeting has been excellent. Its informal character has given the Baboos an opportunity to present their objections to Christianity; and they have heard carefully considered replies. The clear and repeated testimonies of the Christians to the saving power of Christ cannot fail to have made a deep and lasting impression on the minds of those who knew nothing of these things.

The statistical tables show that the number of pupils in the day-schools has increased considerably. This apparent increase is due to the fact that both of the English schools are now reported along with those for natives. In fact the number of natives has decreased from one hundred and seventy to one hundred and twenty-five. This decrease is accounted for by the fact that two Pundits who were subsidized in a small way by the Mission and whose boys were formerly entered in the statistics, have closed their connection with us. One of them found more advantageous terms in the S. P. G. Mission. The other habitually reported a large number of pupils who could never be found in attendance. Hence, after preaching. For some years past both Missions in Cawnpore have somewhat neglected this form of work. The native brethren and myself have gone regularly three times in the week into the bazar for preaching. The crowds of listeners have been great, and commonly very attentive. At one place where large numbers of Mahomedans were accustomed to listen to us, the Moulvies became disturbed, and tried to break up our preaching by drawing us into public discussion. Failing in this, they put up a young man with strong lungs to preach against us. For several months, the two preaching services have proceeded within fifty yards of each other without collision or interference. The young Moulvie does not, I believe pray aloud; but with one or two others, he tries to sing, and certainly preaches most lustily. His hearers probably do not know what it is that makes this preacher such an object of interest to us. Soon after he and his companions had failed to draw us into discussion in the bazar, this young man came to my study to talk about religion. I found him very ignorant concerning what the Christian books taught; he was full of anxious and eager enquiries. Before we parted I gave him some of the books on the Mahomedan controversy. He soon came again and begged for a copy of the Bible. I gave him one; and his subsequent enquiries have related chiefly to what he had read in it. Even after he began to preach in opposition to us, he continued to come to my house and to bring friends with him. But he is freest and frankest when alone. He speaks of the Lord Jesus Christ with a reverence which might well put many of us Christians to the blush. I do not count him an "enquirer" in the usual sense of the term, but plainly he is drifting away from the old moorings, and no man can tell whether he will swing back into the old port, or after drifting wearily on the sea of doubt, finally land in the harbour of peace.

Other incidents of an equally interesting character might be narrated. It remains only to say in general terms, that the closing year finds me, although wearied by preaching seven sermons a week, stronger than ever before in the belief that India will at no very distant day be converted to Christ.

1. That wherever practicable, i. e. wherever not too remote for effective supervision, primary schools of this kind be established; the people of the village to furnish a house and give other aid so far as possible. In most instances such schools need not cost over Rs. 4 or 5 per mensem.

2 That one aim of the High School at Bareilly be to prepare a number of teachers for this work. These young men should be specially drilled in the vernaculars and in the science of teaching; some of them might take a short course and soon graduate, while others might remain longer in the school. In this way the institution will do much towards helping on the educational work in our midst, and will enable us in a short time to employ only Christian teachers in these village schools.

III. As thousands of rupees are annually expended in purchasing school-books, and as there is great lack of uniformity in the text-books used in various parts of the Mission, the Educational Committee make the following suggestions:

1. In regard to English text books: that we use the very excellent, revised series of Readers of the C. V. E. Society, together with the other text-books of this Society so far as practicable.

2. That in all our vernacular Schools the vernacular readers, etc., published by our Press be used, and that as soon as possible the number of books thus published be extended to include all the text books required in these schools. This will secure uniformity and will eventually be a source of revenue to the Press.

3. That Dr. Gray be appointed to prepare a Third Hindee Reader, to include sanitary hints; to be published, as soon as practicable, at our Press.

THE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

This Institution continues to prosper and is doing a great work for our Church in North India. The total number of students present during the past year (not including the Preparatory class) is 21. Of these, 13 graduated in December and have been appointed to their fields of labor, some in Oudh, some in Rohilkund, and others in the mountains. This is the largest class as yet sent out, and had it been twice as large all would have found work and welcome in the many important centres in our Mission as yet unsupplied with preachers.

Two members of the Educational Board were present at the final examinations in December, and were highly pleased with what they saw and heard. The (written) examinations showed that the students had not only studied well but had obtained a firm hold upon the knowledge attained and were thus able to use it; while their public addresses on the closing day gave indication that all were earnest and effective speakers. As usual, the students have regularly engaged in bazar preaching and other evangelistic work during the year: in one instance several people in an adjacent village were led to Christ by the efforts of the student visiting and laboring with them.

We commend this Institution to the prayers and sympathy of all the members of Conference, and heartily rejoice in the good it is doing year by year.

THE NYNEE TAL HIGH SCHOOL.

We have reason to congratulate the Conference on the establishment of this much needed Institution. It was opened in April under the superintendence of Rev. J. W. Waugh, D. D., who has given much time and labor to the school. The attendance during the year (upwards of 40) and the hopeful outlook assure us of the success of the Institution. We heartily recommend the school to the favor of the English families in the various stations of our Conference, and expect to see a much larger attendance during the present year.

BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

The number of boys now in this Institution is 269. Of these, 16 are in Panahpore, the Christian village connected with the Orphanage, where they will earn their livelihood by farming. Some of these young farmers are doing very well. The Committee were glad to find a large number of boys engaged in the Industrial Department, learning various trades, and heartily approve of the Superintendent's general plan of giving each boy the training best adapted to him.

The long-felt want of a good hospital has at last been met, and a convenient, well-arranged building has been erected at a little distance from the Orphanage enclosure. The grounds and building are all in good condition.

The Committee examined all the classes including the Third. The boys passed a fair examination in the secular branches and did very well entire education is designed to prepare them to make model Christian homes adapted to Indian life.

The new buildings for the girls are all completed and the domestic arrangements are now excellent. When the house for the Superintendent and lady assistants is finished the entire Institution will be all that could be asked for in convenience and adaptation to the work designed.

The examination showed that the girls had generally been well taught in the vernacular. Only one or two classes gave the appearance of having been carelessly taught. Most of the small girls did admirably. The upper classes did well in English. The girls are proficient in Bible studies, and sing very well indeed.

This Institution, together with the Girls' Boarding Schools at Lucknow and Moradabad, are connected with the W. F. M. Society and need not be further mentioned here.

CAWNPORE SCHOOLS.

In November, three members of the Board spent three days in looking into the state of the two English schools in Cawnpore. The moral and religious instruction of the pupils in both appears to be carefully attended to. In the Memorial School, three boys passed the examination for admission into the Subordinate Medical Department. One of the two boys in the Entrance class was prevented by an accident from appearing in the examination; the other passed in the first division. The Committee spent the greater part of two days in examining the classes below Entrance. They regret to be compelled to state that they did not find that state of forwardness in the classes which they had expected to find. How far this may have been due to the unavoidable change of teachers during the year, the Committee cannot say. Certainly the deficiencies may to some extent be attributed to this fact.

Urdu has been introduced into the lower classes during the year, and the boys have made very creditable progress.

The new Principal, Rev. W. Bowser of the S. I. Conference, appeared to be devoting himself earnestly to meeting the requirements of the difficult position.

The Girls' school, under the efficient superintendence of Miss Easton, has been holding on its way with increasing success and usefulness. The Committee was highly pleased with the examination of the classes. The study of Urdu has been introduced and the classes have made excellent progress. We hope that a determined effort will be made to secure for this school a liberal grant-in-aid from Government.

We earnestly request the members of this Conference to encourage the boys and girls of their several stations, looking for good schools, with the lowest possible expenditure, to consider the claims and examine the merits of these schools. Arrangements have already been made to increase the efficiency of both schools.

CENTENNIAL SCHOOL, LUCKNOW.

The Educational Committee visited the Centennial School several times during the year, and held an examination of its classes at the close of the year. We are happy to report this school under its present excellent management, as on the high way to success. As may be seen from the Report of the Principal, there have been 119 boys on the roll during the year, with 90 at the close of the year. Of these there are 20 Boarders, part of whom are foundationers or on scholarships, the others paying for their support.

The examinations showed good work on the part of the boys, and care in the teachers and Principal. Altogether the school is most worthy of the confidence and support of this Conference, and we hope to see it become more and more a means for the education in advanced studies of the native Christian boys of our Mission, and to be as it is now rapidly becoming, an Institution in which all are interested, and of which we may well be proud.

III. STATE OF THE CHURCH.

We are entering on a new stage in the history of our work. Our Christians, derived from every section of the community, are one united body and they are animated largely by the evangelistic spirit.

During the year there have been baptized 199 adults and 256 children. The communicants in the Church have increased 206, or at the rate of 9 per cent. of the total accessions : only nine persons were from Moham-eral new openings in castes are reported. Udu District is beginning to yield excellent results. The day of darkness and delayed hope is rapidly yielding to the full noonday of assured success. The Chumar element is very large in the land, perhaps one-tenth of the population, and in several sections of the field large numbers have been brought to Christ.

Our Sunday-schools report great increase in numbers. Through their agency Christian truth is spreading far and wide, permeating the whole land year by year, the rough places are smoothed away, and the highway is being prepared for King Emmanuel. Your Committee look on the Sunday-school work as the most hopeful sign of the times. They would urge those in charge of schools to keep preaching a pure Gospel to the children. We have proofs that great good is done in this field of operation at present and no other promises more for the future. Our Christians are blessed in every manner by our Holy Faith. Sobriety and trustworthiness make them desirable citizens. Freedom from the expensiveness of idolatry enables them to gather up property. God's power is clearly manifest in redeeming the people of this land.

Let the Evangelistic work be pushed on vigorously. In every city, in the bazaars, in zananas and from house to house, let us proclaim with the tongue of fire the truth as it is in Jesus. Scatter the printed word. Put our books and tracts in the hands of the people.

Let the pastoral work be carefully attended to. Our Christian people should be intelligent, they should be holy. No one should be encouraged in idleness: every one should be exhorted to labor diligently not only to support himself and his family, but that he may have something to give to the needy and to help according to his ability in the work of the Lord. Let us teach our people to save and to give.

Your Committee feel that all our other work will be ruin and worse than useless if we are not careful to look after those already baptized. Let us be patient with them. Many of them are babes in Christ and they are His little ones. Let us remember how kindly Christ would speak to them, how tenderly He would treat them. Shall the Shepherd turn his back on the wayward one? No, he will seek such and bring it back to the fold. Whatever the people of India are—and we know that the millions are steeped in sin—it is our one work to win them to Jesus and having baptized them, to hold on to them, and to train and teach them until they become better men and better women. When they reach that stage they will be too valuable to lose. “Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved?” It is the Church of Christ in India. The Church of Christ in India advances. Hinduism and Mohamedanism fail to satisfy the thirst for salvation. India, so long under the spell of idolatry and Islam, has been aroused and has heard the voice of the Saviour. She asks “Who is Christ?” Christ Himself has appeared to the disciples. The eye of faith has looked on his pierced hands and feet. Thousands and tens of thousands of India’s sons and daughters have joined their hands and bowed their knees before Jesus Christ and believed in him. “Salvation,” a full, free and present salvation, “has come to this house” and to this people. Let us rejoice that so many dear native brethren have been called into the ministry. We welcome them to our ranks. There is nothing in our work for which we should be more thankful. With a strong force of holy native ministers the day of India’s redemption draws nigh.

IV. ON SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

THE interest taken in Sunday-schools is steadily increasing. During the past year more than fifteen hundred new pupils have been enrolled. The number under instruction during the year reached the handsome figure of 8,952. While in almost every station the numbers have grown, the ratio of increase has been greatest in Budaon and Cawnpore. On the former charge it is one hundred per cent and on the latter sixty per cent.

For obvious reasons average attendance is a truer test of the interest in a Sunday-school than the numbers enrolled. Measured by this standard Sitapur stands at the head of the list, with an average attendance amounting to ninety-eight per cent of the entire number enrolled. Next comes the Christian village of Panahpur and the English Sunday-school in Lucknow, each having an average of ninety per cent on the entire enrollment.

In view of the importance which the Conference now attaches to statistics, we would urge upon Proachers-in-charge the necessity of keeping the records in all their Sunday-schools full, and above all things, accurate. To this end we suggest, (1) That the name of each pupil should lesson for the ensuing Sunday is indispensable to complete success.

We call attention to the encouraging fact that the number of children in Sunday-schools who are not connected with day schools is increasing. Boys who are reading in Government schools are beginning to demand religious instruction; and they are coming to us to get it. In some places, as for example Cawnpore, more than half the Sunday-school scholars are not in the day-schools. By adopting an inexpensive system of prizes, Sunday-schools can now be started in many places where there are no day-schools. We suggest that special efforts be made in this direction.

In conclusion, we would urge upon every member of the Conference to make a determined effort to do his part in rolling up a grand total of ten thousand scholars next year.

V. ON TEMPERANCE.

Resolved,—That we are so far from relaxing our previously expressed convictions on this subject, that we earnestly charge upon each other the immediate duty to redouble and intensify our antagonism to intemperance.

What are some of the conspicuous wrongs in intemperance that are constantly before us upon which we may make successful attacks?

1st. Every bazar abounds in native grog-shops where men and women in wretchedness and squalor drink the most deadly concoctions.

2nd. Everywhere we find the homes of poor English-speaking families whose meagre income is largely wasted in intemperance. It is not the cost of necessary food or clothing or education that keeps these people poor, it is the cost of the drink.

3rd. Every military depot presents the constant sight of reeking, besotted and degraded men. In the barracks there are many temptations and many victims of intemperance.

4th. Every civil community has cases of indulgence, in higher social circles, that may surrender to total abstinence if we wisely and firmly, and with a Christ-like spirit, point out the sin and the duty.

5th. In every station there are too many places where liquors can be purchased. In one station where 12 shops for its sale appeared to be doing a flourishing business, steps are being taken with a good prospect of success to induce the local authorities to recall at least some of the licenses. In the same station an effort is making to secure some control of the sale of liquors, for example, so that boys shall not be able to purchase.

What can be done?

1st. We will make a more constant and forcible use of the great biblical argument for total abstinence, to wit, that every indulgence in a questionable thing that may injure any one should at once and wholly cease.

2nd. We will more affectionately and prayerfully urge the practice of total abstinence in the home of the intemperate.

3rd. We will find out who are the total abstainers in the vicinity of our several appointments and array them as a nucleus of influence against intemperance.

4th. Where it appears necessary, we will endeavor to secure the authority of Municipal officers for the suppression of the grosser aspects of the sale of drink; and finally in our preaching we will not forget that this evil is but one shoot from the great root-sin of opposition to God, and that our main endeavor should be to induce the people to surrender, and to be saved from all sin.

VI. REPORT OF PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

Our Press makes steady progress in the extent of its influence and the amount of work done from year to year. The great assistance already rendered in Educational, Sunday-school, and Colportage work indicates what a grand sphere of enlarged usefulness is still before this agency. It is worthy of the thoughtful and hearty co-operation of every friend of evangelism. We commend the little circular recently sent out by the Superintendent of the Press to the careful attention of our missionaries. Care in the matters referred to will do much to facilitate the business of the Press. The subjoined schedules of books &c. published during the year and of MSS. in hand will show the amount of work done during the year, and also what has been passed by the Publishing Committee and is now at the Press. It will be seen that 22 books and tracts have been issued and that 15 MSS. that have been passed are awaiting publication. Some of these must be delayed for want of funds. Some of the books issued, are in lithography, typographical execution and binding, up to the best work done in India. The Committee examined the accounts of the Press and found a Cr. balance of Rs. 621-1-9.

Books issued during the year 1880.

OF THE

MORADABAD, JANUARY 11-17, 1882.

PRINTED AT THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH PRESS,

REV. J. H. MESSMORE, Superintendent.

1882.

PRESIDING ELDERS' REPORTS.

OUR Mission field, the report of which is herein given, contains the old Provinces of Oudh, Rohilcund, Kumaon and Garhwal and the Zilla of Cawnpore. The work in accordance with the usage of the Methodist Episcopal Church is under the direction of a "Conference" composed of the Missionaries with such Native preachers as have been duly received. This Conference meets annua'ly, and in all the work of the Conference the Native members have the same authority as the foreign members. This field is divided into three Districts—Oudh and Cawnpore forming one, Rohilcund the second, and Kumaon and Garhwal the third. Each of these Districts is placed under a Superintendent known in our polity as a "Presiding Elder," whose work is to visit and assist and advise in every department of work in every place. Each of these Districts has also a District Conference composed of all grades of laborers within the District. This Conference has special care of all lay laborers, granting their licenses, hearing their reports of work, and punishing unfaithfulness. Each circuit has also a Conference, known as a Quarterly Conference, in which all the different grades of laborers of that circuit with the leading laymen of the Church meet once in three months to discuss plans of work, hear reports, arrange Sunday-school work, &c., &c. The Presiding Elder of the District is usually present and presides at these Quarterly Conferences. Our work is thus thoroughly organized, and carefully superintended both by the Presiding Elder and by the Missionary or Native minister in charge of the circuit, and all our leading laymen are brought into connection with the work at these Conferences, and their interest is awakened and assistance secured. Our list of appointments will show the names of preachers, but does not show the full force of laborers. A sketch of the work will be found at the beginning of each District, while the station or circuit reports show the special work of each place. The report of the work of the ladies is published separately.

DUP. EXCH 15 JUN. 1904

DREW THEOL SEM. 1/2

THE result of labour in such a Mission field as India cannot be gathered from statistics, while the moral condition of the people and present prospects for the speedy triumph of Christianity can hardly be ascertained from reports.

In the Oudh District there are not wanting encouraging indications. The preaching of the Word seems more effectual than formerly ; this was especially manifest in the recent Mela at Ajudhia, the birthplace of the famous Hindu incarnation Rama. One evening at the close of preaching a man came forward from the great crowd and declared himself convinced that Christ is the Saviour and that he would at once accept Him : his friends remonstrated and caught hold of him to prevent his accompanying the preacher to the camp, but he resisted all their efforts and spent the evening in receiving further instruction. The next day which was the Sabbath, he found his way back to the camp and declared that he would henceforth worship Christ. About the same time another very interesting man came forward quite in the same way and remained under instruction during our stay, and arranged to have this continued. Sunday morning, four men came forward from the great crowd and gave the name of their locality and declared themselves fully convinced and their anxiety to accept the truth. Still another said that he had accepted Christ, that he prayed only to Him and that he had peace in believing. True these were but seven men out of a crowd of probably nearly seven hundred thousand, still it shows the power of the Gospel and that we may be encouraged to look for the speedy coming of multitudes to inquire what they must do to be saved.

The interest in Sunday-school work is increasing in all directions: thousands of Hindu and Mahomedan children are under instruction and the number might be almost indefinitely increased could a sufficient number of Christian teachers be found. Some of our preachers attend three and four and even five schools each upon the Sabbath.

The permanent endowment of a Native Preachership,—the preacher to work as an evangelist in the Roy Bareilly District, inaugurated last year—has been completed, and the amount Rs. 4,500 in Government Securities, has been received and placed in the Bank of Bengal, Lucknow. Major A.P. Orr, the good man who kindly made this endowment, while very ill in the beginning of the year, before the transaction was completed, was most anxious that all should be properly settled while he was able to attend to it and was greatly gratified when he knew it was completed.

The new Church in Sitapur which is most admirably adapted to efficient work, has been completed and was dedicated in July. The debt on the English Church in Lucknow has been cleared off within the year, and the same with the Cawnpore Church. There is a heavy debt on the Memorial School in Cawnpore, which should be paid off at once. The School is improving and has a grand future before it. Who will come forward and lift off this heavy load of debt?

The Centennial School, Lucknow, for Native Christian boys, is moving for a new building. The Government heartily approves and promises Rs. 5,000 building grant. We must ask the Mission Board for as many dollars in our next estimate.

An arrangement has been made with the Directors of the Muir Cotton Mills in Cawnpore whereby a number of the boys from the Shahjahanpore Boys' Orphanage will be admitted into the Mills to learn the work and take employment as they become competent. About 80 of the 260 boys in the Orphanage will be removed to Cawnpore; they will however, as at present, divide their time between school and work. A number of Native Christian families will also find employment there, and thus the enterprise must result in great good to the Native Christian community in this part of the country.

in the suburbs of the city have been visited and in this way thousands have heard of Christ.

III. Baptisms.—Five adults have been baptized this year, four of whom were women. Of the five, four were Mahomedans, the other a Hindoo. One of these, a young man, owes his conversion to the teaching received in school and Sunday-school. He is in the highest class of our Central school in the city (which contains about 200 boys) and has gradually been led to accept Christ as his Saviour. He became convinced that no one else could pardon his sins and give peace and rest; daily, as he studied the Bible the truth seemed to take deeper hold of his heart, and at last he confessed to his schoolmates his faith in Christ. We advised delay but he declared himself ready for baptism and its consequences. He was baptized two months ago and bids fair to become a useful worker in the Church. His mother and brother at once drove him away from home, and refused to see him: he took refuge at the house of one of our local preachers, but was driven away for a time. One day his brother met him and gave him a beating with the assurance that he would repeat it every time they met. His clothes were taken from him, so that the first thing we had to do was to buy him a suit of clothes. Subsequently his brother relented and besought him to give up Christianity and again become a Mahomedan. The new convert however was not to be thus won over: he expressed his belief in Christ, and urged his brother to accept Christianity, as we trust he will.

We anticipated considerable trouble in the school especially as the young man was in the highest class, and such a baptism often breaks up the class; but the Lord helped us in this, and there was no interruption. One of his classmates, however, true to the spirit of Islam, expressed his mind very freely, as follows :

"So you have given up our faith and become a Christian? If it were not that the English Government is here I would soon have your head out from your shoulders!"

A Hindoo woman was baptized at the close of October at the Shajahanpore camp-meeting which she had greatly desired to attend. She has been for some time a teacher in one of the city girls' schools, and from hearing the hymns and Sunday-school lessons as taught by the young ladies, has lost all faith in Hinduism and has learned to love Christ.

Both of these cases are very encouraging as they show how much good is being effected by our schools and Sunday-schools. We shall labor more earnestly in future, and pray that God may use these agencies more and more.

IV. The Day Schools have been doing a good work. In all of these not only is the Bible taught but the text-books (readers) are full of religious lessons, while in four of the six the Head-masters are Christians and devote more or less attention every day to Bible instruction. Hundreds of boys and girls are being brought under saving influences, and we expect by-and-by to count converts from these schools by the score.

V. Our Sunday-school work has been very interesting. We report 1,350 scholars, an increase of 250. In several places where we have day-schools we might open Sabbath-schools had we more helpers. As it is, most of our Church members attend two Sunday-schools in different parts of the city, and one local preacher attends three, every Sabbath. The city is so large (at least six miles in extent) that it requires from three to four hours for each school. We frequently close with a preaching service.

The Borean Lessons have never been more carefully studied among us than during the past year. At the close of the third quarter, in September, we held our examination as usual in the Subjects, Golden Texts, Outlines and Selected Verses, and about 100 scholars, mostly Hindus and Mahomedans, passed perfectly and had their names entered on the "Roll of Honor." The examiners were surprised at the readiness with which the questions were answered, evincing much earnest study on the part of the children.

VI. The Magic Lantern has been of great help in our evangelistic work. We have given exhibitions of scriptural scenes in every part of the city; generally in our school houses. The last one was held a few evenings since. Half a dozen of the brethren accompanied to assist in the singing. The head-master of the school (a Christian brother) had invited the boys, their parents, friends and others to attend, and as the result we had a congregation of 400, among others a Native official (Honorary Magistrate) and his friends. The opportunity for preaching was excellent, and we returned greatly encouraged. By pictures, hymns and sermons the people are thus learning of the work and teachings of Christ.

Rev. T. Craven has special charge of Sâdatgunge, our suburban appointment, and reports as follows :

"Sâdat Gunge is the oldest district in the Lucknow work. In the early days the good men who pioneered the way in this Sodom of India wisely commenced work at this point, built a commodious school-house and native parsonage : after 22 years these stand and are serving the promising work well.

In the school-house meets daily a school, and on Sunday a Sunday-school with an attendance of some 150 boys. On some Sundays the past year the attendance has reached over 200, all heathen and Mahomedan children : of this number not a few read the scriptures and intelligently listen to the explanations of the lesson. A class of 16 young men who have been in attendance for several years is a particular attraction, at all events to the Superintendent. All is hopeful and promising and we trust that soon the Master will direct us where to cast the net, that some of the fish may be taken.

Brother Chimman Lal occupies the parsonage and he is being blessed. A few have been led by him to Christ the past year. He is a worker and soul saver. He is respected through the community and God is drawing the people nearer to him.

We look for great things in this heathen stronghold whereof our hearts shall be made glad and angels in heaven rejoice."

The work among educated natives has been carried on as heretofore by Babu R. C. Bose, who reports as follows : "I look back to my visit to America as one of those occurrences of my life by means of which the Lord has been preparing me for the great work for which I have been set apart. It brought me in contact with the forms of Missionary earnestness, such as could not but exercise a beneficial influence over me; and it has furnished me with topics of discourse fresh, and therefore attractive to the people among whom I work. Since my return I have been mainly engaged in lecturing and writing on America. My object in the discourses I have delivered and the papers I have written on this subject has been two-fold, to set forth the perversity of human nature by a reference to the bad things I had noticed, as well as to show the excellency of our religion by dwelling on the good things by which the best elements of my own soul had been stirred up. In this way, I believe, I have done more good than I could possibly have done if I had only presented one-sided accounts or if I had ignored the dark side of the picture.

Besides visiting the places where I am expected to preach annually, I spent upwards of a couple of months in Calcutta, where I was very kindly entertained and cordially helped by the leading members of the Native Church, and where in consequence mainly of their assistance I was enabled to do a little good. My arrival in Calcutta was opportune, occurring at a time when an attempt was being made to bring the Brahmos and the Native Christians together socially by the leading members of both the communities. This circumstance brought me in close, friendly contact with Mr. Sen and his Missionaries; and what I saw of them is fitted to convince me that, while we cannot hold out the right hand of religious fellowship to them till their attitude towards the fundamental truths of our religion is radically altered, it becomes us to treat them with the respect to which they are entitled on account of their devotional earnestness, their philanthropic exertions and their patriotic zeal. Mr. Sen kindly placed the Albert Hall of which he is the Trustee at my disposal, and presided at one of the meetings we held therein. He followed me with a very good speech, and made statements regarding our Lord, which, but for the unfortunate tendency of his party to explain away or mystify his public utterances, might lead us to repeat the well-known words of Christ—he is ‘not far from the Kingdom of Heaven.’ For instance he called our Lord the Eternal Son of God, and distinctly affirmed that all that was good in Buddha and the other reformers of the world proceeded from the Spirit of Christ dwelling in them! His party and that of the Sadharun Somaj, which has some very able and good men among its members, are numerically weak, and by no means so influential as at first sight they appear. The irreligious system of education in vogue in the country is doing its work; and the hosts of young men brought up in the great colleges and schools of Calcutta and its vicinity are friendly to anything and everything but religion. I was invited by the leading members of several associations in and in the vicinity of the metropolis to deliver lectures for their benefit; and I was distinctly given to understand that I must steer clear of religious subjects, and once in a crowded meeting convened in Albert Hall by the Students’ Association I was called to order because I briefly alluded to the injustice done to the moral teachings of Christ in the well-known strictures thereon of John Stuart Mill. I had nevertheless splendid opportunities of doing my work

THE CENTENNIAL SCHOOL.

REV. B. H. BADLEY, Principal.

YEAR by year this institution is growing in importance and in helpful influence. It is intended chiefly for Native Christian boys and especial attention is given to religious instruction, but as we have had urgent applications from others wishing to attend we have not confined it to the one class. All the boarders are Christians. The number at present in attendance is 118, of whom 60 are Christians, 44 Hindoos and 14 Mahomedans. The highest class consists of 23 young men, who besides their ordinary studies read the Bible (in English) an hour each day. Lower classes are taught in Barth's "Bible Stories," the Catechisms, &c.

The School was examined by the Government Inspector in July. He expressed his pleasure at the progress made during the year, and promised to assist us in securing a larger grant from Government and a building grant of Rs 5,000 for the new school-house which he pronounced an urgent necessity. Government has kindly sanctioned the Rs. 5,000, and we hope ere long to have at last a house adapted to our growing school. We have already occupied three houses, none of them large enough; so we are all the more desirous of securing an abiding home with ample accommodations for boarders, a good play-ground, gymnasium, &c.

The boarders have been regular in attendance upon divine service and Sabbath-school, as well as their own school prayer and class meetings. The older boys belong to the Y. M. C. A. and go regularly to the city Sunday-schools as teachers. We hope and are assured that God will call at least some of them to preach ; others will teach ; all are being prepared for usefulness.

This school is greatly needed and could not be more happily located than in Lucknow. Here we have a large population of Native Christians and Europeans, many of the latter poor and unable to send their sons away to boarding-schools. By building up a first-class school we can have by-and-by an attendance of 150 Christian boys, who upon graduating will be qualified for places of trust and importance. Our own and other Churches will profit from the school. At present we have students whose parents belong to the Church of England, to the United Presbyterian Church, the Baptist Church, and several Roman Catholics.

PRESS REPORT.

REV. T. CRAVEN, Superintendent.

THE publishing interests have been attended to with the customary steadiness and attention. There has been nothing of importance transpired to call for special remark. No book has as yet come prominently into notice and no new MS. has been presented likely to be especially popular.

The calls of Sunday-school workers and Theological students have been especially heard, and an attempt at meeting their wants has been made. The attention of the youth to the Sunday-school, their education in so far as it can be attended to, by interesting monthly papers, and the formation of the theological views of the forthcoming ministry has been the concern of those interested in the Press and its power.

The Commentary on Exodus by Rev. D. W. Thomas is now passing through the Press. The Discipline, revised by Rev. E. W. Parker, will be out in a few days. A Sunday-School Manual in English by Rev. T. J. Scott is also in hand. It will be translated and presented to the Church shortly in Roman and Lithograph Urdu. Rev. B. H. Badley revised our hymn-book with the assistance of some members of the Publishing Committee in the early part of the year, and about 15,000 copies in Urdu (Lithograph), Hindi and Roman-Urdu have been printed. The works of Josephus are still passing through the Press : during the past year four parts have been printed.

For our day-schools, a new Arithmetic has been stereotyped and 3,000 copies printed. Several other books whose editions had been sold, have been re-supplied.

For the Sunday-school new sets of 50 illustrated tickets or cards has been prepared and 75,000 printed ; 400,000 colored attractive pictures have been received and arrangements made for supplying the necessary letter-print. Mention may also be made of the yearly supply of Sunday-school Lessons and Picture Papers. The work of editing these was cheerfully assumed by the Rev. R. Hoskins and Rev. E. W. Parker. Of the latter—the Sunday-school Paper in Urdu and Hindi—192,000 have been printed and sent weekly, into the homes of the school attendants. The Lessons were printed and sent forth chiefly in book form, so after the year has gone, the lessons will remain in this permanent form with many of the larger boys.

to heaven, in these regions, has not yet dawned.

And yet it has been a good year. The gospel has been extensively preached in both town and country throughout both districts, the schools are larger than ever before, the Sunday-schools especially are a success, being well attended and conducted with enthusiasm and to the profit of the pupils; there are more houses open to zanana workers this year than last, there are many more enquirers, truth seems to take a firmer hold, the helpers and catechists have been as a general thing more diligent and earnest in their work, the majority of the membership have grown in grace, the Christian children under careful daily training have improved very much, the new Church in Thompsongunge has been completed with thankfulness, dedicated with joy and filled every Sunday with attentive congregations and enthusiastic Sunday-school children. The magic lantern, that new non-Pauline method of reaching the heart through the eye, has been used in city and mela attracting large and attentive crowds, holding them spell-bound while the gospel has been preached unto them. The educated classes have through lectures been more effectually reached this year than last and the people seem at least more willing to hear than ever before. That settles the character of the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and eighty-one and results in much encouragement and a general conviction of the ultimate success of the enterprise.

With this general outline of work done there are several practical questions which suggest themselves,

1. How can we best reach the masses so as to hold their attention and impress the truth upon them? The magic lantern has been named. It is a grand thing. It works like magic. It draws and holds a crowd and the impression made is lasting. The missionary has seen at least a thousand people sitting for two hours night after night while the whole Bible history from the creation of Man to the Ascension was recounted before them and they seemed to be far more interested in that than in the picture of the lion with opening jaws or in the drunkard swallowing a mouse. And the missionary has settled the question of reaching the masses so far as Sitapur itself is concerned. Here is his prescription. Build a large, open, airy attractive hall in the midst of the town, in the most public place, where it is not too noisy, throw it open to the public and preach a free, full gospel of salvation to them. Let there be plenty of good, loud, hearty, sprightly, joyous singing and copious illustration and abundance of pictures and the people will come. But the funds to build? "Ask and ye shall receive." "Ask largely" and the "joy" of seeing a house go up which will be an enduring monument to the Lord as well as a power for good will be "fulfilled."

2. What shall we do for the children? This question is paramount in this Empire. What a glorious thought that more than one-half the people in numbers and two-thirds of them in value are accessible to us! Here is a responsibility for the Church to accept. Oh, that the garment of Robert Raikes would fall upon us. The missionary at Sitapur is grandly seconded in his efforts to save the children, by his catechists and helpers showing that Sunday-schools can flourish under native control. In the school at Khairábád which is conducted by Moonshi Peter Gray and Babu George Mayal and which is really a more wide-awake school than the one in Thompson Gunge under the immediate management of the missionary, Hindu and Mohammedan boys sing hymns alone, read essays, recite the Golden texts and Outlines of the lessons and know Mudge's Catechism so well that in theology they are more Christian than any thing else.

3. How to circulate books. The catechists and helpers, as well as the colporteur, have taken more interest in this work than ever before and as a consequence more books have been sold and much good done. There are helpers who are ashamed to be seen selling books, but the missionary at Sitapur rejoices in the fact that all his helpers are booksellers and are not ashamed to be seen standing in the bázárs urging the people to buy. There is, moreover, a pleasant rivalry existing between them which is encouraging to see.

Several interesting incidents have occurred during the year. Ram Sahái, the temple priest at Har gánw, heard of the dedication of the new church in Thompson Gunge and came in to attend the services and taking up his abode in the missionary's garden remained during that interesting occasion much to his own profit. Píran, a servant in the missionary's family, is an example of how Christ can save these people. Four years ago the woman was a heathen. Now, her deep piety and earnest zeal are a help to us all. In Christian benevolence she is a model and in faith a power. She has been the means of bringing others to Christ, and has but recently adopted a boy to bring him up in the fear of the Lord. But this woman is so ignorant that she has been three years which he could be received but after that he did not trouble his "honor's health" any more.

The missionary is very grateful for all the help, financial and other, which he has received from kind friends outside of the Mission and hopes that they will receive this as an acknowledgment of their many favours.

GONDA AND BAHRAICH.

REV. S. KNOWLES,	Missionary.
REV. W. PETERS,	Native Minister.

I. Bázár Preaching. The Gospel has been preached in Gonda on an average three times a week during the past year. In Bahraich this work has been carried on most vigorously and efficiently by Mr. Charles Luke and Chatter Singh. The same may be said of all our out-stations—Colonelgunge, Ellenpur, and Nawábgunge, on the Ghagrá. In all these places our Native preachers have labored faithfully. From the reports received from these important points of Christian influence, as well as from our own observations, we are able to say that we have met with much encouragement, both from the respectful and attentive bearing of the people, and from the unusual number of inquirers who have come to learn more of this wonderful avatár who gave his life a ransom for sinners. One man, a young Brahman, was standing in a crowd of impressed listeners, in the Bahraich bázár, himself wrapt in deep attention, listening to a comparison between the last, or tenth avatár of Hinduism and Jesus Christ. The preacher laid special emphasis on the fact that the true "desire of all nations," the only pure Incarnation which had come into the world, had already appeared; but unlike the last avatár of the Hindús, He appeared "not to destroy men's lives," but to save them, for "this is a faithful saying, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." This young man became very angry for a time, but the truth he heard was "as a nail fastened in a sure place;" and he came to our preacher and said that "the avatár who came to save, and not to destroy him, was the Saviour he wanted." A few weeks afterwards he was baptized and received on probation.

A young Madrasí servant heard our preaching in the Gonda bázár. He went home to his master, told him what he had heard, and asked for spiritual instruction. His master kindly sent him to us, and we found him thoroughly convinced of the truth that Christ was the only one that could "save" him, and fully determined to throw in his lot among us. We had the pleasure, a few weeks after this, to baptize and receive him into the Church on probation. He is now with his master in Lucknow.

A middle aged Brahman, with handsome face, and fine flowing beard, heard our bázár preaching in Colonelgunge. He became a very earnest seeker after the truth. Many were his doubts and fears, which only those who understand something of native thought and feelings and habits can fully appreciate; yet he overcame them all, and six months after his first coming to us we administered to him the holy rite of baptism. It is very difficult to get a Brahman faqír after the wandering life he generally leads to do work of any kind, but this man was quite willing to work and is employed as a peon.

A Brahman compounder in the Nawábgunge hospital, came one evening into the bázár to oppose the preacher and stop the preaching. A padri was telling the story of a king-tyrant who commanded a poor smith to make a long chain, and when the wretched man had completed it, the tyrant ordered his servants to bind him hand and foot and cast him into a furnace. The story was explained to mean that the tyrant was Satan; that he tempted men to sin; each sin a man willingly committed became a link in the chain which, if a man did not repent, would bind him hand and foot at last in helpless destruction. This simple story made such a deep impression upon the mind of Ratn Náth that he relinquished all intention of trying to annoy the preacher, and to draw the attention of the people away from the discourse. He came to us and confessed his fault, and said he feared that he, too, was bound in the chain of his sins. We pointed him to Christ who "came into the world" to break "the power of cancelled sin," and to set "the prisoner free." He has since been an earnest inquirer after more truth and will soon be baptized.

These are four of the adult baptisms we report in our statistics.

II. Visiting. We have made this one of our most important duties during the past year, and from the reports of our helpers this feature of our work has met with some success. In Gondá there are more Hindú more experience I gain, the more I learn not to "despise the day of small things." This is a small thing now; but we have faith to believe that it will, by the grace of God, grow into something greater and better.

III. Itinerating. We have made many tours in this District, but none that seemed so satisfactory as the tours we made during the last cold season. The people appeared ready and eager for the Word everywhere; they were uniformly respectful and glad to see and hear us.

We made two or three tours to Nawabgunge on the Ghogra as there a very important and encouraging work opened out last year. The old Garu whom we baptized and hoped to employ, to go among his own caste and try and win them over to Christ, fell very sick with an attack of bronchitis. In his sickness and weakness some of his disciples who were opposed to us persuaded him to give up all idea of identifying himself publicly with us. For a time, therefore, after his recovery, he hid himself from us, and refused in any way to hold communication with us. He sent us word that he believed on Jesus Christ, but would serve him in secret. Latterly, however, he has shown a better spirit by coming to our meetings, and visiting our Native preacher. On one of our visits to Nawabgunge we baptized another young man of the same caste. He came himself one day to our Native preacher, and said he believed Christ to be the true Saviour, and wished to become his disciple. He has been living very consistently ever since. We have still great hopes that this good work will spread among this industrious and steady class of people.

Another tour was made to Colonelgunge, where we visited and examined the well conducted and flourishing boys' and girls' schools in charge of our Native preacher here, and preached many times in the crowded corn and grain market of the town. Bihari Lal has a very encouraging work going on in this place.

We also made another tour to Ellenpur. Here we have a small church of some fifty Native Christians. We spent many days among them, holding religious services, and in visiting the large bazars held a few miles distant from this grant. This large estate has now passed out of the hands of Mr. Cearn, its former owner; into the possession of the young Rajah of Utraul; but I trust this change will not affect the position of our Native Christians; though I fear the little church we hoped to erect on this grant must remain a simple paper-plan for the present.

In itinerating in this District fifteen years ago we found very few persons who could read, and hence were not able to distribute many tracts and books; but now there is scarcely a village we can enter without selling four or five tracts and as many copies of the different parts of the New Testament.

IV. Melas or Religious Fairs.—In the beginning of the year we visited the great mela held at Ajudhiya, the birthplace of Ram, where over 500,000 people assemble to plunge into the waters of the Ghogra at the full moon in November, and to worship at the hundreds of shrines enclosed in fine substantial temples with which this Hindu sacred place abounds. There were three Missionaries, and ten Native preachers from our Mission present, encamped in an ancient grove of tamarind trees outside the gloomy old Hanuman Fort. We were near the great mass of people, and could sit and talk or preach to large crowds of people by only going a few yards from our tents; but for four days we divided up our force into companies of three and preached at different points from the fort to the river twice every day. Large crowds of from four to five hundred would gather round each preaching place, and listen, as I have never seen people listen before, to the "Good News" of a Saviour who can save them from their sins, and give them true peace of conscience and lasting happiness. A very large number of books and tracts were sold at this mela. Every preacher carried a bundle of Hindí or Urdú tracts in his hand, and cried them for sale as he went to or returned from the place of preaching. Thus an unusually large quantity of good religious literature was spread among these enthusiastic thousands of idol-worshippers; and who can estimate the good these silent messengers of truth will work out in these dark minds and superstitious hearts? It is our work to sow, and God's to water and fructify the seed of truth.

IV. Sabbath Schools.—We consider this one of our most important Mission institutions. The Sabbath school not only gives us the minds and hearts of the children to enlighten and influence for good, but it also gives us access to their parents. The hymns and verses of scripture the children learn at the Sabbath school, are soon heard and remembered by the parents and friends in the children's homes. We often see

REV. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

It is about 18 years since the Mission was established here, but this is the first time that a Native Missionary has been placed in charge of it. The district is large and more labourers are needed. In the out-station of Bhojpur, Isa Das (who is a local deacon), baptized a woman last May; the husband collected a crowd and came and beat the preacher and his wife and carried off the convert. She soon evaded them however, and after two days returned to the preacher's house where she remained about two months, when she returned to her people. In March a young man named Ganeshee was baptized; he had made various efforts to reform his life but finally concluded he must acknowledge the Lord publicly before his relatives; but I am sorry to say they persecuted him so that he was obliged to leave the place, but when last heard from he was going on faithfully. The people both in the city and villages listen with much interest to the preaching of the gospel. Very little real opposition is offered anywhere to the general proclamation of the Word. We always offer books for sale after preaching; we are all of us book-sellers. The Christians are growing in grace day by day and the preachers are all faithful in their work. The schools and Sunday-schools are also doing good work and promise much for the children and youth. With hearty thanks to God for His continued grace and help and to friends for their assistance we close this report.

HABRU.

Rev. B. LUKE,

Native Preacher.

The Native preacher (a Conference probationer) fell ill early in the year and is still unable to do much work. The work in hand has not been allowed to suffer much, but little general evangelistic work could be done. The field is an interesting one and as the workmen improve in health, encouraging reports may be expected. The preacher's house and chapel—both badly built buildings—were so damaged last rains that part of each fell, making it necessary to immediately re-roof and otherwise repair them.

BABA BANKI.

Rev. E. JOEL,

Native Minister.

Although alone in his promise time: "I have preached in the city to house and find willing named Ram Parshad, a devotee. About two years been looking for me—the book which would tell all the Gospel with me, upon of the New Testament visited him several times devotes himself to religion soon acknowledge Christ a faqir, declared that he that he had failed to find. He pronounced blessing upon my accepting with me and appeared to be had accepted the Lord started for his home who heard from him. The great multitudes may so from one place to another and persisted in his interruption. Finally I laid the facts before the Chief of Police, himself a Mahomedan. The young man was sent for, informed that such conduct was contrary to the rules relating to bazar preaching, and warned to desist. Since that time I have not seen him in the bazar.

The schools have worked as usual but with an increased attendance. A new school has been opened recently in a quarter of the city where there are no others, and promises to be useful.

Book-selling has been pushed with unusual vigour and success. There are three men now employed in this work. The demand for Christian hymn-books and parts of the old Testament among the heathen has noticeably increased.

The number of members on the register has decreased. Death has taken away some; others have moved away; and two probationers have been dropped for gross immorality.

The Sunday services for Native Christians are well attended; but the need of a large chapel more conveniently situated is felt more and more.

The Sunday-school work has increased greatly. We now have ten schools with 624 children enrolled. Of this number nearly six hundred are heathens or Mahomedans.

The Lesson Leaves are used only in two of the schools. In the others the children are taught the Lord's Prayer, the catechism, and Christian hymns. They make rapid progress and seem to believe what they are taught. In the Sunday-schools lies our hope for large numbers of converts in the not very distant future.

In Cawnpore there seems to be no limit to the increase in this form of work, except that fixed by the difficulty in getting suitable teachers. Already valuable assistance has been given in this work by laymen belonging to the English congregation; and there is a promise of additional help next year from the same quarter.

The two adults who have been baptized during the year are very interesting cases. One is a woman the widow of a faithful man who was baptized in 1879, and died suddenly last year. After her husband's baptism this woman refused to live with him. With true Christian grace, he left his own house for her to live in, and taking with him their little girl who also had been baptized, he moved into a little mud hut in the corner of the yard near the house of one of our native preachers. "Working with his own hands," he continued to support his family including his wife and their little son who had not been baptized.

After her husband's death the woman went resolutely to work to support herself and her boy by "grinding at the mill." The little girl was sent away to Bareilly to school. Soon, in spite of her constant toil, want began to pinch the widow and her boy. At this juncture, the native brethren recommended me to give her a trifling monthly allowance out of the poor fund raised by the Native Church. As in many other cases, so in this, our care for the wants of the body soon opened the way to the heart. Her bitterness died out and she became an earnest seeker after truth. After eight months of careful instruction she and her little boy were baptized. Within five weeks the boy, a bright amiable little fellow, died of fever. The poor widow had sorrow upon sorrow. Her neighbours told her that all her troubles were the result of her having become a Christian. She was greatly troubled by this thought but stood fast in the hope of the Gospel. One week ago, I had the pleasure of seeing her happily re-united with her daughter at the Shahjehanpore Camp-meeting.

The other convert is a man forty-five years of age, whose case illustrates the power for good which may be exerted by Christian laymen in this country. He is a Brahman by caste and a money-changer by occupation. In a quiet way, he has been an enquirer for some years. In the evening after the business of the day was over, he was in the habit of going to the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, which are frequented chiefly by European soldiers. Although he does not understand English, he did not fail to observe the spirit of brotherly love which pervaded the meetings and was manifested in the intercourse between the men and himself. Deeply impressed by what he had seen and felt, one evening he asked for a cup of tea and boldly drank it; thereby breaking his caste most effectually. Soon after he was brought to me for instruction. I found him to be already well grounded in the faith; and after three months delay baptized him. His family is living in a village some twenty miles from Cawnpore. At first, they refused to have anything to do with him. Soon after his baptism he went to the village to see them. The villagers set upon him and he was severely beaten with shoes. More recently, however his eldest son fell ill, and Since my arrival from America in February, I have had charge of this work, and it rejoices me to know that through grace divine something lasting has been accomplished for the Master.

We have here a large and interesting field. The congregations, which we found to be large, have not fallen off, but through the pastoral labor which we have been permitted to do, have rather increased in numbers. The church every Sabbath evening is well-filled, and a more attentive and interesting congregation could not be desired. A good attendance of civilians, soldiers, and school children from the Memorial and Girls' Schools makes up the congregation. The Thursday evening service has been fairly attended, preaching having been kept up for the greater part of the year. Of late we have turned it into a prayer-meeting. The Tuesday evening class and fellowship meeting, in charge of Dr. Conder, has brought blessings to those who attend it. We have just organized another of these social meetings, and trust that it will be the means of leading many to seek "vital godliness." Dr. Conder has also had charge of the Sunday school, and under his faithful superintendence the interest and attendance have scarcely abated during the year. The debt on the Church has been paid.

In addition to the services in the Church, one has been held once a week in a private house in Mirpur; one for the soldiers three or four times a week in their Association rooms; there has been preaching once a week at the East India Railway station; also by Mr. McGrew in Kishore once a month at Unao, and we have just begun preaching services fortnightly at Futtahpur. The first of these has been fairly attended, the second by a score or more of soldiers; the third has varied from fifteen to thirty-five; the fourth about thirty, and the fifth we trust will be well attended. Under the efficient superintendence of Mr. Beet, the Railway Sunday school has averaged about twenty.

A prominent feature of my work has been visiting from house to house. I am confident that many hearts and homes made sad and sinful by Satan's power, have been cheered and made purer by this work. These people highly appreciate this attention from their pastor. More than once have I heard such language as this: "How can I thank you for your kindness?" No one has talked to us as you have, and your prayers have helped us greatly. We have long felt the need of a Minister's counsels. And then and there some have promised to serve the Saviour, and I trust have been truly converted. In the hospital each week we talk to the sick about Christ, and the interest they take is a great source of inspiration. More than one has there been born again. One man came in from a drunken spree, and had to have his foot amputated, and has been a great sufferer for months from fever and internal pains. But he has given his heart to the Lord Jesus, and his bedside is such as none but a Christian's can be. Another with the cold sweat on his brow, promised to "meet me above." Before the rising of the morrow's sun his body was out of pain and his soul was at rest. These are but examples of the many touching seasons we have with the soldiers.

I gladly recognize, and am thankful for the great aid that Mr. McGrew, Dr. Condon and Mr. Neeld have given me during the year. Not one of them could well spare the time from his respective work; yet their labors with me have been abundant.

THE MEMORIAL SCHOOL, CAWNPORE.

REV. F. L. NEELD, Principal.

We close the year with 68 boys on the roll: out of this number 54 are boarders, and three of the boarders are on the "Petman Foundation."

We have three masters, and two pupil teachers. Having no head-master I have had to fill the place during the year; this has left me no time for preaching. If we had another Missionary as head-master, it would give us both some time to devote to preaching; or if we had a layman from home specially prepared to enter educational work, he could devote all of his time to school work and thus secure to the school the undivided attention of a Principal.

The health of the boys has been very good throughout the year; there has been more sickness among day-scholars than among boarders.

The general conduct of the school is good, only a few cases have required severity in discipline. A spirit of Christian gentlemanliness among the boys of the upper classes has had a very good effect upon the whole school.

which we need.

The institution is young yet, but the boys who have gone out may be found in many of the important stations of India. I met the brother of one who has lately gone to Australia. Thus they will increase in number and be scattered throughout the land. If nourished in her youth the Memorial School may grow to be a power for Jesus in India.

As indicated in the appointments made at the last session of our annual Conference several changes were effected in this District at that time.

1. The Native work in Naini Tal proper was separated from that of the outlying region and was attached to the English charge of that station and both departments of labour were assigned to the Rev. N. G. Cheney.

2. The Native work in the villages about Naini Tal and in the Bhabar adjoining was formed into a new and separate charge and placed under the care of Rev. Thomas Gowan, one of the Native ministers of our Conference. This is the first instance in which a Native minister has been appointed in charge of a circuit in our mountain work, but the arrangement has thus far proved very satisfactory indeed.

3. The above changes released the Presiding Elder and former Missionary in charge of the Native work of this field, from the duties and labours therein involved, and he was appointed to Dwarahat to take up the work more vigorously in that field in connection with his more general District work. This last-named field has for some years appeared in the list of Conference appointments under the name of Palee, and until the present year, has been under the direct charge of our local preachers. It is a central place in the mountain District and is therefore a good point for the residence of the Presiding Elder. It is believed these changes will give us access to larger numbers of people and, on the whole, will result in increased efficiency in our work.

The reports from the various Missions stations of the District will show that there has been an advance in most parts of our field. One very encouraging feature in our work is the manifest growth and increased efficiency of perhaps most of our Native workers. We can but look upon these men as the main hope of the Gospel in this country, and every mark of improvement in them adds to our hope of the speedy success of the

An epitome of this swift year now closing can quickly be made.
 The land-slip of last year diverted so many people to other hill-stations that nearly half of the houses here have stood empty. But the seasons are now so thoroughly protected by walls and water-ways, built at immense expense by the Government, that the danger of another such disastrous land-slip occurring is greatly reduced. Renewed confidence in the safety of Naini Tal is increasing, and next year the station will doubtless be filled with residents. Naini Tal is in its infancy.

Notwithstanding the fewness of the residents and the dreaded locality of our old chapel, the congregations and the interest of our services have not diminished. Members of all evangelical denominations not only gladly receive our ministrations, and cheerfully pay all current expenses, but they have heartily united in the task of building the new church edifice. The direct evangelistic efforts of the year have been blessed to a good number of hearts, especially so among the soldiers where earnest laborers have seen clear and satisfactory conversions, for which the Lord be praised.

The Methodist Episcopal Church edifice.—This is a tasteful and convenient building, erected as a place of worship for the English-speaking residents of the station. The site was chosen on the 18th October, 1880. The corner-stone was laid on the 7th February, 1881. In the cavity of the stone are deposited copies of the following :—latest Church papers, latest Conference minutes, the Methodist Discipline, and also a manuscript, giving a brief historical account of the progress of our Church in Naini Tal. The building was dedicated on the 9th October by the Rev. P. M. Buck. The sermon, from the text, Mat. XX. 28, was preached by the Pastor.

The design for this edifice was made by B. F. Bartlett, architect, of Des Moines, Iowa. Its seating capacity is flexible, so that it can be increased or diminished according to the requirement of the season of the year. Its maximum of seating capacity is for 400 persons. Its arrangement of seats, its light, ventilation, acoustics and appearance disappoint no one; and the workmanship is good and satisfactory, and the location safe. This new property is held by a Board of Trustees appointed according to the directions of the Discipline. The total cost of the site and the building will not exceed Rs. 26,000. The amount not yet provided will not exceed Rs. 7,000, which the congregation can easily discharge during the coming year.

From the day when the site was selected we have had the constant, patient assistance of the Commissioner of Kumaon, General the Honorable Sir Henry Ramsay, without whose help we know not how the building could have been completed so inexpensively and rapidly, and yet with such reliable workmanship.

The Boys' High School—This School, under Mr. Kastendieck, has taken a high stand, and gained a permanent reputation. The pupils in appearance, deportment and scholarship have made very evident improvement. Forty-six boarders are enrolled, besides a number of day-scholars. In addition, a good many applications have been made for entrance of boarders which on account of the limited accommodation of the building we were obliged to decline. Although the largest house in the station, "Stoneleigh," is rented, it is far too small for the school.

The institution needs a place,—grounds and barracks, with dormitories, recitation-rooms, etc. Let these be provided as soon as possible and there is no doubt but that the School will prove, in every respect, a permanent success.

The Girls' High School.—The rent of a house was generously provided by Mrs. Petman, and this school was announced for last spring. Mrs. Craven most kindly consented to undertake its superintendency. The outlook appeared to equal that of the opening of the Boys' School. In the first week of the proposed term severe sickness prevented the reception of boarders. The school, however, was begun with as many day-pupils as could easily be gathered. Subsequently, the Civil Surgeon warned the school out of the rented house, which he pronounced an unhealthy location. We secured a neighboring cottage, where the little school has continued throughout the year.

Work in the vernacular.—After the land-slip last year our Native Christian community was quite all removed to the Christian village, Chopra. Bro. G. H. Fray has worked regularly, visiting among the shops and from door-to-door, holding prayer-meeting and preaching in the bazars. Such of our missionaries as have spent any time at the sanitarium have helped in the Bazar preaching, as has also Mr. S. E. Marston of our English church. Babu Ram Chandra Bose gave a course of spirited and useful lectures to educated Natives. Dr. Scott and the Rev. Mr. Mansell have also given lectures which were well attended, the audiences from the bazars sometimes filling the chapel. The Rev. D. W. Thomas most kindly undertook the care of the Native Sabbath-school, and he has also regularly preached at the excellent Sabbath service for Jhampanies. The Native Boys' School has been in charge of a European head-master, and has done a good year's work.

BHABAR CIRCUIT.

REV. THOMAS GOWAN, Native Minister.

As already indicated this circuit was formed at the last session of our Annual Conference and comprises that part of the old Naini Tal circuit lying outside of the station proper. During the cold season most of the work is done in the belt of land skirting the mountains, the Bhabar proper, which gives the circuit its name. In the summer months the work is largely confined to the villages in the adjoining hills. This change is due to the fact that the people change their dwelling places with the seasons.

The various branches of Mission work in this field have been carried on much in the usual manner.

Eight primary Schools for boys are kept up and the work done during the year has been fairly satisfactory. There have been five Sunday-schools in connection with these day-schools and the attendance has been encouraging.

Two melas or fairs were attended and considerable preaching was done, which was listened to by large numbers with apparent interest.

Frequent itinerating tours have been made through the circuit with encouraging results.

There are now six villages within the bounds of this charge where Christian families are found. This is an encouraging fact when it is remembered that but few years have elapsed since the first family embraced Christianity.

The most important of these villages to us is Isainagar, which is distinctively a Christian village. It now contains fourteen Christian families. Its influence for good on the surrounding community is very marked. A few years since two missionaries and a Native preacher were on an itinerating tour, and on entering a village in the neighborhood where Isainagar now stands, a Brahmin greeted them with a most shameful tirade of abuse. Now the spirit of friendliness is very striking and numbers of the people frequent our place of worship. There are two or three families in the village almost ready for baptism. There is also another family for which strong hopes are entertained. It is that of a gardener. He came to the place several years since in time of famine, and receiving permission to remain and a little help, he settled down among our people. At the beginning of the present year, however, he suddenly disappeared. He remained away some months, after which he as suddenly and unexpectedly reappeared in the village. He reported that during his absence he had found no rest of mind and his unrest had driven him back. He begged to be pardoned and restored. Since his return he has been one of the most regular and interested attendants on the services of God's house.

The work among the people of Chopra, a village some six miles from the foot of the hills in the mountains where the preacher in charge has his home during most of the year, and where a small parsonage was erected early in the season—is becoming very interesting and seems full of promise. Some years since the people of this village seemed strongly inclined to embrace Christianity and great hopes were entertained with reference to them. But the conduct of an unworthy professor of Christianity, for the time being at least, served to blast their budding faith and with sorrow the workers were compelled to see them go back to their idols and their sins. Since they have been under more special instruction again, however, a better spirit has arisen among them and some of them at least seem to be true enquirers, and it is earnestly hoped that ere long a good number of them may be received among us as true followers of Christ.

During the late summer and early autumn months there is much fever in the Bhabar and the adjoining hills, and an excellent opportunity is afforded for reaching the people by distributing medicines and visiting the sick. One man, a few miles from the parsonage, was taken very ill and the old mother insisted that the Christian preacher be called. On his arrival the man was found wild with delirium. Remedies were administered and prayer with the family offered for his recovery. He soon began to improve and in due time was quite restored to health. Two days were spent with the family and people of the village and they listened gladly to the Word of life. Before leaving prayer was again offered for the sick one, and the family knelt and joined with the preacher in the petitions presented to God. Thus, while the fruit of our labour is not all our hearts long to see, still the workers are not left without much to encourage them in their efforts.

EASTERN KUMAON CIRCUIT.

REV. R. GRAY, M. D. Missionary.

THE usual obstacles to a life entirely devoted to winning the heathen from their superstitions to a faith in Christ have this year been in full operation as regards the missionary here. Fully one-half his time this year has been given to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in drawing plans for buildings, superintending their erection and studying and planning how to make one rupee do the work of two. A large portion of the other half has been given to other buildings and a small portion of his time has been given to real evangelistic work and efforts for the growth of the Native Christian community. The work which has been done by the Native preachers, at the most important point in this field, has been sadly marred by bickerings and quarrels among themselves and a deplorable ignorance of how to go to work to gain the people to Christ. One preacher was discovered in drinking and wickedness generally and dismissed from the work of a preacher.

The fact that under these circumstances fruit has been gathered, and good fruit at that, shows that the Gospel is just as vital in this nineteenth as it was in the first century. Souls have been brought out of darkness into light. Seven adults have been baptized and they are all good cases and have grown steadily in grace since baptism. These cases open out new circles of work and hope. Here in these Himalayas we have no large castes, closely connected together, and the work must spread through family connections. In all these cases it is as though a stone had been thrown in the water and the circle will certainly spread in the family line.

The growth of the Christian community in grace and knowledge has been very marked and gratifying. The District Conference Meetings, which were held in Almora in October, were means of profit to nearly all our people who attended. The meetings had been looked forward to, money had been saved, and finally going and coming men and women went on foot 110 miles over these high mountains and through low valleys. Of course the meetings did them good. But the most fruitful means for their growth has been the meeting on Sunday evening, which is our general class-meeting. It has been conducted on old principles something in the line John Wesley followed as stated in a number of the New York Christian Advocate. "John Wesley used the Bible in the first class meetings, explaining it to those who knew but little of it. The late Dr. Durbin, when a pastor in Philadelphia, took special pains to have his classes group their experiences around some scriptural truth, very much in Wesley's way." This is just what has been done in Pithoragarh this year, and the benefit has been so marked that we confidently recommend it to every one. It requires a company of very mature Christians to hold a profitable religious conversation among themselves, and even they do not always succeed, judging by the printed reports we sometimes see. The epistles of John, if carefully studied and applied in a class meeting, will surely develop new and fresh Christian life.

The public services have been very well attended and as satisfactory as ever, except the preaching, which might be very much improved. The people do not seem to know the difference however, and still come.

The Sunday-school for men and boys in Pithoragarh has been given to a Native brother to superintend. He is learning how to do the work. One lesson he has learned may be worth telling. He came one day to the Missionary and said, "Sahib, we want some lesson leaves, some cards, some tickets, &c., &c. Will you please make some arrangement for them." The amount of confidence these Native helpers have in the padris is wonderful. They seem to think nothing is too hard for them. All they have to do is to make the arrangements and it will come to pass. He was told very plainly: "You are superintendent, will you please make your own arrangements." He was very much astonished but showed that he had learned his lesson well. If quickly, and no sooner had his paper ready than it was presented to the Missionary for his subscription. He has proved a good beggar and has made his own arrangements. Our native Christians have been nursed so long that few of them have found out what they are able to do. The stewards of our Church seem to think that a pane of glass cannot be put in unless the Missionary is consulted. They are improving however, and they do well so soon as they come out. The Sunday-school has improved under this Native brother, while it had run down under the Missionary.

The general plan of preaching among the villages has been changed. Formerly it was very general; now it has become special. Each Native brother has chosen a village for his special effort and promises to produce converts soon. They also appointed a village for the missionary, who will very gladly give his effort there. We anticipate very great profit from this plan and specially so as the buildings are about completed and the helpers are at peace and unity among themselves.

The day schools have done well, but the problem how to get the

DWARAHAT CIRCUIT.

REV. P. M. BUCK, Missionary.

THE head-quarters of this circuit, Dwarahat proper, is located four marches from the foot of the mountains and is three marches north of Naini Tal. Though entirely rural, still the region is very thickly settled. The Purganna alone which includes Dwarahat is said to contain about 95,000 souls. There are about forty villages within four miles of the Mission-house and with few exceptions, they are easy of access. The most densely populated part of these mountain provinces is conveniently near to the Missionary at this point. On nearly every side within a very few miles, lie beautiful and thickly settled valleys, thus offering a most inviting field for itinerating work. Then these villagers are much more simple-hearted and ready to receive the gospel than are those generally found in the larger towns and cities, and perhaps nine-tenths of the converts of our entire Mission field come from the rural classes.

The Mission-house in Dwarahat was built several years since, entirely from funds raised among Europeans residing permanently, or temporarily in various places in these provinces. No Missionary, however, was regularly appointed to this place until the beginning of the present year.

As regards the work we are as yet at the beginning of things here, and that undertaken has been somewhat hindered by severe and protracted illness in the family of the Missionary, by necessary building-work, and by the demands of this mountain District.

The work being carried on may be indicated as follows :

I. Schools.—For some years past two small primary schools have been kept up a few miles distant from the Mission-house, which were under the charge of the Native brother stationed here until the present year. These have done very well. In July last a larger Government school, of a little higher grade, in our immediate vicinity was made over to us with the building in which it was held. This gives us a stronger hold on the community, affords a better opportunity for Sunday-school work, and though the building is small, still when improved in the way of ventilation and light, it will afford us for the time being a central and convenient place of worship. Then there are indications that this school may soon grow into more importance than has hitherto attached to it, and that enlargement may be required. Several applications have already been made to place boys under our tuition if only a suitable place for them to live and the necessary oversight can be provided. We also hope ere long to be able to give some of our Christian boys, living where school advantages are meagre, a good start here under our training. But these matters could not be arranged the present year. A like demand begins to press upon us for a girls' boarding school and plans are being made to meet this want of our field.

II. Village Preaching.—In the beginning of the year a plan for village visitation and preaching was prepared and a good amount of work in this line has been done by the Missionary and the Native helpers. The people have received us well and given considerable attention to the Word preached. Special attention has been bestowed on a few villages where more hope of speedy success has seemed to exist, and it is believed considerable impression on the people has been made: not only have many people heard the gospel through this system of visitation, but good numbers have accepted the invitation to attend our regular Sunday services.

III. Sunday Services. Our Sunday-school has been considerably advanced in numbers by the school mentioned, which has come under our control, and this part of our work has been fraught with growing interest. Our preaching services have not only been attended by our Native Christians and private and Mission servants, but always some without are present and sometimes fifty or more of our village friends come in and quietly listen to the Gospel. This work has been greatly enjoyed and it is hoped that as the people come to know us better and our accommodations improve a still larger attendance may be secured. Thus far our services have been held in the verandah or a room of the Mission-house.

IV. Miscellaneous.—The work of itinerating has been very limited owing to circumstances already indicated. Prayer and class meetings and daily prayers have been kept up with considerable regularity and manifest profit. A daily Bible class has also been held a good part of the year, which has proved especially beneficial. We have found a deplorable ignorance of the Scriptures to be very prevalent among our Native Christians and feel a very earnest effort ought to be made to overcome this evil.

We can point to no converts from among these villagers as the result of the year's work, but in not a few there is manifestly a favorable change in their views and feelings with regard to Christianity and we look for more tangible results at no distant day. As a new field we look upon this as one of promise. And, while we are waiting for fruit from without, God is leading some of our servants into the light. One was baptized a few weeks since and another and his family will soon follow. Others take an interest in our services and tell us plainly, they are receiving new light. On the whole in reviewing the year we thank God and take courage.

GARHWAL CIRCUIT.

REV. J. T. McMAHON, Missionary.

REV. F. W. GREENWOLD, Native Missionary.

There are connected with this charge five sub-circuits manned by Native helpers. These smaller fields lie from six to over forty miles from the Mission-house at Paori. They have each been visited from two to six times during the year. Work has also been done in some other places to which as yet we have no men to send. The work in most of these fields has moved on encouragingly.

The important Anglo-Vernacular school at Paori was found without a Head-master, the former one having left during the latter part of last year. After considerable delay the services of Mr. McMullens were secured, who has since carried on this work very satisfactorily. Until the arrival of said master the Missionary was compelled to give a considerable part of his time to this school.

Three new primary schools have been opened during the year. We now have 9 boys' schools with 322 pupils under constant religious instruction. There are also 3 girls' schools with 73 pupils.

There have been 13 children and 21 adults baptized during the year. There has been a slight falling off, however, in the number of communicants owing to removal. The Christian community has increased from 234 to 245.

Three new Sunday-schools have been opened, two in connection with the new day-schools, and one in the village of Paori, a short distance from the Mission-house. The last-named was greatly opposed by the people for a time, but it has mostly lived down the opposition. It is hoped much good may be done through its agency. There are now all told in this circuit 8 Sunday-schools with 326 scholars of all ages.

The small Orphanage for boys under Khiyali, our Native preacher located at Dikhwali some sixteen miles from Paori, has held on its way. There are eighteen boys there now--mostly little boys. Thus far no suitable place for this institution has been secured, where land could be opened and cultivated, as well as trades taught and the boys properly trained in such work as is best suited to the capacity of most of them. Those who manifest taste and aptitude in learning are provided for in the Paori school. Several boys have been sent from this institution to our Mission Orphanage at Shahjehanpore to be taught trades; but the Plains seldom suit them and the experiments have thus far proved unsatisfactory. We require all the facilities to fit them for the callings of life here in their native hills. Numbers of the boys have received some instruction in weaving, at considerable expense, but English clothing goods are imported and sold at such low figures that weavers can no longer make a respectable living, and there is little outlook for our boys in this line.

Our Christian community, which is mostly composed of people from the poorer classes, has done very well in a temporal sense this year. Five more families have purchased land and are on the way to independence. Numbers of our people have secured service as domestic servants. Christian servants when properly trained by Missionaries or those who appreciate and sympathize with their interests, do very well as a rule. They generally, however, labour under the disadvantage of being quite new in this line, whereas Hindoo and Mahomedan servants are but following in the footsteps of generations of their forefathers, and are themselves instructed in their callings from their childhood. For this reason they seem to take to such work more naturally and readily than do Christians at first. Some of our people who were not inclined to engage in heavy manual labour, have been induced to do so by instruction and want. Several Christian coolies may now be seen carrying from fifteen to seventy pounds burden on their backs from ten to twenty miles per day, as do hundreds of their fellow mountaineers who are still Hindoos.

One grave weakness very prevalent in this country is a disposition to contract debts with no remarkable prospect of ability to pay them. There has been considerable difficulty in guarding some of our people from this evil. But the strict exercise of stringent rules is producing its fruit and improvement is manifest.

The usual services and means of grace have been regularly observed in connection with our work in Paori, viz. Sunday-school, preaching services, prayer and class-meetings, teachers' meetings, daily prayers, etc. In addition to these services in Hindustani there has been a preaching service and a class-meeting held weekly in English.

Our Annual Camp-meeting, which this year was held in Srinagar beginning on the 24th of November and continuing five days, was a season of much profit to our Native Christians, and large numbers from the town frequented the services and listened with apparent interest. New ideas with reference to our worship and teaching seemed to spread in the place and it is hoped fruit may result from the seed thus sown.

All our work in this field is full of interest and grows with encouraging rapidity.

GARHWAL MEDICAL WORK.

...

Missionary.

DURING little more than three months of the year the Missionary remained in Paori. During this time he treated all the cases of cholera occurring among the Native Christian community there, and through God's kindness, though several were quite ill, all recovered. The Mission dispensary here, under the immediate charge of our trained Native Christian doctor, Edward Thomson, has done well and is appreciated. The Government kindly continues its annual grant of medicines, which is of great assistance.

The Missionary while at Paori, besides supervising the dispensary, has preached weekly in English, held an English class-meeting and assisted Mr. and Mrs. McMahon in their regular Hindustani services. The greater part of the year has been spent in itinerations among the pilgrims and others. A colporter, Bhajni, has accompanied the Missionary, assisting him in distributing tracts and Scriptures and medicines. Many have been spoken to about Christ and his salvation. Labour among the pilgrims must be known as to results only in eternity, for they return to their distant homes in various parts of India, and one never meets them again in this world. The Missionary has been thankful to God for the privilege while among this class, of to some extent feeding the hungry relieving suffering ones and ministering to some dying far from home without a single mortal near disposed to lend a helping hand. The Missionary is under many obligations to the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McMahon and other friends at Paori for kindnesses received during the year.

By the last census this province contains a population of 5,109,569 souls. Our Mission work in the province has been during the past year divided into thirteen separate circuits or appointments, for the work of each of which one man is made responsible. Four of these circuits have been in charge of missionaries, eight in charge of Native Ministers, and one in charge of a Eurasian lay-preacher. These appointments are most of them again divided into sub-circuits over which a Native preacher of less experience is placed, so that there are fifty-eight places occupied as centres in Rohilkhund where Native preachers reside and where work is carried on. There are connected with the work of these circuits and sub-circuits ninety-four regularly appointed Native preachers and male Christian teachers of various grades, from the ordained minister to the primary school teacher, giving their entire time to this work. The wives of the Missionaries, and three single lady missionaries, with eight European or Eurasian assistants, and eighty-six Native Christian female teachers and Bible-readers carry on the work among the women and girls. There are Native Christians living in 312 villages or towns, making a Christian community of about 4,500 souls, 2,630 of whom are communicants. There are 160 day-schools in the District with 4,453 pupils in regular attendance, 1,148 of whom are Christians, and 3,305 non-Christians. Among the schools two are orphanages and one only is a High-school. We also have a Theo-

Our communicants now number 240. This is ten less than last year, the decrease being caused by removals including the graduating class of theological students, and the removal by letter of some, and a few expulsions. Our number is thus smaller than last year, although we have had growth by the addition of 30 adults by baptism. We have 4 more Sunday-schools than last year. Our Sunday-school work is becoming a powerful agency in affecting the non-Christian natives. We are making steady growth in self-support. All give something and more regularly and willingly than formerly. The Native Church during the past year supported two evangelists on a small salary, started a school for the youngest of the Christian children, paid Rs. 30 toward completing the cemetery, besides extending help to the poor and assisting in other matters connected with the Church. We have had but little persecution. We may glance at the different centers connected with this station:—

Bareilly.—Brother Janvier the Native Pastor is improving the Church. The year has been one of trial through the evil conduct of a few members. Satan troubled us greatly. The evil doers were cut off.

During the year a little congregation of Christians was raised up at a village a few miles from the city. A small school was opened among them and they have all proved steadfast. Shortly after these persons were baptized, a Moslem seeing that something new had been organized among them found on inquiry that they had become Christians. As one of the men was passing him, he said, "You people must be looked after soon; the sword must be applied." Still as stated we have had no persecution during the year. In the city a girls' school was broken up by the children being all kept away. Their Christian songs and talk and prayers, it was said, had gone far enough. "Our children," the parents said, "have become Christians." On the other hand very extensively people of the Chamar caste are beginning to think that they must become Christians. We have just established two schools in the city where they understand that with secular training we are to teach our religion to their children.

Philibhet.—In this city a Chamar school was for a time broken up through Mahomedan influence. The Mahomedans are ever jealous and watchful of our influence. Confidence was restored and the school again opened. There were a number baptized in this city during the year. The climate of the place is bad and our helpers and their families always suffer here.

Aonla.—The Native preacher has done well. A dozen adults have been baptized. Two girls' schools recently were opened. The leading man among the Chamars is under instruction and we hope will be baptized. In surrounding villages there are a considerable number of inquirers among the Sweepers.

In general we may remark on the work in these places that steady, persistent effort will bring large fruit in the next ten years. Large numbers of the lower classes manifest an interest in our teaching. Leaders are raised up from their midst who are bringing them to Christ. Col. Acton of Her Majesty's army has undertaken the support of a native itinerant among this class of people. The man was recently a priest among them. Our want is trained men for the work. Preachers and Christian schoolmasters drawn from this people, must be drilled for the work. We here touch on the sphere of the—

Theological Seminary and High School.—During the year one theological student was expelled, one was dropped out from incapacity in study, and one, the brightest mind in the school, was laid aside by sickness. Thus the sifting process goes on. Morals, mind, and health are tested. Twelve students giving good promise are now in the regular classes. A class of twelve is forming for next year. We are seeking to make this school the best of its kind in India. We need not repeat our plans and methods from year to year. Much as to method, and just what theological education should be in this stage of things in India, has yet to be learned. We must learn and toil away.

Those who send students to the school and receive them from it have much to learn. The selecting of the candidates is a point to be guarded. At the school in receiving men we can only apply a mental test, and examinations when passed are not always a reliable test of mind even. The candidate may have been "crammed," and hence fail in the pursuit of study afterward. Such cases we have had. Again, examinations tell nothing of the mental qualities, of patience, perseverance, steadiness of purpose, soundness of judgment, &c. These as well as moral must complete the education. Better results would be obtained, if our Missionaries were thoughtful in this matter. We are not seeking to lower the standard of what we are to do in the school but to exalt the standard of what is to be done before and after the school.

We have received valuable aid in the work of the school from courses of lectures by members of the Conference. Rev. R. Hoskins lectured on Sunday-School work, Rev. H. Mansell on the History of Missions, Rev. E. W. Parker on Practical methods of Mission work, and Dr. Dease of the station in addition to his other medical work and management of schools, gave a number of lectures to the students on Physiology and Hygiene.

We are making some progress in the organization and consolidation of the interests of the school. Arrangements have been completed to register the Board of Trustees and thus make a legal body under the appropriate Indian law. Attempts so far have failed at converting our troublesome bungalow form of endowment into something involving less care and vexation. Nothing so far available yields one-half the same interest. We find no encouragement in trying to transfer our endowment to the United States and seem shut up for the present to the bungalows.

We are putting our garden and grounds into a more attractive condition. We have had but little money for this object. There is teaching and moulding power in an attractive grove with pleasant walks and flowering shrubs. The memory of such a place, often has a hallowed influence for life. From their monasteries and groves the mendicants of Europe went forth to convert and train savage peoples in religion and art.

In the High-school and Normal department we are feeling our way and learning what is needed to be done. Candidates for the High-school have not been numerous. By removals and failures to pass the half year's examination the number on scholarships has been reduced to four.

The normal department seems to meet a more pressing want. Twenty-one students are in attendance in three classes. The lower class are in elementary studies. Our aim is to pass the higher class in the middle vernacular studies in two more years. The material furnished in the year has been very unequal in attainment and it was difficult to classify this department. We had hoped to get students who could pass the middle class in two years, but perhaps must change our plan. The demand for village teachers of a low grade indicates a shorter and lower grade course for some. We have yet to learn just what the requirements and necessity of the work indicate. We are thankful for valuable hints and suggestions from those who send pupils and know the wants of the work. The plan of training Christian teachers for schools among Christians and inquirers is most important. Our students so far have come to us rather to learn the subjects than how to teach them, yet we keep in view the normal school idea. We hope to send them away much better prepared to teach than they could be in the ordinary schools of the country. A vernacular text book on teaching is a want. The one used by the Government in its normal schools is almost worthless.

This High-school and normal department will serve as an important preparatory school for the Theological Seminary. Five students have been recommended from this department for the Seminary next year.

FATEHGUNGE.

REV. ABRAHAM SOLOMON, Native Minister.

THE Lord Jesus has poured out his blessings on all our work this year. In our Church there are now eighty-three persons, twenty-one being members, thirty probationers, and thirty-two baptized children. In worldly things these are all poor, but in spiritual things they are prospering more and more all the time. Twenty-five persons have been converted this year from among the heathen. There are six castes of people represented in our Church, ranging from the highest to the lowest, and all dwell together in Christian love and unity. They live in 14 different villages.

In Fatehgunge there is a school in which Hindu boys are taught God's Word and also worldly knowledge, and every Sunday these boys come to Sunday-school and learn our Hymns, the Lord's Prayer the Ten Commandments and the Bible lessons, and we have a firm hope that they will some time accept Christ. During this year we have collected funds among our brethren and have built a church for the poor Christians of Mirgunge, one of the appointments of this circuit. There is a small school for Christians and inquirers here also, held in the little chapel and several have been baptized here this year. Our persecutors here are becoming tired of trying to hinder us and are giving us rest at present. At Sagra we have built a preacher's house. The work here is in the territory of the Nawab of Rampur and is very encouraging. No one appears to prevent or hinder, but daily the people become more and more friendly, and two persons, Hindus, have received baptism this year. At Seroli also, 12 miles from Fatehgunge, a new work has been com-

FAZI-ULLAH,

.. ..

Local Preacher.

THIS is a village circuit under an ordained Native minister. There is a good school here for boys which is always well attended for a village school. Many boys have been educated and are wiser and better in their work than they could have been without the school. One boy from this school was converted a few years since and is now a preacher of the Gospel. The two girls' schools are kept up and are remarkably good for village schools where usually the girls will not learn to read. The work among these women and girls has many interesting features connected with it. All the work is preparing people for being intelligent Christians in all this vicinity if they will but yield to their best convictions. In all the schools there are Sunday-schools the same as in other stations. The Church here is small and rather dependent. The work has not so spread in the villages that we have families living in their own homes doing their village work independently as in our other circuits, though all earn their living in some way and receive no aid from the Mission. The field is a hard one, but persistency will surely bring success. There are fourteen communicants now in the Church, nine of whom belong to Khera Bajhera, and four adults have been baptized this year.

SHAHJEHANPORE BOYS' ORPHANAGE.

REV. T. S. JOHNSON, Missionary Supdt.

THE number of boys in the Orphanage is about the same as last year, 260. The moral tone perhaps never was better; the result of this is seen both in the school and workshop as well as among others who work in the fields and garden. One of the boys has just been recommended for the Theological School in Bareilly. The Christian mela just closed was a means of great grace to many of the boys. The Government educational officers, both the Director and Inspector, have visited the institution during the year and made very favorable reports, and the Government grant-in aid has been increased from Rs 220 to Rs. 250 per mensem. The Collector of the District and the Civil Surgeon also made an official visit and gave a very full and favorable report on the sanitary and general condition of the institution. An arrangement has been entered into within the year with the Muir Cotton Mills at Cawnpore, which promises to be of great importance to the Orphanage as well as Native Christian community in this part of India. The Directors of the Mills very kindly agree to admit a large number of the boys into the Mills where they may learn the work and take regular employment as soon as they become qualified. This enterprise involves expense in securing houses for the boys in Cawnpore, but it is an expenditure that will pay in more ways than one. About 75 of the boys are to be transferred to Cawnpore in close proximity to the Mills, in which they will work part of each day, and attend school the other part of the day; upon the same principle of school and manual labor so long observed in this Orphanage.

The colony of boys sent from the Orphanage to the Christian village of Panahpore are working well; one of them has had fields set off to him and has commenced work for himself having made arrangements for a helpmeet. Others there will soon be ready to follow his example in both respects. The Panahpore estate which is connected with the Orphanage, has been somewhat improved during the year in the way of sinking a number of wells for irrigation.

The time of the Superintendent of the Orphanage since last Conference has been divided with that of superintending the Oudh District which would have been quite impossible but for the very valuable aid given by the assistant Manager and teachers, who have graduated from the institution and are reliable and trustworthy men.

SHAHJEHANPORE CIRCUIT.

REV. C. L. BARE, Missionary.

THE work of this circuit is carried on in a district in the southern part of Rohilkhund, containing nearly a million souls. This field was one of the earliest taken up by our Mission, and a Missionary or two have business of distracting our work.

The Native preachers have visited Rampur every week during the year, and as the first fruit of this work, five persons were baptized at the Christian mela in October. Three of these were heads of families, one of whom came to us with three others last February and asked to be baptized. We wished, however, to test them more fully and hence put them off for a time. They then asked us to receive their declaration of faith in Christ before the people of their village. This we consented to do, and at the time fixed drove out to their village. We found the villagers all gathered together, and it was evident that there "was no small stir about that way," among them. They were talked to and the way plainly set before them, and then the inquirers came forward and declared their faith in Christ, that they had abandoned Hinduism and accepted Christianity. The villagers were then exhorted not to persecute these new Christians. They immediately replied that the Christians could not draw water out of the well from which they were accustomed to draw. A few days afterwards when the Christians went to the well for water they found it surrounded by the villagers armed with clubs, determined to beat the Christians if they came near. As an important principle was involved a complaint was brought against the villagers in court. The position taken by the villagers was that the well was a private one, surrounded by a wall enclosing private property and not open to the public at all, and hence the Christians were guilty of trespass. So conflicting were the testimonies that the Magistrate rode out to the village to satisfy himself by personal inspection. He found the people very busily engaged in building a wall around the well in order that the false witness in court might in the end be supported by the fact. He also learned from those who were using the well that it was a public well, and hence rendered a decision in favour of the Christians.

There are twenty-six day-schools connected with this circuit: eighteen for girls and eight for boys. These are attended by 303 girls and 627 boys, 930 in all, and taught by 46 teachers, of whom eleven are Christians and thirty-five are Hindoos or Mohamedans. The Bible is regularly taught in all, beside the instruction they receive in Sunday-school. We also have twenty-six Sunday-schools, taught by Christian teachers. The number on the roll is 1,225. The average attendance has just doubled during the past two years and may double again in the next two, if we can have the teachers and aid required. Regular attendance is encouraged by giving out scripture tickets and in exchange for twelve tickets a large Bible picture with Hindee and Urdu descriptions is given. Prizes are also given to those boys who recite all the Golden Texts, Selected Verses, &c. One little boy of the Chamar school was taken sick and on Saturday evening he told his mother that he would be better to-morrow and would bathe and dress and go to Sunday-school and stay after the school to the preaching, and thus worship the true God. On Sunday morning the spirit of the little fellow passed away and his teacher says he died a Christian.

The work and meetings of the Church are nearly the same as that of the other stations, except that we have a little chapel in the city also where many Hindus and Mohamedans gather to hear preaching and singing. The Native Church has done very well in contributions towards the support of their pastor this year. In our chapel near the railway we have regular English services, and this congregation aids much in supporting our Sunday-school work and in paying several current expenses.

The persecution and hatred of the caste brotherhood of those who become Christians is very forcibly illustrated in the cruel murder of Hanuman Singh. He was a Thakur by caste and a zamindar in the village of Nagla and owned a half-interest in four villages; one of his caste brothers owning the other half. His family consisted of himself, wife and six children, two of whom were grown. Some years ago he heard our preachers preach in the bazar and bought a Hindi book of them, called the Dharm Tula. He took the book and read it and became anxious to learn more as the book referred to things and truths he knew nothing of. Hence he returned to the city to find some one to explain these mysteries to him. He was directed to the chaplain, and the chaplain not being acquainted with Hindi, sent him to the Missionary, Rev. F. M. Wheeler. Mr. Wheeler saw that he was a sincere and intelligent enquirer after the truth, and taught him as well as he could in the time and sold him a Hindi New Testament which he commenced at once to read carefully, at every opportunity seeking aid from Mr. Wheeler and others in understanding it. In October, 1879, Hanuman Singh and his eldest son Mohan, were baptized, and in March 1880, Tula his eldest daughter. From the first, Hanuman Singh had been an interesting character to our Mission.

not necessary he replied, "You know that the New Testament says, When thou prayest enter into thy closet and when thou hast shut thy door," &c. His faith was yet untrammelled by modern ways of thinking and was no doubt the nearest approach possible to that of the primitive Christians.

He was very meek and humble in his devotions to God. We never saw him in prayer but we were impressed with this. He would throw himself upon the floor or ground, as a child, and conceal his face in his hands. His conduct always in worship was that of one who was deeply and profoundly impressed with the goodness and majesty and glory of God.

Now this man whose character and life we have briefly noticed, who was so sincere and honest in his inquiries after truth, so tender-hearted and kind, so simple in faith, so meek and humble before God. this man from October 20th, 1879 when he was baptized until May 5th, 1881 when he was murdered, was an object of the most cruel and bitter hatred among the Hindoos of his caste. He was riding home one night from Jalálábád when he was waylaid by enemies who attempted to kill him and was saved only by leaping from his pony that received a blow which was intended for him, and fleeing into the jungle.

On the morning of the 5th of May, 1881, he took his gun as was his custom and sauntered out into the fields. In his rambles he came to a tank of water where his partner in the estate was irrigating his fields. There were a number of men assisting him. It seems that his partner had no right either from possession or permission to use water out of the tank. And so Hanuman expostulated with him. During the conversation they had all come to sit down by a bridge near the tank. Hanuman had placed his gun against the bridge at a short distance from him and was engaged still in conversation when four men rose up and beat him to death with lathees or clubs. It was the end of a long and bitter hatred of him as a Christian, as will be seen from what follows. As the murderers were fleeing away towards Jalálábád from the bloody deed they had done, some men met them and inquired about the excitement, when they cried out that they had killed an Isáí (Christian) and now they would kill the munshee (our Local Preacher) and all the other Christians in Nagla and then the village would be pure and clean.

The parties to this terrible deed were arrested, witnesses were summoned and a long, tedious trial ensued. Multán and his party tried to prove that they killed him in self-defense and their testimony had weight with the judge. Two of the supposed murderers were exculpated and two were sentenced to five years imprisonment.

The feeling was general that all four were guilty of cold-blooded murder and should receive severe and summary punishment. So a thrill of astonishment and disappointment ran through the community at the news of the decision. The Magistrate sympathized with this feeling and appealed at once to the High Court where the case is now awaiting decision.

In the meantime further developments have shown the wickedness of the supposed murderers. The two released had no sooner returned to their village than they began to make threats upon the lives of other Christians. This news reached the ears of the Magistrate who ordered their arrest. In their failure to furnish bail he sent them to prison for one year. While there they incited some fellow prisoners to attack the darogah of the jail. This also came to the knowledge of the Magistrate when he ordered a most severe flogging for them and added three years to their imprisonment.

The body of Hanuman Singh was given over into the hands of friends at noon on the 6th of May, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon received a Christian burial in the little cemetery adjoining the Orphanage.

At 5 o'clock a large audience of Christian people gathered in the Chapel and suitable memorial services were held. Many spoke sadly of the terrible deed, of the noble Christian character of the deceased, and of the great loss the Native Christian Church was now called upon to sustain. We all felt and still feel that God is bringing this wickedness to naught and causing even His enemies to praise Him.

The sympathy of the missionaries in a time of intense sorrow and their prompt and decisive action in the whole affair have made a lasting impression for good upon the mind of Mohan Singh who now comes in as manager of his father's estate.

There was no more earnest and intelligent seeker after a change of heart and life at the last Christian mela than Mohan. And there is evidence that what he sought for he obtained, and returned to Nagla a different man. Let us pray that God may overrule all this for good, and that the blood of this the first martyr of our North India Mission may become the seed of the Native Christian Church.

appointed to work as Bible teachers. One goes among outsiders and one teaches the ignorant Christian women. There is a school for boys and one for girls in the village attended mostly by Christian children. Thus all kinds of work are carried on in our village and efforts are made to train up a Church with intelligent faith and pure morals."

BUDAON.

REV. R. HOSKINS, Missionary.

THIS year the work in Budaon was divided into three circuits, and two native ordained brothers were put in full charge of their separate portions of the field. This arrangement has worked exceedingly well, for, although these brethren have been living in the same places before this arrangement, they did not feel so free to develop their own plans, and they could not take the same interest in the work for which another person was responsible. These brethren have taken a large portion of my old field and several hundreds of Christians are committed to their care.

Early in the year Bro. Kullu Dhar was released from the charge of a local work and appointed evangelist for the whole country of Budaon. He has thoroughly canvassed the field and has found several hundred people prepared for instruction and for the reception of Christ. We hope to have the necessary funds provided at our next Annual Conference to station low salaried teachers in ten or twelve of the larger towns. This year the work has taken a fresh start; the candidates for baptism are so many that we delay this ordinance so that we may first properly indoctrinate them. We have steadily followed up the openings among the Chamars. At first they feared to study lest they be outcasted, but by employing young men from among them, as teachers on an average pay of Rs. 3 per month, and by requiring these teachers with the more promising of their scholars, to attend the school in the Mission compound for three hours daily, we have secured constant progress in study for both teachers and pupils. In connection with these Chamar schools we have a Sunday-school attendance of three hundred including men, women and children. The desire for education is rapidly increasing among this class but when educated they will get no sympathy from Hindus and Mahomedans, education will not give them position in the social scale but Christianity will be a haven of rest to them and when educated they will necessarily be drawn towards us. There has been a very large increase to our Sunday-school work; obstacles which for years seemed unsurmountable have vanished and the outlook for the next year is still more encouraging. We have begun to have regular Sunday-school work on the other days of the week, and if this plan works satisfactorily the men who give their whole time to this work, will be able to instruct from one to two hundred pupils daily. The plan of employing Hindu and Mahomedan boys to act as collectors has worked satisfactorily. We pay these boy collectors at the rate of one rupee per hundred for the average attendance of the month and to each pupil is given a Scripture Verse Ticket. At the end of the second or third month these tickets are exchanged for some form of reward costing one pice for twelve tickets.

With the present resources we cannot much extend this interesting work, though we would delight to have in the Budaon Schools ten thousand children studying the way of life.

The Sigler Girls' Boarding School Building is a model: including dormitories and residence for head-masters and matron, it has cost about Rs. 8,000. The money for this school was given by Mr. Sigler of Osceola, Iowa. There are fifty-seven girls now attending the school and it is doing a very important work for our Hindustani Church.

Our preaching hall and school in the City is well on towards completion: the audience-room will seat six hundred persons and we have also arranged a reading-room over some shops connected with this assembly-room. The shops were built by money collected for the education of Christian boys and they yield twenty rupees monthly. The Clock and Bell Tower will be completed as soon as our means will warrant the expenditure. We hope that before long the clock and bell will indicate the fleeting hours to every man in the city.

We have had an average of twenty-five Christian boys in our Central School of whom fifteen have been supported by scholarships. The boys have done very well and most of them have been soundly converted to God.

At first it seemed a heavy task to start a Sunday-school in Kakralah, because the population is largely Mahomedan and many of them persuaded the boys not to attend, but gradually the number began to increase until the number ran up to one hundred and fifty pupils, so that we have had to conduct the school in two places in order to accommodate all. Our Sunday-schoolscholars are making progress in the study of the lessons; some of the boys have learnt by heart the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer and several stories of the Bible. The Christians are generally poor and not able to give their children a proper education and the non-Christian element is unwilling to allow the Christians the advantages that they enjoy, so that we find it essential for satisfactory progress in this work that we make special provision for the education of the Christian youth. There are several places where low-salaried teachers should be immediately employed; many are candidates for baptism but they should be well instructed in the principles of Christianity.

The Gospel has been faithfully preached in the markets and village rest-houses and the people have given excellent attention.

Rev. ANTONE DATT, Native Minister.

THIS is a new circuit set apart this year and placed under the charge of a Native preacher. It contains many villages large and small and is a very promising field. It was formerly a part of the Budaon circuit and this Native brother now in charge has been in this field for a long time.

He writes: "In this circuit there are sixteen villages in which Christians reside. These villages are scattered over a large area and there are in all 240 Christians in this circuit. There are but two laborers, so that the people are not as well taught as they should be. I have visited all the places of the circuit four times this year, and I have tried faithfully to teach all the Christians under special charge. Twenty persons have received baptism. There are two Sunday-schools at Bilsa where I live and one at Bisauli where the other preacher lives. One of the schools here is made up entirely of outsiders. The three schools number about three hundred. There are many inquirers in this field, but so many difficulties arise when they come near to the point of confessing Christ openly that they hesitate and often turn back disheartened. The caste tie is very strong and to break it is to accept social death and separation from all former associations. Still our field is ripening for the harvest. The Christians are growing in spirituality year by year."

CHANDAUSI.

Geo. BAILEY, Local Preacher.

THIS city is an important business centre and hence a place of considerable wealth and intelligence. The Mission work here is under the charge of Mr. George Bailey, a Eurasian Local preacher.

There is a small Church here made up mostly of persons in the railway employ. The pastor often finds the influence of the railway surroundings detrimental to training up a Church with pure morals. The people cannot attend service regularly, nor have the advantage of those regular means of grace so necessary to growth in religious knowledge and experience. There is, however, this encouragement that improvement is manifest in the Church.

There is a good boys' Anglo-Vernacular school in the city which is doing good work, and the Sunday-school in connection with this is a model school. All the boys learn gladly and are wide-awake while the general exercises are carried on. There are two schools also among the Chamars in which Sunday-schools are held. These schools promise fruit and there are calls for more in villages around. In the Sunday-schools in connection with this work many men also attend and listen with interest, and inquire and express their opinions concerning the subjects discussed. There are two girls' schools, one for Mahomedan girls and one new one for Hindus. In the older school there is a Sunday-school for girls and two girls' Sunday-schools among the Chamars where there is no day-school. The entire attendance in the Sunday-schools is about three hundred of whom forty are Christians. Much preaching has been done this year at evening through the aid of a magic lantern. Multitudes come together and listen for a long time very quietly and the testimony is often heard that the Christians' religion and their instruction is made the pastorate, yet all our class-meetings have been kept up with more or less regularity. Our monthly love feasts have not been so well attended nor so interesting as they were last year. The Leaders' and Stewards' meetings, on the other hand have been more regular and more interesting. They do much good in making the Native brethren feel that the responsibility of planting, sustaining, and training the Christian church in India is with them. Brother Pran one of our evangelists was appointed pastor and the brethren have supported him entirely by their contributions.

The Church grows constantly in intelligence, and some have grown very perceptibly in grace. Our Christian mela at Shahjahanpore from which we have just returned has deepened the piety of all who attended it and it gives us hope that purer lives and more efficient work will be the results.

II. Mohalla Work has been kept up weekly in six or eight places in the city and many are reported as almost ready to be baptized. I still look upon this as the most effectual and hopeful of all evangelistic work, and expect to see much fruit from it even before this year closes. There have been baptisms in three of the mohallas, but in only one was the opposition serious. This was the case of a very young woman, wishing to be baptized whose husband had been baptized a few days previous; she also was ready but her friends were very angry and determined she should not become a Christian. So they had persuaded her to refuse. We retired and waited and prayed, and a day or two after she was baptized in our chapel amid great rejoicing. At one time her friends seemed ready to shed blood to prevent her baptism. Often we have heartrending scenes as we witness the fulfillment of the Saviour's words, "A man's foes shall be they of his own household." Yet it is sweet to fight and toil on knowing the victory will come.

III. The City Sunday-school, has averaged a little higher than last year and the Girls' Sunday-schools have increased. We have also started some new ones in villages, but the cutting off of Chandansi somewhat reduces our number. We report 1,150 of all ages in our 35 Sunday-schools. This Sunday-school work is glorious and there is absolutely no limit to its expansion except the want of workers to carry it on. We pray the Lord of the Harvest to send more laborers.

IV. The Sabbath Services in the city are not so well attended by Hindus and Mohamedans as they were last year. I am searching for the cause. The Christians come regularly and it is a great encouragement to see them so attentive and orderly. Yet we want more of the heathen to hear and to see Christian worship. In the villages the Sabbath is better observed and Sabbath services in four or five places are kept up regularly and profitably. Our average in all the congregation is about 450.

V. Day-Schools. Our grant-in-aid from Government has been cut down a little, but subscriptions, with constant begging have increased a little. We have secured a competent head-master on Rs. 50 per mensem and increased the expenses of the central school, and hope this year to pass three or four boys through the departmental examination. We must by all means keep this central school up to its present grade so as to give our Christian boys a fair chance. There are about 40 Christian boys in the school now, and our efforts are to make all our village schools evangelizing agencies by establishing none but among enquirers. We have 26 day-schools with 771 scholars, boys and girls.

The work has also its discouraging features. The case of the defection of a Christian teacher was a sad one. His disgraceful intimacy with the wife of the other teacher who had just been sent to instruct the new converts was by all means the most discouraging event that has happened to me in many years. Again, old caste feelings that ought to have been dead years ago have cropped up this year in the Church here, culminating in the beating of two persons and the division of the Church into two hostile factions. However, the devil seems to have defeated himself for the healing of this breach he made seems to have drawn the Church nearer together than it was before.

I have also seen a disposition in one or two of our helpers to give me good reports of their work and of their classes when they have neglected them. Yet none of these things move us. We only wish to be more zealous and efficient in saving the heathen and training up our young Church.

SAMBHAL.

REV. ZAHUR UL HAQQ, Native Minister.

THIS is a large circuit in which there are many Native Christians. Brother Zahur ul Haqq has been a leader in this work from its beginning and now that several smaller circuits have grown up within the older circuit, it is proposed ere long to make a district of this field, making the smaller this place we have had work a long time and many inquirers have always been present to learn, but as soon as any one would break away from caste to come out boldly on the Lord's side, persecution would give the convert no rest until he was driven from the place or drawn back again into caste. Here when a young woman was determined to be a Christian a snare was laid to forcibly marry her to the most deadly enemy of Christianity who would keep her beyond the reach of Christians. She was saved by being taken to another city by her brother. During the past year some stronger men have come out boldly for Christ and the persecution is somewhat subsiding.

In Rasulpur there are about fifty Christians, and the preacher there teaches the children of the Christians daily. At Gangesri twenty-five miles from Sambhal, the preacher is also doing well. Several persons have been baptized and the children are being well taught. There are many inquirers in this circuit. Hassanpur is a small city about twenty-four miles from Sambhal where we have a good school. The preacher there has some fifteen Christian boys from villages boarding with him to attend the school. They are doing remarkably well. There is also a girls' school here among friends of our work. In the Chamar part of the town also work has commenced and a school has been opened, taught by an inquirer for inquirers' children. This is the most promising work among the non-Christians.

At Pithkhera, Sharikpur and Babukhera the work is very much like that of Rasulpur. There is a preacher at each place and Christians are living in from ten to twenty villages around this central village making an important circuit. In connection with one of these there has been a number of baptisms this year. Thirty-two adults have been baptized this year in this Sambhal circuit mostly from among the lower classes."

AMROHA.

PETER MERRILL, Local Preacher.

THIS circuit is made up of many villages in which a few Christians live, making 314 communicants in all on the circuit. The work in these villages is like that of Rasúlpur, noticed in the Sambhal report. The preachers teach the Christians in the villages around them and teach some of the children. The most encouraging feature of this work perhaps is the desire to know more of the spiritual life of the true Christian manifested among many of the people. At a camp-meeting held in the early part of the year, this desire was expressed by many. Work has been commenced among the Chamars of Amroha during this year which gives encouragement. There are small Sunday-schools for the Christian communities at different places but there is less work among outsiders here than in most of the other places.

BIJNOUR.

REV. H. A. CUTTING, Native Minister.

THIS is a large zilla, containing over 700,000 people. A Missionary has always been in charge of this large circuit, but when Mr. Mc Henry was taken sick and sent to America we were obliged to place this important charge under a Native minister. About twenty years ago a boy came to the Missionary at Bijnour to be taught. He was received and supported by the Missionary, was baptized on profession of faith, at a proper age was received into this Church and leaving school was employed for several years as a teacher until God called him to preach. After proper trial he was received into the Annual Conference, and now after twenty years he goes back to Bijnour to take charge of one of the most important stations yet given to a Native preacher. The work has been well done all the year.

The Native minister writes: "During this year much of my time has been taken up with work among the Christians in various places. There are three stations, one thirty miles away, and the others eight and ten miles away, in which there are many Christians who require much teaching and training, and the preachers in these places have been very busy in this work. Still, our men have not been negligent of the heathen around, but have faithfully preached the good news to all. Daily the local preachers and exhorters either go to some place where they can collect a congregation for preaching or go to some village or to some mohulla in the city where they can converse with the people concerning religion. All of the out-stations have been carefully superintended and in no place is there anything that should discourage us. The

J. H. GILL, A. D. McHENRY.

THESE TABLES SEEM TO INDICATE THAT MORE SUCCESS IS NOW BEING GIVEN to purely vernacular education, and that where our poorly equipped English schools come in competition with those of Government, the strong teaching force and ample appointments of the latter are beginning to tell against us.

These two conclusions are further sustained by the fact that, while in the vernacular schools the average attendance has increased from 4,131 in 1880, to 4,637 in 1881, during the same period that in the Anglo-vernacular schools has fallen from 2,641 to 2,590. We cannot regret this change when we learn that the number of Christian children under instruction has risen from 1,649 to 1,752.

Your Committee have found time to examine, and to attend the closing exercises of several of the more important Christian schools.

In Cawnpore, the Girls' School has closed a year of unqualified success. The only pupil who went in for the Entrance Examination, a Native Christian, passed in the second division.

The Memorial Boys' School has been well attended, and under its present management, has held its own. One boy went up for the Entrance and passed. The school, however, is still suffering from lack of good teachers for the lower classes. No boarding school can flourish long where the under-teachers are changed frequently. We earnestly recommend that an efficient staff of teachers be secured, and their places made as permanent as may be possible.

At the Shahjehanpore Orphanage, the examiners found a decided improvement over last year in almost every respect; but especially in the studies of the lower classes. A project to take eighty or ninety boys from the Orphanage to work in the Cotton Mills at Cawnpore has been submitted to Government and sanctioned.

In the Girls' Orphanage in Bareilly the examiners found the educational department in a satisfactory state, with the exception of the English in the Third, and the Arithmetic in the Second Class. It is a very grave question whether the teaching of English to any but the most promising girls should be allowed.

No class graduated from the Theological school this year. The regular written examinations had been completed in the middle and junior classes before the Committee of the Board of Education visited the school. We had the opportunity of looking over their papers, as well as of orally examining the young men in theology proper. The range of subjects covered by the written examinations was surprisingly broad. The papers set would not be considered easy by students in the best theological schools of our Church at home. In the oral examination, the young men manifested a grasp upon the subject which was simply remarkable. It is to be hoped that a special effort will be made by every Missionary to provide a constant supply of candidates for the school.

The Normal Department has been in a somewhat immature state, but has nevertheless done good work. Owing to the very different degrees of preparation among the pupils, a strict classification has not been possible. Large liberty has been left to the Principal in the acceptance of students, the employment of teachers, and the arrangement of a course of study. While this liberty has been wisely used, it does not seem to be right to thrust so great responsibility upon a single man. Hence, we suggest to the Board of Trustees of the school the propriety of regulating as soon as possible the following matters: (1) to define the objects of the Normal Department: (2) in consultation with the Conference Board of Education to decide a course of study: (3) to limit the maximum annual cost of the department: (4) to fix the requirements for admission, including a written promise from each student to spend at least three years in connection with our work after leaving the school, or in lieu thereof to refund the amount received by him as a scholarship: (5) to apply for grant-in-aid.

In making arrangements for the Normal School it should not be forgotten that its chief aim is to furnish teachers for low grade schools of Native Christians and enquirers.

The Committee spent two days in examining the Centennial School in Lucknow. The Principal has given the chief facts of interest connected with the year's work in his printed report. This school demands special attention because of the large Christian element now in it, and because it is intended to give higher education to the sons of Native ministers.

The quarters occupied by the school are much too small for comfort, and the need of a larger building is imperative. Hence, we are glad to hear that a plan and specifications for a new school-house have been submitted to Government, and that the authorities have given them a practical sanction by appropriating Rs. 5,000, toward its erection. We

Hence, we believe that it would be wise to provide for a Director of Instruction for the entire Mission, into whose hands the entire school work should be placed.

2. Until this suggestion can be acted upon, we earnestly advise that the Presiding Elders spend at least one day in each quarter in inspecting and examining the schools in the station where they may be holding Quarterly Meetings.

3. We would repeat and emphasize the Conference rule that, only text-books which have been adopted by the Conference shall be introduced into, or read in our schools. Many irregularities in this respect have arisen. We call the attention of all interested that in English the C. V. F. Society's series, and no other are Conference text-books.

4. Since the adoption of the course of study for our schools, great improvements have been made in text-books; and experience has demonstrated the advisability of new methods. Hence, we recommend the appointment of a special committee with instructions to devise and report at the next Session of Conference a course of study, including text-books, which shall include all our schools not under the control of special Boards of Trustees.

5. The attention of all who are in charge of our schools to the sixth Rule adopted by the Finance Committee in 1881, namely, "That in future all estimates for schools shall be presented to the Finance Committee accompanied with a statement, showing the number of schools, number of scholars in attendance in each, the grade of the school and current monthly expenses." We hope that this rule will be strictly enforced: and that all irregularity in establishing schools, paying teachers or using unauthorized text-books, will be summarily rebuked by refusing to allow the estimate where such irregularity exists.

6. We suggest that the course of study in the Lucknow Girls' school and the Girls' Orphanage at Bareilly, be made to conform to the Government Standard for the Third Class.

II.—PUBLICATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF RELIGIOUS LITERATURE.

I.—On the subject of Publication—In the matter of publishing Christian literature much more has been done than may be imagined by one who has not procured and examined the lists and catalogues of the various Presses and Societies. An examination of the list of our own Press will recall the very considerable list of good things issued up to this time. Yet much remains to be done at which we may hint briefly. We have in mind chiefly vernacular literature, but may mention that in our opinion appropriate and well put tracts for English-speaking non-Christian Natives would be timely. Something is available in this line from what has been done for English-speaking Natives in South India. We may state too that some of the "A. I. O. E." tracts in English are good as well as very cheap. In vernacular we may specify Commentaries on the Old Testament as a special need. Whole sections of this Testament have never been touched; for example, most of the Historical books, Job, Ecclesiastes; and the Prophets, as Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Daniel—and many of the Minor prophets some of which have been well done. The interesting and very important book of Daniel should be taken in hand by some competent person. Simple commentaries adapted to the less educated class of Sunday-school teachers and scholars also might be made very useful. This brings up the just now very important subject of Sunday-school literature. God is giving us the children. We must feed the lambs of Jesus.

Much is to be done for the Sunday-school in the way of books, maps, cards, pictures and what not. Here is a noble field for the sanctified and consecrated intelligence and ingenuity of every one. We say amen, to the present plans of our Conference Sunday-school Union and the work they have given out. May this be a new departure for the Union in projecting and procuring something for the Sunday-school. We urge our Publishing Committee to set their wits also fully at work in this line. Your Committee have discussed the importance of Pictorial literature. A picture is a power and often tells more than the book. Children like pictures, old age likes pictures. Put them into the books wherever you can. Your Committee discussed the fact that tracts and books should not be written at random but by studying the wants of the time and people. For example, something for the time suitable for English-speaking Moslems would be in place. We have discussed the question of tracts in the vernacular for certain trades and classes and castes. This is nothing new, but is the method of tract writers at home,

2. Distribute ! distribute ! distribute !

We have but little new to offer beyond the old incentive of exhortation.

(a) You know the provisions of our Book of Discipline. Work them faithfully and conscientiously. The old-fashioned Methodist Preachers were grand book-distributors. Wesley made them so. Their saddle-bags and overcoat pockets burst out with the books as presses with new wine. They carried and propelled their books everywhere.

The provision for this is still in the Discipline. Let us repeat this phenomenon of a book-hawking and book-scattering ministry in the Methodism of India. There is power in it.

Section 314 of the Discipline makes it the duty of the Presiding Elder to bring the matter of tract circulation before the Quarterly Conference, which "shall appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to devise and execute plans for local tract distribution." In Section 178 it is made one of the duties of the preacher in charge to "raise a subscription as he may judge expedient, the proceeds of which shall be at his disposal for the purchase and distribution of tracts." It is also his duty "to take care that every Society be duly supplied with books and Methodist literature." One of the exhortations on "how we can employ our time profitably" is "be diligent to spread the books." Your Committee submit that if the provisions of our Discipline be faithfully carried out the books will not lie slumbering in the grave of the Mission bungalow or helpers' house. Let the Missionary distribute much with his own hand. Have two lists, one for sale and one for gift. Rarely let a visitor leave without carrying away something. Dot the track of your itinerations with books and tracts.

(b.) Work the colportage system. There is a constant temptation to neglect this. It means annoyance and vexation on account of superficial agents. What form of missionary labor does not? This one yields good results, and should be carefully worked. Finally brethren write, print, beg, supervise, push; and the Master of him who while not unmindful of "the cloak" was more thoughtful for the "books, and especially the parchments," will reward you a hundred fold.

III.—REPORT OF PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

At the request of your Committee, the Superintendent of the Press has prepared a report not only of the past year, but of the years in which he has managed the publishing interests of our Church in India. We hope the Conference will hear and publish said report. You have also ordered a committee to report on the production and spread of Christian literature, &c. These have superseded the necessity of a long report from us. We need report only upon the work we have done the past year.

I. The work of examining and voting upon MSS. has been light this year as but few have been submitted.

Of these, one by the Rev. G. H. McGrew has given us much satisfaction. We hope that by it our Church will soon be in possession of a body of Divinity, concise enough to come within the reach of all our Native preachers, exhorters and helpers, and sufficiently elaborate to bring in the latest phases of orthodox theology as well as to answer the main objections of Hindus, Mahomedans, Brahmos, &c., &c.

Mrs. Mansell, M. D. handed in a nice translation of "Sister Dora" which we think very suitable for workers in Zenanas as well as for general reading.

It is hoped that more, and various MSS. will keep flooding the committee. There is great need of books in every department of literature and science and especially for Sunday-school literature.

The Kaukab-i-Hind has much improved and the other periodicals are very satisfactory.

The accounts of the Press were examined and approved. There is a credit balance of Rs. 3,950-4-5, of which Rs. 2,500 of profit from Dictionaries have been added to the Press endowment and invested in the purchase of a bungalow. Rs. 1,450-4-5 remain to credit.

II. The letter of G. E. Knox, Esq. C. S., Honorary Secretary of the N. I. Bible Society, concerning the appointment of a missionary of our number to labor on the Hindi New Testament Revision Committee has been considered: your Committee consider it very important and necessary that a member of our body should be appointed to labor with that Committee, and we beg leave to nominate for this work Rev. R. Gray, and as alternate, Rev. S. Knowles.

ing with great energy:—1. A wonderful Sunday-school enthusiasm has grown up among us. During the last decade the Sunday-schools have increased at the rate of over a thousand a year, and that man among us, whether he be Native or foreign who shows no interest in this work and can count no Sunday-schools in his field must hang his head in shame. 2. New methods of evangelistic work are being sought out. Building city churches and halls such as now exist at Moradabad, Bareilly and Sitapur seems to be popular because successful. The magic lantern, that means of reaching the heart through the eye, is used in many of our fields to draw the people and instruct the Church. Pictures and attractive books, more than ever before, are being brought into use. We see greater zeal and ingenuity on the part of all to get out of ruts and try new methods of work. 3. There is a growing feeling that we must devote more time to the Native Church. There is a general feeling that the time has come when the Native Church should begin to take responsibility upon herself. It is with joy that we hail new Native members of Conference. A real Presiding Elder's district with a real Presiding Elder over it is something unique, but it is as desirable as unique and will be, under the blessing of God, as successful as desirable.

Your Committee have some recommendations to make for the good of the Church: 1. That more care be taken of the membership of our churches. Our people are lamentably ignorant of the Scriptures and some do not know the Bible so well as the heathen in our Sunday-schools. We must teach our Native Christians. We should keep our Native Christians with us and we denounce the custom of allowing them to go wandering about from place to place in search of work. Such persons who have no letter from their preachers in charge should be returned at once to the place from whence they started. Great attention should be paid to the Church Registers. The Presiding Elder should inspect them as he does the quarterly accounts.

2. That we give more attention to self-support. The Native Church can never become a strong aggressive Church until it is self-supporting. We recommend that the report on the subject by the committee of this Conference be translated into the Vernacular and read in all our churches on the first Sunday in July, and that a collection be then taken up for the support of the Gospel. And we recommend that the prize essay on the same subject when it appears from our Press be circulated among all our reading members. 3. That we seek to improve our Sunday-schools. The Lord has given us the children and there is no end to this grand work so far as numbers are concerned. But in many of the schools there is no order and the teaching is superficial. There is a great lack of teachers and those we have need training. We recommend the organizing of teachers' meetings wherever practicable, and in any case that it be urged upon all teachers to prepare upon the lesson before attempting to teach it. 4. That greater regard be paid to the Lord's Day. Some of our missionary brethren are not so careful with regard to this as they might be. Some of our Native Christians, either through necessity, ignorance, or negligence, do secular work on Sunday. We recommend that all our Native Christians be taught that "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy" is one of the Ten Commandments, and that wherever possible all our people refrain from secular work upon the Lord's Day. Colporteurs should not be allowed to carry on their trade upon that day. Missionaries should not sell books and tracts at melás or in bázars on that day. In this land of Sabbath desecration we should be doubly careful that the Church do not fall into error.

Your Committee have been considering several important questions which concern our Native Church and the success of our work. 1. How can we get secular employment for our Native Christians? This is a most difficult problem. Our people are poor; Hindus and Mahomedans will not employ them. They are not fitted for Government employment, and we have no work for them. Your Committee have heard with great satisfaction of the effort to place boys from our Orphanages in the Cawnpore Mills to learn weaver's work, and we urge that this effort have the hearty sanction of the Conference. Should we not have a large workshop managed by a layman? Let us make the Christian village more and more a subject of thought and prayer.

2. How can we secure teachers for our schools? Our Sunday-schools should be taught by Christian men. All our head-masters should be Christians. There is a growing demand for good Christian teachers but the supply is very small. Nearly all our educated men are in the ministry. Should we not send our best boys to the Normal School to be trained as teachers, or teach them carefully ourselves that this great need may be supplied? 3. Why are there so few Mahomedan converts? In 1880 there were but 9 converts from Islamism and during the last year but 2. Can they not be reached by the Gospel? Do we not

A Temperance Report for the people of the North India Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church may seem unnecessary, since the Disciplinary rule is to avoid drunkenness, buying or selling spirituous liquors, or drinking them.

The sobriety of the Native and European members of the Methodist Churches is a cause for devout thankfulness to your Committee.

But the drinking habits of nominal Christians, of the heathen, and of the Mahomedans (in some cases) call for your earnest attention.

So the almost universal use of tobacco among our members including frequently women and young girls, demands your attention.

That the members of Conference and others who do not understand English may have the benefit of our sentiments regarding strong drink and tobacco your Committee beg leave to submit a part of their report in Roman-Urdu.

The Out-Still or Abkari System.—The increase of intemperance among the natives of this country is becoming painful and alarming: and this increase to a great extent is owing to the policy of Government in increasing "Out-stills" throughout the Empire.

By the multiplication of these cheap distilleries the price of intoxicating liquor has decreased so as to make it possible for the common laboring natives to drink to excess, and hence, the total abstinence habits for which this people were once distinguished are fast changing to the blighting and degrading custom of drunkenness: and we regret to say that Native Christians are the first to adopt this ruinous habit of their European brethren and rulers.

It seems to be the desire and intention of some Government officials to extend this Out-Still System into all the Provinces and Presidencies of the country. An effort is now being made to introduce it in the Panjab. It is a very simple and certain plan of manufacturing drunkards and it is urged upon the people because to some it appears to pay. It is another Government "Monopoly."

The privilege of manufacturing cheap, and yet very intoxicating and poisonous liquors is sold for the consideration of revenue. Conspicuous sites for these shops of death and ruin are sold to the highest bidders, and earnest effort is made by Government servants to create active competition.

In all villages if any are willing to pay the price they can obtain the privilege of destroying their fellows by making and selling this deadly poison: and when, in any eligible village no person is found willing to engage in this ruinous business, the Government officials supply one from a distance; and the remonstrance of even the majority of the community is treated with contempt and considered unreasonable interference. There is no "local option." The people, though they see the threatening destruction, are helpless. Their pleading for right is drowned by the cry of "revenue." So powerful is this plea for revenue that many native gentlemen of wealth and influence though enemies to intemperance, are kept silent with the plausible assertion that their taxes will be so much lighter! Taxes may be lighter for a brief period but in the near future these men of property will pay dear for their policy, and the Government will find to its sorrow that national prosperity cannot be secured by unrighteous schemes. As Dr. Phillips of Midnapore stated in a recent letter, "The revenue will ere long be wanted for almshouses, hospitals, and insane asylums, not to speak of police force and jails. A blind policy, indeed is this sowing the wind, for reaping the whirlwind must surely follow. Swift tribulation must come soon, and some of our best men are beginning to foresee this and warn the Government of it. A rapid growth of intemperance is the natural and legitimate fruit of this Out-Still system." Drunkards are increasing to a fearful extent. Dr. Phillips says that it is sixteen years since he began work in Midnapore and he used to say that one might meet a drunken man oftener in London or New York than in his city, but, that he cannot say so now. Intemperance has increased he estimates, "fully fifty fold" since the introduction of this detestable system. He says "We used to see old men intoxicated. Now young men and lads go reeling along our streets. Formerly it was a very rare thing to see a woman the worse off for liquor. Now, on certain days, you may find men, women, and children all drunk together."

The Government grog shops are gathering in the revenue, to be sure, but they are leaving poverty, rags, wretchedness, debauchery, and every other crime as their fearful imprint on the face of society. Their very touch is blasting. This "Out-Still system" created and controlled by the Government paralyzes not a little of temperance effort in this country. Reprove a man for drinking, or ask him to sign the pledge, and ten to one,

VI.—ON EVANGELISTIC WORK.

THIS is a new Committee dividing with that on the State of the Church the subjects usually reported upon by the Committee on the State of the Church and Mission work.

During the year the work of preaching the Gospel has been carried on along the lines formerly followed, and in a few new directions efforts have been made. Only a few suggestions need be made and a few points need to be guarded.

1. Bázár preaching is falling into disuse in some of the stations; and we fear that the Native preachers who live in large cities do not spend enough time in it. The pastoral care of their congregations naturally engages much of their time and attention; and some may be inclined to excuse themselves to their own consciences for neglect in this regard by saying that they have enough to do to look after Native Christians without wearying themselves by preaching in the bázárs or wandering from village to village.

Let every missionary press upon his local preachers and exhorters the great importance of regular, systematic and persevering bázár preaching; and let him practice what he asks others to do. In this connection it is an encouraging fact that in the Gonda district alone ten men have been baptized during the past year, all of whom trace their conversion to bázár preaching.

2. Muhalla preaching is becoming more common and important. In several cities its peculiar advantages are now being utilized very fully. It requires a high degree of grace to enable a man to spend his evenings in June in a hot, smoky muhalla instead of under a pankah with his family, but some men have received this grace, and find whole families of enquirers resulting from this form of self-sacrifice.

3. In every place where there is a church in the bázár, the advantages of such a building are more clearly apparent every year. Congregations of attentive heathen and Mahomedans are growing up in every such place. A new church opened in Sitapur in July, has been filled to evangelical power. Many of them are still far from what they should be, and there is room for improvement in all. As a Conference, we must devise such measures as will keep the Native brethren from getting into mental ruts and forgetting themselves in intellectual sloth. We should give them such an examination in their Conference studies as will require them to master every book in the course of study. Hence, we would suggest to examining committees the propriety of giving notice beforehand that the examinations will be written.

7. Let each of us realize that he is not only an embodiment, but also a trustee of the glorious Gospel of the blessed God. And let each of us discharge his trust with the fervent exhortation of the great Apostle of the Gentiles sounding constantly in his soul:—"I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the quick and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom: preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching."

VII.—ON SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

YOUR Committee rejoices to report the Sunday-school work of our Mission to be in a most encouraging condition at every point. There has been a great advance in numbers in many of our stations while thoroughness in instruction has received not less zealous and careful attention. The 10,000—our aim for the past year—has been attained. Instead of the 8,952 of last Conference, we record at this Conference an attendance of 13,111, and from the information gathered, we are assured that there exists in most of our schools a most thorough and searching system of teaching and examining the pupils in the Scriptures.

Your Committee respectfully calls the attention of this Conference to the following suggestions :—

1. That in our schools during the decade upon which we enter at this Conference, our aim be to reach an aggregate number of 30,000 pupils.

2. That more general attention be given to the thorough indoctrination of these scholars. Every boy and girl should have something of truth to take away—a verse or line of a bhajan, a verse of Scripture or some short illustration of Scripture truth. We urge that not only the Superintendent and teachers may profitably prepare themselves upon the lessons appointed for the Sabbath, but also might furnish themselves with suitable illustrations or incidents.

3. That some part of the lesson for the Sunday should be required to be memorized, and that monthly and quarterly as well as yearly examinations be held. We do not consider this impossible even in those schools where the children cannot read. We believe by having regard to a suitable system even those may learn weekly a verse of Scripture or of a bhajan, and by being required to repeat the same each week may become at the close of the year well acquainted with a goodly portion of God's precious word.

4. The value of a wise distribution of rewards is everywhere recognized. Excepting the weekly distribution of tickets for attendance, all gifts in the Sunday-school should be as rewards and not presents. It is suggested that the exchange of 4 small tickets for a picture card, where the custom prevails, be so modified as to place them on this basis. The picture card might be given for four small tickets and a good examination of the four last lessons. The quarterly gift or reward for, not only the attendance of the quarter, but also a satisfactory examination in the quarter's lessons, and likewise the year's reward for a good examination in the year's lessons.

5. As such thorough instruction cannot be successfully undertaken without a suitable system we emphasize the suggestions of former reports on this point, viz., the need of dividing the school into classes and the keeping of a register for the school and each class. Crude as the instruction may be, and unreliable as the attendance of a large proportion of scholars may be, we cannot lightly pass over this need of system. To bring order out of disorder and gently draw the youthful mind under the beneficent influence of system should be one aim of the teacher. In no other way does it appear to your Committee that a school work satisfactory in all particulars, can be prosecuted.

6. While your Committee observes with gratitude that the year has not passed altogether without some spiritual blessing upon the Sunday-school, the very great increase in numbers the past year is not referred to without much concern for their spiritual condition. There is need of greater spiritual power. The question comes up, what can be done to

VIII.—ON SELF-SUPPORT.

THE contributions of our Native Church for the past two years have been as follows :

DISTRICTS.	1880.	1881.	Rate.	Rate.
Kumaon, ..	86 14 0	97 12 0	0 5 7	0 6 3
Rohilkhund, ..	968 4 6	1,305 13 9	0 2 8	0 8 0
Oudh, ..	520 5 3	456 0 0	0 15 10	1 0 0
Total, ..	1,575 7 9	1,859 9 9	0 8 0	0 10 0

This seems like a small amount, and when compared with what the Church should give or with the amount received from home it is so, but when we consider the poverty of the Native Church and the rate per member it is very encouraging. It is also encouraging when we notice what the amount given will do. On this amount ten men can be sent forth to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ on a salary of ten rupees per month and ten teachers on a salary of five rupees can be employed to teach the people. There are three important and practical questions connected with the subject of Self-Support which are worthy of being considered in this report, namely, what are its advantages? what difficulties lie in the way of its speedy attainment? and how can it be accomplished?

Its advantages are three-fold, viz., 1. It conduces to the independence of the Native Church. The membership of the Native Church can not be strong and free so long as they are dependent upon foreign money. So long as the support of the work in India comes from the home Churches, the home authorities will, by right and necessarily, supervise and direct the affairs of the Native Church, and the membership, ministerial and lay, will be accordingly more or less inactive and dependent. 2. It will lead to the direct enlargement of the work. The Native Churches as they become self-supporting can enlarge their borders and be more active in evangelistic labours. Funds now contributed and sent to India by the home Churches can be used elsewhere, in opening up new work and in entering new fields where funds are more needed. 3. It will increase the spirituality of the Native Church. The more a Church does the more she will desire to do and God's blessing will attend in the same proportion. "Bring ye all the tithes into the store-house, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Mal. iii: 10.

But however desirable self-support may be there are great difficulties in the way. Among these are, (1.) The poverty of the Church. Our people are largely from the poorer classes. Not many mighty not many noble, are called. But few receive more than five rupees for month, and Native Christian families are large. Thus, the people are unable to contribute much to the support of the Gospel. (2.) The habits of the people. The people are not accustomed to giving. They have been in the habit of receiving, hence they are not only unable to give much, but many are unwilling to give at all. (3.) The covetousness of many is another difficulty. It is the root of the evil of non-supporting Churches in some places. Many Christians care more for rupees than for God, and believe it to be the duty of the Mission to support them. Hence they give nothing for the support of the work.

Now, believing self-support to be most desirable, how can it in the face of these great difficulties become an accomplished fact? It can become an accomplished fact, so far as the evangelistic work of the Mission is concerned, to a greater extent now, and entirely within a few years, by attending carefully to the following requirements essential to its success:

(1.) The expenses of the work must be reduced to a minimum. So long as missions are as expensive as at present nothing more can be hoped than that the expenses of conducting direct evangelistic work may be paid from the contributions of the Native Church. Native evangelists must be kept upon small salaries, low grade day and independent Sunday-schools must be conducted upon the most economical and inexpensive plan, in order that the people be able to support them. (2.) The people must be educated to give. The necessity of giving to the support of the work of God must be urged upon the Native Church, and they must be taught, in season and out of season, that this duty is as obligatory as that of prayer or attending the house of God or the observance of any other means of grace. Helpers must be taught this duty. Sermons should be preached urging this duty. (3.) The people must give systematically. There must be method and system about this work throughout the entire mission. (a.) All

IX.—ON METHODISM IN INDIA.

THE Committee appointed to consider certain criticisms made in a paper by the Rev. Dr. Riggs which was read in the recent Ecumenical Conference held in London touching the work of the Rev. William Taylor in this country, report as follows:

1st. We regret that in any case the opening and extension of work begun by Mr. Taylor and followed up by others has seemed to clash with the interests of our Wesleyan brethren. We do not forget that we are brethren with common rights and aims, and all that Christian comity demands, and that we should only provoke each other to love and good works.

Having all this in mind we wish to say:

2ndly. That we fully endorse Mr. Taylor's work, spirit, and methods in this country, as they were known to us.

We believe he was led to visit India by the providence of God, and, against his preconceived plan and purpose, to form societies in connection with the Church to which he belonged in the greatest centers where he labored in South India. We also believe that all Methodist bodies in this country will at no distant day heartily and joyfully recognize this fact.

3rdly. We also firmly believe that the Methodist Episcopal Church has a work to do in the South as well as the North of India not in antagonism to that of our brethren before referred to, but in common with them, and all others who pray for the speedy coming of the kingdom of our blessed Lord: and there is certainly room enough for all; doing our very best we cannot meet the pressing demands of the great work open to us in all parts of this great country; and we can but think that the spirit that would keep us out would have shut Wesleyanism out of England and our common Methodism out of the world.

4thly. Our Wesleyan brethren have opened work in at least one of the large centers embraced in our original field, and we wish them great success in their work. We may have our plans and lines along which we propose to work; but God is over us all, and we must submit to his leading though it be in ways that we did not seek or devise.

5thly. As Methodists having a common origin in which we in common rejoice there should be no division of feeling and purpose among us, but we should move on the enemy's works from every point and push the battle to the very utmost of our power. And may the prayer of our blessed Saviour be fully and speedily answered not only as regards the family of Methodism in this land, but of all Christ's dear people of every name in every land—

“That they all may be one; as thou Father art in me and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.”

X.—RESOLUTIONS OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

1. A PAPER was referred to the Finance Committee at the last Conference concerning travelling expenses of Native preachers to and from the District and Annual Conferences.

The Committee declined to take any action on this question.

RESOLUTIONS.

1. Resolved,—That an itinerating allowance be included in the estimates for such circuits under the charge of Native preachers as contain a number of out-stations, and the Preacher in charge be permitted to pay the actual expense of keeping his horse or its equivalent, while travelling in connection with his work.

2. The Presiding Elders were directed to order no money for assistants of either Society not employed in accordance with the rule of Conference in such cases.

3. Resolved,—That the salary of no Local Preacher or exhorter will be increased by this Finance Committee until the amount of increase has been recommended by the Committee on Appointments of the District Conference to which the candidate belongs. Reference is herein had to a former rule which directs the District Conference Appointing Committee to indicate the salaries of local preachers and exhorters, while the Finance Committee approves of the same.

In Memoriam.

MRS. MARY A. McHENRY.

ANOTHER from among us has gone home to heaven and reward. Sister Mary A. McHenry died after a brief illness at Alliance, Ohio, U. S. A. on the 25th of July, 1881. She was buried on the 27th of July at her home in Mayfield, Ohio, and from the same Church in which eight years before, on the same day, she was united in marriage to the Rev. A. D. McHenry then about to sail for India. Sister McHenry's early life was one of deep experience and Christian activity. To use her own language, "The arms of the Church enfolded me when I was but eleven years old. Very early the Holy Spirit began teaching my heart. God gave me a joyous, overcoming faith, and I walked on from grace to grace, lifting greater crosses and having nearer fellowship." She was a bright, devoted Sunday-school scholar and soon developed into an active, successful teacher and worker in the Church. Her life as a teacher in the public schools of Cleveland was one of marked success, for she had peculiar aptness for that work. In 1873, she was called to India and on the 20th of August gladly left her work and home to toil with her husband in this dark land. We remember her address before a large company the day previous to sailing, in which she remarked, "I had early felt an interest in the missionary work—but my soul was impressed with the need of labourers every where—and I did not feel sent to a people of a strange language. But I learned to say 'Anywhere, Lord' and he came with one grand sweep and took all and left me only himself. My heart was willing in the day of his power."

Sister McHenry arrived in India in October, 1873, and spent the next year labouring in Moradabad. She acquired the language rapidly and was instant, in season and out of season teaching the people, training the Church, and by her bright happy Christian experience and example saying to all. "Follow me as I follow Christ." In January, 1875, she went with her husband to Bijour where she toiled during the next year and a half. Her life at Bijour was a singularly successful one. She possessed the happy faculty of making every one love her and the peculiar skill to lead them to Jesus. One year, at Conference, she said to a friend: "I have had my wave sheaf. The lady where we have been staying during Conference was converted yesterday." In April, 1876, she was called to work in the Shahjehanpore Orphanage and spent the rest of the year in doing a grand work there. Her long experience as a teacher together with her cheery disposition eminently fitted her for the work among the children. But she and her husband always felt that their proper field of labour was Bijour where they had toiled so successfully. Hence she was glad to return to that place in 1877, and during the next four years devoted her life to the work of the Church there. Her life was not free from trials. Her health was never robust and the Indian climate proved insalubrious. She was a great sufferer. Then her darling little only daughter, Aimee, the light of the home and the joy of her heart fell sick and in a few days died. But Mrs. McHenry rose above these great afflictions and trials. As she wrote to a friend—"I commune with God as never before. I had never conceived that an earthly trial so sore, so keen, could be so perfectly robbed of its sting, so conquered and glorified by the grace of God." But her own greatest trial came. Her health completely failed in 1880 and she sought relief by a change to the mountains but such was the nature of her disease that she derived no benefit. Then it became her sad duty to leave India and seek rest at home with but little hope of ever being able to return. That was the sorest trial of all. But she was prepared for that and wrote, "It is hard to leave India with the feeling that it may be for always, but God's way is best and He will show us what that is." She sailed from India in February, 1881, reached her earthly home in May and after a brief stay of but two months was translated to the better and eternal home on high. We shall never forget Sister McHenry. We can never forget her work, her words, her life, her example. Her memory is engraved upon the heart of the Native Church which she loved. Her pattern is before us her missionary brothers and sisters. May God grant that we may live as she lived, that we may die as she died in the glorious triumph of a living faith.

ferences in India such measures as are needful for promoting or conserving such interests, provided no action be taken contravening the organic law of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and provided that no measure adopted by the Central Committee shall be binding upon the Church until all the Annual Conferences in India shall have adopted it by a majority vote.

3. MEMBERS.—The Central Committee shall be composed of ministerial and lay members; the former of whom shall be chosen in the ratio of one representative to every five members of each Annual Conference in India, and a representative for every fraction of three or more of this ratio; and such delegates shall have been members of some Annual Conference for two full years. The lay members shall consist of one to each Presiding Elder's District.

4. MEETINGS.—At each session of the Central Committee the time and place of the succeeding session shall be determined. A special meeting may be called, by the concurrent action of all the Annual Conferences in India provided a majority of all the members voting concur.

5. OFFICERS.—The officers shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

6. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—An Executive Committee shall be appointed, consisting of the President and two members, chosen by the Central Committee who shall have cognizance of such interests as may demand attention in the interim of the meetings of the Central Committee. They shall have power to fill vacancies in their number in the interim of Conference.

7. MANNER OF CHOOSING DELEGATES.—(1) The ministerial members shall be chosen by ballot at the session of each Annual Conference in India, immediately preceding the meeting of the Central Committee.

(2) The lay members shall be chosen by the various District Conferences where such exist, and otherwise by the Quarterly Conferences of each District, under the direction of the Presiding Elder, who shall collect the votes and ascertain therefrom the result of the election, provided that no member of the Annual Conference shall vote in such election.

8. This constitution may be amended at any regular session of the Central Committee by a majority of not less than two-thirds of those present and voting, and by the consent of a majority of each Annual Conference.

II. ON MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

The Committee on Marriage and Divorce submit the following as a memorial to be presented to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

THE HUMBLE MEMORIAL OF YOUR PETITIONERS MOST RESPECTFULLY
SHEWETH :—

1. That your Memorialists, the members of the Delegated Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in India, in convention assembled, represent a large number of congregations and missions in different parts of India and Burmah.

2. That in nearly all parts of the country, our people have seriously felt the need of certain amendments to the laws for Marriage and Divorce at present in force in India, especially among our Native Christian communities.

3. That in the Marriage Act, the present distinction observed between ministers of different Churches serves no important purpose, but makes the Act much more complex, and often works to the practical disadvantage of those "ministers of religion" who are obliged to obtain a license to solemnize marriages under the Act. In the humble judgment of your Memorialists, there is no important reason why the Act might not be so amended as to allow precisely equal privileges to Christian ministers of all denominations.

4. That as the Act now stands, licensed "ministers of religion," are not permitted to solemnize marriages when the parties are not of legal age, i. e. sixteen, if boys, and thirteen if girls, whereas no restriction as to age is imposed on the excepted ministers, and the result of this has been to create much dissatisfaction among Native Christians, and practically to remove all limitation as to age in the case of some Christian communities.

5. That in the Brahmo Marriage Act, the minimum legal age for the marriage of girls is fixed at fourteen, and your Memorialists would respectfully submit that among Christians it should not be less than fourteen.

6. That the penalties attached to the existing Marriage Act, are not found adequate to prevent very grave irregularities in some communities of Native Christians, particularly converts from the lower castes. Heathen priests very often perform marriage ceremonies for men who are nominally Christians, and who have Christian wives, and it has been found on appeal to the courts, that such priests cannot be punished your Memorialists believe, the attempt to make use of its provisions has been wholly abandoned.

12. That very grievous hardships almost constantly grow out of the custom of treating the early marriages of irresponsible children as bona fide legal marriages, even where the marriage has not been consummated, many instances of which might be cited from various parts of India.

13. That various other particulars might be specified shewing serious practical defects in the Divorce Act, but your Memorialists do not deem it necessary to make further mention of them in this memorial.

14. That your Memorialists humbly pray that the whole subject may receive the careful attention of Your Excellency in Council, and that such relief may be granted, as the important interests involved may demand.

III. ON PUBLISHING.

Whereas, in the providence of God, the work of our Church in India has so far extended as to be now carried on besides the English, in at least six of the leading vernaculars of the land, Urdu, Hindi, Bengali, Marathi, Telugu and Tamil with an increasing demand for English books, school-books, and periodical literature, and whereas, our Church has always taken a deep interest in its publishing enterprises:—

Resolved 1. That this Central Committee nominate a General Board of Publication and Management, to consist of seven members subject to confirmation by the Annual Conferences, of whom at least three shall be laymen. The members of this Board shall be chosen at each meeting of the Central Committee and continue in office until the next meeting.

Vacancies occurring in the interim shall be filled by the Executive Committee.

2. That this Board be authorized with the consent of the North India, and South India Conferences, to establish a central Publishing House at Allahabad, for the purpose of supplying English and vernacular literature, by the importation and publication of books, periodicals and other requisites of our work, provided that the vernacular publishing interests of the North India Conference shall not be removed from Lucknow without the consent of the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society.

3. That there may be under the management and control of this Board, Branch Depositories at such places as may be deemed practicable by the Board.

4. That in order to place this Publishing House on a substantial foundation, we undertake to raise an endowment of at least two lakhs of rupees.

5. This Board shall have authority to nominate an Agent at such time and on such conditions as they may deem best.

6. The Board of Publication shall be formally registered under act XXI of 1860, of the laws of India.

7. The Board shall have authority to negotiate for the incorporation of the Methodist Book Depository of the South India Conference, in the proposed Publishing House.

IV. ON PERIODICALS.

1. With regard to vernacular periodicals, we are of the opinion that for the present, the periodicals published at our Lucknow Press, are amply sufficient.

2. That in our judgment the time has come when steps should be taken for the establishment of an English religious weekly newspaper under the auspices of our Church in India.

3. That inasmuch as the North India Conference has called our attention to the Lucknow Witness, we hereby authorize the Board of Publication to provide as soon as they shall find it practicable for the publication of the said paper, on an enlarged basis, adapted to the wants of our Church throughout India.

V. ON EDUCATION.

Your Committee on Education recommend the following for adoption by the Central Committee :—

1. That a Board of Education be hereby established, consisting of the Educational Boards of both Conferences.

2. That five members of this Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

3. That this Board be instructed to draw up and present to the next meeting of the Central Committee an educational scheme, affecting educational Institutions of all grades in connection with our Church in India.

4. We deem it of great importance that all our children be educated under Evangelical influences, instead of where they are likely to imbibe the spirit of Romanism and Ritualism. We are gratified to know that the number of day-schools for teaching the lower standards is increasing, and we hope that this will continue till every charge able to support a Methodist school shall have it.

5. We feel confident that the permanent interests of our educational work in India, will be best subserved by having a limited number of boarding schools, taught by the best teachers we can procure for them. In our judgment, there should not be more than one English boarding school in each of the leading provinces, except in cases where the Board of Education decide that special circumstances make a larger number desirable, and give their formal sanction thereto.

6. The English day-schools should be made preparatory to the boarding-schools, and only the latter should attempt to teach the higher standards, and prepare candidates for matriculation, excepting cases where the Board of Education shall give special sanction.

7. Such of our schools as are available for it should receive the united patronage of residents within the bounds of both Conferences.

8. The Theological Seminary and Normal school at Bareilly should be utilized by the South India Conference, as far as this is practicable.

9. An effort should be made to make the Centennial School and the Girls' Boarding School at Lucknow, such as will meet the wants of Native Christian students, who require better facilities of education than are now within their reach.

10. We are impressed that as pastors, we ought to take a greater interest in this work of education. We should visit the schools frequently, suggest improvements, and counsel the members of our congregations in reference to this matter.

VI. ON EPISCOPAL VISITATION.

The Methodist Episcopal Church in India has providentially been called to occupy a very large field, and to take a very prominent position in evangelistic and educational work among all classes of people speaking various languages in this land. Members of our Church are found in every section of the country, and new classes and Churches are constantly springing into existence, and new openings are almost daily calling us to enter other fields. Our institutions of learning of various grades adapted to the wants of the people, are also found in every portion of our field, and are yearly increasing to meet the growing demand. A new and expanding work like this in so large and diversified an empire as India calls for constant and direct supervision, and while we very gratefully acknowledge the great benefit that our work has derived from the periodical visits of our Bishops, yet the demands of our work in its many and varied interests, force upon us the conviction that a more constant and direct superintendence and leadership, such as Bishop Asbury gave to our Church in America when it was new, would give efficiency to our work, and secure greater permanency and success to all our undertakings.

Hence we would most respectfully call the attention of our Board of Bishops to this, in our opinion, important demand, and with all due deference ask, that if consistent with their other duties, the Bishops who may visit us in future, may arrange to remain two years, or at least through two cold seasons in India, during every four years, until such time as they may deem it expedient to advise the residence of one of their number in this Empire.

VII. ON THE RELATION OF LAY AGENTS TO OUR WORK.

I.—Official Relation of Lady Missionaries.

Whereas certain usages have grown up and been found acceptable and successful in connection with our older mission fields in India, we deem it expedient to formulate the same in the following rules :

1.—In general the position of a lady Missionary placed in charge of work in connection with any of our circuits or stations is the same as that of a second Missionary or "Junior preacher," to whom special work is assigned.

2.—In particular. The general plans of work such as establishing new schools, employing, and dismissing head teachers, arranging terms of tuition, board, &c., and preparing a course of study, when these matters are not fixed by Trustees or by an Educational Committee, selecting classes of people among whom Zenana work may most successfully be carried on, arranging dispensaries, and deciding the proportion of Medical work to be given to natives and Europeans, Christians and non-Christians, &c. &c., all such general plans shall be arranged by the lady in charge of the special department of work, after free consultation with the preacher in charge and by his consent.

In all cases the lady Missionary is at liberty to advise also with the Presiding Elder of the district, and in differences of opinion, to secure his decision.

3.—The lady Missionary in charge of work has full liberty to do the work assigned her in her own way, and to carry out the internal arrangements of her department in the manner which she deems best adapted to secure success.

4.—The relation of the Presiding Elder to the work under the charge of a lady, is the same as it would be were it in charge of a member of Conference; he having a general advisory supervision, auditing the accounts, (when not done by Trustees) making suggestions, &c. exactly as with all the other work of his District.

5.—Lady Missionaries in charge of work, and all Missionaries of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, are appointed by the President of Conference, at the same time and in the same manner that the appointments of Conference are made. Should, however, a President of Conference at any time decline so to appoint, the Presiding Elders in Council, will arrange the same.

6.—All new buildings and extensive repairs or changes, shall receive the sanction of both the Preacher in charge and Presiding Elder, even though no appropriation of money be asked.

ence, and assigned to appropriate work of the Conference, their relation, corresponding to their appointment, according to the usage of our Church.

VIII. ON CHURCH PROPERTY.

The property held by our Church in India, may be divided into two classes: First, places of worship, such as Churches and Chapels, Coffee-rooms, in which religious services are held, and parsonages for the occupancy of ministers connected with the several Churches or other places of worship. Second, School Buildings, Orphan Asylums, Press Buildings, Book Depositories, and such other buildings as are not used for purposes of worship: provided in every case that the property in question does not belong to the Missionary Society.

With regard to the first class of property, we recommend that it be held under the provisions of the Religious Societies Act of 1879, by trustees elected according to the Law of our Church. We are assured that the long-standing difficulties connected with the tenure of Church property, in India, have all been removed by the liberal provisions of this excellent Act, and we respectfully suggest to all trustees of our existing Church property, that they at once conform their organization and action to its requirements. We also recommend that the annexed form of deed of conveyance for the use of trustees, be published in the Minutes of this Committee.

The other class of Church property, should be held by Committees or Boards of Management, organized and registered, as Societies, under Act XXI. of 1860.

We believe that the provisions of this Act, will be found amply sufficient for all the present wants of our people in India.

SUPPLEMENT.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION ANNIVERSARY.

THIS Union assembled at Moradabad, January 12th, 1882, Rev. B. H. Badley Presiding.

It was voted that the yearly fee for Native members should be eight annas.

Voted that the money in the Treasury of the Union should be devoted to the assistance of needy Sunday-schools, especially those in the care of our Native brethren, and that the officers of the Union be instructed to disburse the money in accordance with the above resolution.

Rev. D. W. Thomas was elected President, Rev. B. H. Badley, Secretary, and Rev. Joel T. Janvier Treasurer, for the ensuing year.

The Secretary's Report was adopted as follows :

Our work among the children is expanding into very large proportions. The youth of the land are left to our instruction : both Hindus and Mahomedans neglect the children and they seem to be glad to leave them in our care. The parents have feared that the boys and girls might be enticed away, but since they find that they remain at home and are more dutiful and obedient because of the instruction we give, they prefer to have their little ones learn in our schools.

The number of Sunday-schools not connected with day schools has considerably increased. In many stations this problem has been solved. We can gather into our Sunday-schools, which are unconnected with day schools, all the children we can instruct. We still find it difficult to secure teachers. Qualified teachers are few, the scholars are many ; some of our workers give two whole days to this work, Saturday and Sunday, and those who take two schools each day with an average of one hundred children in each, are able to instruct four hundred children.

In some portions of this field small rewards for attendance have been given, and when the work has become permanent these rewards have been considerably decreased in value. Tokens for attendance are given to each pupil, and after two months these tokens are exchanged for prizes of various kinds : books, pictures, guavas and playthings have been given.

The average cost of these school in books, papers and rewards has been about two annas per pupil for the year. In some places the expense has been as high as eight annas per pupil, in other places less than one anna per pupil for the year.

In the large European communities considerable local aid has been obtained for Sunday-school work, but in circuits away from these European settlements very little assistance has been given. Special aid should be granted to our Native brethren for their expanding Sunday-school work.

The comparative statistics are as follows :—

our Hindustani Sunday-schools, to be original or translated as may seem advisable.

4. Mrs. Humphrey is requested to translate such portions of the "Peep of Day" series as she in consultation with the Publishing Committee may deem advisable.

5. Mrs. E. M. Scott, is requested in concert with the Publishing Committee to prepare a set of Wall Mottoes in Hindustani suitable for Sunday-school Rooms.

6. Rev. R. Hoskins is requested to prepare a Catalogue of Hindustani Books suitable for our Sunday-school work.

THE work is so immense and the years are so short that it is difficult to find time to write Reports, nor is it possible to report the greater part of our work. Church members and baptisms and the number of scholars in the Sunday-school are easily enumerated, but how are the influences going out from the humble workers in the churches, schools, bazars, villages,

		Native Pastor.

I. Accessions.—We have had the privilege this year of baptizing eight adults; all are influential persons and we trust will be the means of leading their heathen relatives to Christ. All these converts were Hindus, representing the highest and also lowest castes.

Early in the year we baptized a young man, a Chamar, whose conversion is traceable to the school and Sunday-school.

Five years ago we opened our first school among these people, with a Christian teacher. One of the leading Chamars gave us the use of a house and the school has cost about six rupees a month. A Sunday-school has also been carried on, and the scholars, about 25 in number, have been well instructed in the Bible. As a result, several of them have given up idolatry and argue against it. One of the largest boys, a nephew of the owner of the school-house, became a diligent reader of the Bible, and decided to become a Christian. As he was comparatively young we advised delay, but he declared that he had counted the cost and was willing to abide by the consequences. He was baptized in January and like many others, was cast out by his relations.

As we desire him to become an evangelist among his own people, we sent him to the Normal School at Bareilly where he is at present studying. When he finishes the course we expect him to return to the work here. His uncle, while greatly pleased at the progress made by his nephew in his studies, was sorely displeased at his daring to become a Christian, and laid great blame upon the teacher. Our constant prayer is that the uncle may follow the nephew. There were several other promising boys in the school, one of whom expressed his desire to become a Christian. We regret to write that owing to a lack of funds we were obliged to close this school. Some one may ask, "Why close the school; six rupees a month is certainly a trifling sum." True; but in these matters the missionary is often helpless; he can only use the money appropriated, often insufficient for the wants of the growing work. The sadness of heart felt in closing promising work simply on account of the want of a few rupees can be understood only by those who have been placed in like circumstances.

Another convert was found by one of our native helpers while visiting in cantonments. He at once accepted Christ and was baptized. His wife objected to becoming a Christian and seemed firm in her determination to remain a Hindu. The family removed to the Mission premises, the man being employed as a chaprásí. In April, he was seized with cholera: we gave him medicines, sent for the physician, and by God's grace he recovered. The wife was surprised at the interest taken in her husband. "If we had been living among our own people," said she, "not one would have moved a finger to help us in such a condition and my husband would have died." She became a Christian at once, and the father, mother and three children are now of our little flock.

Five years ago the ayah of Mrs. I.——a good Christian lady living in Lucknow who took special pains to teach her servants of Christ, was baptized. She was a widow with a family of grown up sons, engaged as cooks in various places. Sona ("Pure Gold") at once began to pray that God would lead her children to Himself; her prayers have continued to ascend to heaven, and not in vain. In 1878, one of the sons with his wife and children, and a grandson with his wife were baptized: and last month the oldest son, now upwards of fifty years old, was baptized, along with his infant grandson. But one son now remains, and this faithful praying woman is assured in her heart that he will soon follow his brothers, especially as all are praying for his conversion. Her earthly pilgrimage is almost ended—she is upwards of eighty years old—but we feel that God will give her the desire of her heart.

This instance is the more interesting as none of the family have looked to the Mission for employment or assistance: they contribute regularly to the various church collections, and will, we trust, be successful in their efforts to lead their friends and acquaintances to the Savior.

If every English lady in India were like Mrs. I.——, our Mission churches would soon receive many accessions. We pray that many more may follow her excellent example.

II. The Native Church.—For the first time in its history the Lucknow Hindustání Church has been self-supporting; and by a strange

Our faith tells us that the next five years will witness a still larger ratio of increase.

III. Bazar preaching. This has been carried on as usual. While not especially encouraging in the way of direct results we are more than ever convinced of the need of this public declaration of the Gospel message. Many thus hear, and some, hearing, will obey.

IV. Day-Schools. With the exception of the Chamar school closed for want of funds, the day-schools remain as last year, five in number, with an attendance of 700 boys. These schools are great powers for good, and give us fine opportunities for reaching the people. The boys have taken especial interest in a new Catechism recently published at our Press, many of them purchasing copies. Several have subscribed for our vernacular newspaper the Kaukab i Hind. Quite a number have found employment in the railway and other offices.

V. Sunday-Schools. These give us delightful work Sabbath after Sabbath throughout the year. They are twenty in number with an attendance of 1350. The Lessons for the year—Berean Series—have been faithfully taught and well studied by the children. At the close of each quarter public services have been held and these have added interest to the work and have also given us opportunities for finding out the real hold the Sunday-school has upon these non-christian children. We are more than ever assured that this agency is yet to be greatly blessed of God in saving the youth of India. We only wish we had money and an army of Sunday-school teachers to penetrate every part of this great city with song and prayer and the Bible. As it is we are doing all we can and are praying God to save these hundreds of children dear to us, but dearer still, we know, to Him.

The Central Sunday-school, Rev. J. H. Messmore, superintendent, attended by our Native Christian children, has done well this year. It gives regularly four rupees monthly for missionary work in the city. The Juvenile Missionary Society organized in 1881 has a good report to make. Early in the year the children decided to devote this year's collections to purchasing Gospels, one for each boy and girl in the city Sunday-schools. These Gospels cost two pice each, and by the close of the year at least 1200 will have been distributed. The plan has worked well: the givers have been interested and have prayed for their Hindu and Mahomedan friends in the city: and the latter have thankfully accepted the Gospels. We rejoice to know that the entrance of God's word giveth light, and our prayer is that these little books may carry light and gladness into the hundreds of darkened homes they have entered.

For the first time our Church and Sunday-school observed "Children's Day", and all were pleased with the special service. We believe that very much can be made of this day in India, especially if it be observed in a happier time of the year than June. No doubt the suggestion of Dr. Kidder that a different date be selected for India will be approved by the Conference.

VI. Work among educated natives. Brother Ram Chandra Bose has given himself heartily to this form of work as heretofore and has had a very successful year. As we write these lines he has just returned from a lengthy lecturing tour in the course of which he visited and addressed large audiences in the following cities: Seetapur, Shahjehanpur, Bareilly, Moradabad, Agra, Jeypur, Ajmere, Ahmedabad, Baroda, Surat, Bombay, Poona and Ahmednagar. Various missionaries have written us expressing their very high appreciation of Mr. Bose's labors in their stations, and asking the favor of another visit. We need a score of such men in North India: meanwhile we rejoice in our brother's success. The Religious Tract Society, London, has paid him a high compliment by publishing a volume of his lectures, which, under the title "The Truth of the Christian Religion," bids fair to have a wide circulation. Mr. Bose reports as follows:

"I am thankful I have been enabled, in spite of a domestic bereavement and long-continued illness, to carry on the work assigned me, almost without interruption, during the past year.

A Band of Hope having been organized in Lucknow by a few of the higher pupils of the Canning College, I was requested by its Secretary, at the commencement of my lecture-session, to deliver a series of lectures, in connection with it, on what he called "Moral subjects."

The series of lectures in the Chapel was brought to a close by a couple of discourses on Rajah Ram Mohan Roy, the first pointing out the varied excellencies of a character esteemable on the whole, and the second enlarging on the wrong theories and sad mistakes by which his career as a reformer was neutralized. Along with this series I delivered one in the Centennial School on the Life of Christ, and one in the Nakhas School on the same subject—based on such fresh information as is embodied in Geikie's well-known book on the subject. But the courses in these two institutions, specially in the latter, were interrupted by illness from the effects of which I have not yet recovered.

During the latter part of the year I undertook and completed an extensive evangelistic tour through a portion of Oudh, Rohilkbund, Agra District, Rajputana and Gujerat to Bombay, Poona and Ahmednagar. Of this trip it is of course impossible to speak at length here. Suffice it to say that in about three months I visited fourteen cities, several of them for the first time, delivered fifty-two lectures for the benefit of educated natives, and about a dozen sermons for that of my native Christian brethren; besides working daily with the Salvation Army, or the Indian Detachment of it for about three weeks in Bombay both in their tent on the Esplanade and in the theatre they had rented. For the precious opportunities I have had of doing a little good in the varied places visited I am under weighty obligations to the kind-hearted Missionary and native friends by whom I have been hospitably entertained and generously encouraged, and to Major Tucker of the Salvation Army through whose kindness I had the pleasure of addressing audiences larger and more respectable on the whole than any I had addressed, barring perhaps a few meetings at Almorah and at Moradabad.

As a specimen of the theories which are gaining ground amongst our educated countrymen let me refer to what was said to me in the course of an interesting conversation by Sir T. Madho Rao, the Prime Minister of the Baroda State. He said that all the religions of the world are God-given, each given at a particular time to a particular people according to their 'receptiveness' and all forming a graduated scale from the lowest form of fetichism to the highest type of monotheism yet attained to; and that therefore anything like a show of antagonism on the part of one towards others should be deprecated. This is the root-principle of the New Dispensation, and may justly be characterized as Spenserianism sanctified by a belief in the existence of God and a superintending providence!

A word about my humble literary labors. I am now engaged in pushing through the Press a book on my travels, calculated, I believe, to do good to my educated countrymen, and in circulating a book of mine entitled "The Truth of the Christian Religion," published by the Tract Society, London. I have, moreover, prepared a small treatise on Brahmoism, consisting of seven short lectures delivered originally in Urdu in the Bareilly Theological Seminary. This book is in the hands of the Tract Society at Bombay, and has been recommended for publication. In addition to this I have a half-finished treatise on Hindu Philosophy, based on original documents, not merely on borrowed information, and my prayer is that God may enable me to finish it, and give me an opportunity of publishing it for the benefit of those, whose minds ought to be disabused of a misplaced veneration for systems of thought characterized by a little acuteness and a great deal of puerility and absurdity."

VII. Colportage. After an interval of several years the North India Bible Society has again granted us an allowance for colportage, and the colporteur has been successfully engaged during the year. He meets with much encouragement, and there is a good demand for both English and vernacular scriptures.

VIII. Saadat Gunge. This is one of the most promising parts of the city. The native preacher, our Christian poet, Chimman Lal, has worked faithfully and his brethren have recently recommended him as worthy of being admitted into the Annual Conference. He is one of the early graduates of our Theological Seminary and has a real love for souls. His wife is also an earnest worker. During the year her brother and his wife have become Christians and she hopes that her parents (still Hindus) may also accept Christ. They live in another station.

Weekly services have been held at Saadat Gunge attended by Christians and others. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper has also been regularly administered, as the church (five miles distant) is too far away to admit of the women attending.

The Bazar preaching at this appointment is most encouraging. The people listen patiently and are never tired of the excellent hymns which our preacher sings. We predict a Saadat Gunge church ere many years pass.

THE CENTENNIAL SCHOOL.

REV. B. H. BADLEY, Principal.

THE past has been the best year in the history of this institution. The total enrollment has been 311 as compared with 184 last year. Both school and boarding-house have been crowded and we have not been able to advertise the school for fear of having more applicants than we could care for.

Our great want is a new school-house with dormitories for 100 boarders. Last year we reported that the Government had kindly given Rs. 5,000 towards this project: in April last the Lucknow municipality generously added another Rs. 5,000. These sums with a like amount from home will give us a house large enough at least for the present (but not, we are confident, for the future). We have been disappointed and delayed in getting a suitable site, but hope ere long to obtain what we have been seeking, a very eligible piece of ground near the Residency. Part of the materials for the new building has been purchased, contracts given, and carpenters are busy on doors and frames. The house will soon be ready and its completion will mark an era in the history of the school.

The Director of Public Instruction visited the school early in the year and expressed his pleasure at what he saw. In August the Inspector of Schools for Oudh, Mr. Nesfield, examined the school and reported favorably, recommending an increase of the Government grant-in-aid.

For the first time the school sends up a class for matriculation, consisting of ten boys. Some of these are sure to pass and we expect to do better and better in this line every year. Ten boys will also appear in the "Scripture Scholarship Examination" to pass a written examination on a certain part of the Bible.

As usual, our boarders have come from various parts of India. Only a few weeks ago a native preacher brought as his three sons from his village home in Santhalistan 400 miles to the south. He is laboring in connection with the Free Church of Scotland Mission. This fact indicates the wideness of the field open to our school. We rejoice that we are so centrally located, and expect with our new buildings to draw students from all parts of the land.

The boarders have added much to the interest of our Church services and Sunday-school by their singing. Some of them have sweet voices which they gladly use for Christ. One day in September we took our singing band and accompanied by several preachers made a march through the city to Saadat Gunge three miles away, halting at prominent places along the streets: the boys sang and great crowds were attracted who listened with deep interest to the simple words sung with such earnestness and melody. The presence of such a cheery, singing company of youths in their midst was in itself a sermon and showed the people something of the excellency of a system of religion which draws to itself both young and old. The native helpers preached, and thus singing and preaching the company moved forward—a "salvation army" on a small scale.

Our prayer is that the Centennial School may send forth many who shall preach, as well as many well prepared for other service for Christ and His cause. When asked recently as to their preference in regard to work, eight of the boarders expressed a desire to preach should it be God's will. Several of the older boys go regularly as teachers to the city Sunday-schools—a good preparatory experience for them. Most are members of the Young Men's Christian Association, and will, we believe, as a result of their school experience become efficient workers in God's great vineyard.

One of our teachers, a young man of twenty, died in September from cholera, then raging all about us. He was one of our happiest Christians and a valuable helper in the work. Shortly before his death he told a friend that it was well with his soul, that he had heard God's voice calling him home. He leaves a fair and enviable record and will long be remembered by all who knew him. One of the boarders was also attacked by this dread disease, but recovered. We thank God for His constant blessing in giving us health.

The outlook is very hopeful. Properly endowed and well manned, this growing school will have a great future and serve our Church well. We need an endowment of Rs. 50,000 at once.

A monthly subscription of five rupees enables us to educate a boy. We have a number of worthy applications at present: several Christian friends are assisting us in this work. Are there not others who would gladly do so?

ENGLISH CHURCH.

REV. J. C. LAWSON, Pastor.

For the greater part of the year the congregations have been fair, until latterly the attendance has much increased. The average attendance has been about 150, but is now somewhat larger. The social means of grace have been Bethels to all the members, and to others who have attended: special mention may be made of our Friday evening class-meeting. It is not only a feeder to the local church, but also a source of great inspiration and profit to our local missionary workers. It is prized by the latter as taking the place of like means of grace in the land of their nativity. The average attendance upon this class has been twenty-five.

Our Sunday-school work, which was at rather a low stage during the hot months, is now looking up. In the Sunday-school held in the church the average attendance has been about sixty-five, but latterly the attendance has increased to seventy-five. At the beginning of the year, we started a Sunday-school at the railway. The average attendance is fifteen. We are very much encouraged in the Sunday-school work, and expect much more will be done during the coming cold season. Upon these English and English-speaking children of India depend very largely the civilization and salvation of the benighted millions around us.

The Dasahra meetings this year have been full of blessing, both to the church here and many who came from a distance. Some sixty persons altogether have professed conversion, about twenty-five of whom are residents of Lucknow. Nearly all of the latter have joined our church on probation. The members of the church have also been greatly edified, and their zeal for the Lord's work increased. Thus the Lord's cause is moving on, and all are greatly rejoicing over the victory.

MISSION PRESS.

REV. J. H. MESSMORE, Superintendent.

THE amount of stock on hand at the commencement of the year was so large that comparatively little outlay has been necessary, and the income for the year has so far exceeded expenditure, that it will be possible to make an addition of Rs. 3000 to the permanent endowment of the Press. The Dictionaries prepared by the Rev. T. Craven sell well and are a source of revenue to the Press. The Religious Tract Society of London and the Tract Society and Sunday-school Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, America, have each made generous appropriations to the Press during the past year.

The number of volumes and of pages issued during the year is given in the tabulated returns. The number of volumes and pages actually printed is greater than given in the table, but on the other hand, a large proportion of the volumes are really nothing but tracts. The demand for Lesson Leaves and Sunday-school papers is constantly increasing. Apart from our school books, however, there is little demand for any of our other publications.

SITAPUR AND LUKHIMPUR.

 REV. P. GRAY, Native Minister.

WHEN we consider the progress of the Christian Church in India, the present may be called the day of small things which is not to be despised, and compared with the general progress and development of the work, some mission fields may seem, especially to the Missionary pessimist, as sterile and fruitless. To some, as to the accomplished author of "The Garden of India," the progress of Missions in Oudh, for instance, may seem unobservable, and "If it be asked what progress is Christianity making in Oudh, the only answer that can be made is, None that is perceptible by an ordinary lay observer. The simple monotheism of Islam, and the elaborate theology and cosmogony of Hinduism, dissimilar as they are, present pretty equally impregnable fronts to Missionary enterprise."

But during the past quarter of a century much has really been done and many visible results have followed in Oudh. To mention but a portion of the field, great changes have taken place among the people of the two civil districts of Sitapur and Khiri, composing Sitapur and Lakhimpur circuit, since its organization in 1861.

For some years it was believed that no non-christian would attend a Christian service in Sitapur. As the late Mr. Brown wrote in 1869, "It must be remembered that the Mohammedan or Hindu who ventures to attend regularly any Christian place of worship, is soon looked upon by his co-religionists as a heretic and an outcaste, and is treated accordingly." Times have certainly changed since then, and missionary methods as well, and that good missionary from a better world has perhaps seen his little chapel removed from the compound to the centre of the bazar where, enlarged, it has been filled and often crowded twice every Sabbath with all classes of non-Christians earnestly listening to the word of God and offering no objections to the clear statement of Christian truth.

This has been one of the most encouraging features of the work during the past year. Many of the better class natives have attended the regular services, and during special meetings have manifested a marked interest in the subjects discussed. Babu Ram Chandra Bose's lectures on Raja Ram Mohan Roy were listened to by large audiences with marked attention. It is the custom at the close of the Sunday evening services to distribute religious papers and tracts among the audience, and in this way good has been done. The girls in the boarding school have added much to the interest by their singing.

The Sunday-school work on the circuit, too, has been most encouraging during the past year. At the close of 1881 there were 16 schools and 466 scholars enrolled, but now there are 28 schools and 1103 scholars, of which 10 schools and 215 scholars are girls. About 590 of these children do not attend secular schools but are gathered each Sunday by persons appointed, in some places assembling under trees and in one place in a quiet street. In one place a Government teacher gathers 80 boys on Sunday to be taught by a Christian. One Catechist attends 5 Sunday-schools on Sunday, and holds several religious schools during the week. The non-christian teachers help in the work, attending the teachers' meetings regularly. This is much better than in the early history of the work, when the Missionary reported 1 school 2 teachers and 5 scholars. And in 1868 there was still but 1 school which had decreased to 10 scholars. Even so late as 1872 the missionary wrote—"We find it impossible to maintain Sunday-schools without secular schools as a basis."

The work among the women has grown much during the year 1882. Up to five years ago this work was considered very difficult in this field, but few schools could be maintained and but little Zanana work could be done. Now the work is only limited by the paucity of helpers. There are 175 girls in the day and 215 in the Sunday schools. One school of 30 girls, is composed entirely of Brahmans. In Khairabad especially, the houses open to the Bible women are those of the wealthier classes.

The usual amount of out-door work has been done during the year. Long tours have been made during the cold season during which the gospel was preached in hundreds of villages. A successful season of preaching at the Misrikh paikarma ("round of pilgrimages") fair closed the cold weather camping. The magic lantern, as usual, was used there and in other places with much profit.

And what was the result of all this work? The fruit of this multi-form labour is manifesting itself not so much in the number of baptisms, although there have been some of those, as in the inquiry among the people concerning the Christian religion, in the friendliness among all classes toward the missionary and his helpers, in the willingness to attend Christian services and listen to Christian truth and in the loss of fear and superstition on every hand. There is no doubt that an undermining and disintegrating process is constantly at work among the false systems and that the people are gradually losing faith in their old religions. It is no disparagement of the past or exaggeration of the present to say that the year of grace 1882 has been the most successful and encouraging one in the history of Sitapur and Lakhimpur circuit, and that those engaged in the glorious work feel inspired with new zeal and hope for the future.

GONDA AND BAHRAICH.

REV. W. PETERS, Native Minister.

GONDAH.—The native preachers, Charles Luke, Sadalu, and Sigler, have worked earnestly and faithfully during the year now closing. In the Bazar, in the Sabbath and day school, in the village, and in the homes of the people the Word of Life has been preached with power and success by these devoted men.

I. Five whole families have come out on the Lord's side during the year in this station and surrounding villages.

(1.) A Rajput family of husband and wife and two children have separated themselves from idolatry and set up the worship of God and His Christ in their hearts and in their midst. They remain in their village, Paharwá, where they witness a good confession for their newly found Divine Master. We hope much from this family.

(2.) Two Páti families of nine persons have come out and openly confessed Christ before their neighbors, and boldly declared their intention of ever serving Him. They have given many encouraging proofs of this which stamp their confession as a blessed reality.

(3.) One Musalmán family of the weaver class, husband and wife with one child, have openly declared to their friends that they are Christians. Our native preachers go to their small grass hut, and join with this brave man and woman in singing our heart-stirring Bhajans, and praying for the conversion of the people in their immediate neighborhood.

(4.) A Kahár family living in the Gonda city have given up the worship of Bhawání, a Hindu goddess, and the use of intoxicating liquors, and thrown in their lot with the little Christian Church in this place. They have two children, whom they have devoted to the service of the Lord.

II. There are also three single persons who have fully decided for Christ.

(1.) Badri Pershad, a Káyath, aged 19 years, was convicted of sin, and the necessity of such a Saviour as Christ through hearing the word of God preached in the Gonda bázár. His relations gave him great trouble and tried to induce him to give up all thoughts of becoming a Christian; but he resisted and was baptized in November.

(2.) Rám Balí, a Brahman, aged 20 years, a Munshí in Government employ was converted to Christ through the word of God preached in the Gonda city school house. He is engaged on the new Railway, but he uses his spare time in reading portions of the Gospel and exhorting others to accept Christ.

(3.) Radhiyá, a Hindu woman, who keeps a brick-kiln about a mile outside of city, heard the truth from Mrs. Knowles at the beginning of the year. It worked its own glorious work in her heart for many months, till a few weeks ago she came to our native preacher's wife, and said she was a disciple of Christ, and trying to serve Him as far as she knew. She has come regularly for instruction in spiritual things.

III. The conversion of a Pandit on his death-bed, an account of which was published in a late number of the Kaukab i Hind, is worthy of record in this report. He was known in Gonda for his learning and faithful priestly offices. He was in the constant habit of attending our Bazar preaching and arguing, though in a kindly way, with our preachers. A few months ago news was brought to Mr. C. Luke that the Pandit was lying in a dying state. Having taken two brethren with him, Mr. Luke went to see the dying Hindu. Standing by his bed-side he asked:

"Well, Pandit, what is the state of your heart?"

He answered as well as his weakness would allow:

"My heart is in a hopeless state!"

The following question was again asked:

"If your heart is in such a hopeless condition, how then are you to obtain rest?"

The dying Priest replied:

"I cannot tell!"

The preacher then explained to him Christ and his great salvation, and that by simply believing on Him now, rest would come to his weary heart.

The Pandit asked with great eagerness: "Is it really true that Jesus Christ can give rest and peace to my burdened soul?"

The answer was:

"If you rest with a pure faith on Christ now, just as you are, Christ saves you!"

The Pandit put up his hands saying: "Yes I believe with a pure faith on Christ." Then he began to ask anxiously more questions about Christ. Wishing to test the Pandit the preacher said:

"If you would drink a little broth" (drinking such being forbidden keeping the heart and life from sin, and making a family happy.

BAHRAICH. Rev. W. Peters and Munshi Chatar Singh, Native Preachers, have labored arduously and faithfully in their station and district all through the year. Their Sabbath schools have done well. There is an average attendance of 215 scholars. One young man, a Hindu, was brought to a knowledge of himself and Christ in one of these Sunday-schools. He proved an apt and ready learner, and was soon baptized. He is now preparing himself for entrance into our Theological Seminary at Bareilly. The word of God as preached by these dear brethren has been successful in winning souls to Christ in Bahraich.

(1) A Brahmani woman heard the word of God from the compound of her house, and was so convinced that she could find no rest. She sent for Mrs. Peters and showed herself in real earnest for the salvation of her soul. She one day told Mrs. Peters that, while praying in the name of Christ that morning, she felt all her sins leave her and a wonderful feeling of rest came into her heart. She was baptized, and has been doing well since.

(2). A Musalman who heard the preaching of Christ in the Saiyad Salar Mela, held annually in Bahraich, came clearly out and acknowledged Christ to be the only true Saviour. He had gone to the above mela, and had caused himself to be bound to a tree with the determination never to be released until the desire of his heart was fulfilled. It was near this tree, where many like the above were bound, our preachers took up their stand and preached the Word of Life. It brought blessed freedom to this poor sinner's heart and the desire of his soul was more than satisfied in the knowledge and grace of Christ. He afterward gladly confessed Christ openly in baptism.

(3). There is also a good work opening in one of the Mahallas in Bahraich among the weaving classes ; but we hope to give a better and fuller report of this work, next year.

Ellenpur. The work here has been steadily carried on by Mr. Stephen Paul. He, too, has been successful in his Sabbath school work and preaching during the year. He has an average of 150 children in his Sabbath schools, who are being trained faithfully in Christian knowledge. His faithful preaching has brought out nine hopeful inquirers, among whom are 7 Koris, 1 Brahman, and 1 Musalmani woman. These he hopes will soon be ready for baptism.

There is one woman we baptized (from this place) who deserves special notice, a Brahmani woman : she heard the truth preached in her village, and was so affected by it that she came to Ellenpur to inquire more. Though her husband was angry with her for coming, still she came, almost every day to hear the story of the Cross and our hymns sung. She soon expressed her intention of becoming a Christian openly. When her husband heard it he took away all her jewels and beat her ; but nothing would make her give up the idea of becoming a follower of Jesus. She travelled in from Ellenpur, and last Sunday before a large congregation we received her into the Church through the door of baptism. It did our hearts good to hear her tell of her experience in a meeting held in the evening of the same day.

Colonel Gunge. Mr. Bihári Lál has done a good work in this circuit during the year coming to a close. In preaching and visiting and working his Sabbath and day schools he has gathered some fruit. There is an average of 200 scholars in his Sunday schools, and many of these young people come to his house in the week days as inquirers after the truth.

His preaching has brought out many seekers after the "Pearl of great price," and one young man has been truly converted.

Mohan Lál, a Káyath by caste, heard the word at the regularly established preaching in the Colonel Gunge Bázár. He was arrested and troubled by it for many days, until in a meeting, held in the preacher's house, he understood that he could find rest by simply accepting Christ as his personal Saviour. He did accept Christ fully and had the blessed consciousness of being saved. We baptized him last Sabbath morning before a large crowd of people. He can read fluently and write readily, so will be no burden on us financially.

Nawáb Gunge. Mr. Wilbur Fisk has worked here in season and out of season, and has not been unsuccessful during the year. There are not as many children in this place, as in many of our other circuits, still there is a Sabbath school here with an average attendance of 50 scholars, who are all learning to be Christians. The most remarkable thing about this circuit is, the manifest friendly feeling of all classes to our mission work.

God has blessed Mr. Wilbur Fisk's preaching to the salvation of many souls in this promising place.

hundred and thirty of whom have been marched to the Sunday morning service since. In consideration of our assuming the spiritual care of these men, the Government of India, in September authorized a grant of Rs. 100 a month; which is to be continued so long as the number of men does not fall below one hundred.

The services in English have been kept up as usual. Mr. Neeld has conducted the morning service in the Church, and that in the evening at the East India Railway Institute. In both places the attendance has increased. In July a series of special meetings were carried on by Rev. J. Sumner Stone of Calcutta, which resulted in the conversion of about 80 persons; many of them young people in the two schools. Besides this direct result, the spiritual pulse of the entire congregation was perceptibly quickened. Classes have been formed for the benefit of the young converts in both the schools; and in caring for those among the soldiers the Young Men's Christian Association has, as usual, done excellent service.

The two Sunday-schools have maintained their interest throughout the year and the attendance has increased somewhat.

Native work. The chief event of the year in the native work has been the opening of the Industrial School under the superintendence of Dr. Johnson. The large increase reported this year in the number of native Christians has been due chiefly to the importation of boys and young men from Shahjehanpur, and of other persons from different parts of the Mission. It is enough for me to say in general terms that the industrial part of the school has proved to be an unqualified success and that the religious wants of the boys are carefully attended to.

The same methods of evangelistic work as were followed last year have been continued. Bazar preaching has been kept up twice a week at two places, but without special incident. Bibles, other books, and tracts have been sold in greater numbers than ever before. Recently there has been quite a demand for pocket New Testaments in English among Hindu and Musalman young men in the Government school. This demand cannot be traced to their desiring to appear in the examination for the Scripture scholarships. They buy small Testaments, "because," say they, "we can carry them in our pocket easily."

In May, a capital Sciopticon, the gift of the Rev. J. S. Inskip of Philadelphia, and of a few of his friends was received. It has been used with great success, and bids fair to be a most efficient publisher of the Bible History. When pictures are of good quality, like these which have come from Philadelphia, they make a very vivid and lasting impression on the minds of Hindustani people of all ages and classes; and they impress upon the memory the story of the Cross, as bare recital or even impassioned preaching alone could not do.

Sunday-school work has been pushed steadily and with increasing success. We now have no less than a thousand boys and girls in our Sunday-schools, fully eight hundred of whom are Hindus or Musalmans. Out of these we estimate that 150 know the chief events in both the Old and the New Testament history; while 350 more know the main points in the Old Testament history. The remainder are still engaged in mastering the events which preceded the establishment of the Jewish monarchy.

In the Sunday-school work here the crying need is, more unpaid teachers. This year I have had more help of this kind than ever before. Messrs. Neeld, Arthur Foy and Mrs. Foy, Mr. W. Crawford, and several young men, students in the Memorial School, have taught regularly throughout the year; and not a little of the success which has attended the schools among the heathen has been due to their untiring efforts.

During the year, three adults have been baptized. There are very interesting incidents connected with the conversion of each of them; but lack of space compels me to leave them untold. The men appear to be simple, and earnest in their faith in Christ. The fact which perhaps will recommend them most favourably to a certain class of critics at home is that not one of them has ever asked the Missionary for either a cent of money, or for employment. They obey the Apostle's injunction and "work with their hands" that they may have need of nothing. May their tribe increase!

In April, work was opened in Unao, a city ten miles from Cawnpur, north of the Ganges. A Local Deacon, a colporteur, and a native zanana worker have been settled there. The people have received them very kindly. A day school and a Sunday school for boys and for girls have been established. The work promises well; but the working force is painfully small. There are 900,000 people in the Unao District, a population of 588 to the square mile! And yet there is not a Missionary living in the district. Cannot one be supplied?

MEMORIAL SCHOOL.

THE attendance this year has been better than that of the previous year. Our average attendance is 66. We close with 67 on the roll, of these 52 are boarders and 15 day-scholars: three of the boarders are on the Petman Foundation.

The school is in a safer financial condition than it was a year ago. Our current receipts are just about paying ordinary running expenses, including repairs and interest on our large debt. The amount of our interest-bearing debt is Rs. 9,200, added to this we have an endowment of Rs. 10,000, which is invested in the school building, thus the total burden of our debt becomes Rs. 19,200. The prospect of unburdening ourselves is much brighter than it was a year ago.

How I would like to get a quiet hearing from some of our warm-hearted men of wealth, in order to tell them what they could do in the way of endowing scholarships. Rs. 4,000 invested at 6% would provide a perpetual foundation for the education of one young man. By the payment of this sum they would be the means of providing education for boys who would doubtless remain in ignorance, boys who may be made helpful to our mission work: and at the same time greater permanency would be given to this growing institution.

The Memorial School is now the largest and strongest school of our Church in India, and is doing a most important work. Our patrons are in all the leading cities in India: they have the direct oversight of thousands of the natives of this country.

These people constitute the bulk of our English congregations, not only within South India bounds, but also in the large cities of North India: they constitute a class that is, and will be indispensable to our rapidly increasing native work; not only in a financial way, but also in the way of teaching in our native Sunday-schools and day-schools.

They can, if cared for, be made helpful in all our relations to Government. There are industrial institutions growing up under private enterprise which afford our native Christians employment. These institutions are to be chiefly controlled by the people whom we seek to educate. It may be said that they will never become the capitalists; but they will be the foremen, and very much depends upon the Christian spirit of the foremen in our large works here.

The Memorial School is under the joint patronage of the North and South India Conferences, and this being the case our work must look in two directions. First and chiefly, to raising up preachers and industrial missionaries for our native work. Second, to the raising up English preachers for our English churches throughout the empire.

Has 1882 been a good year for work and fruit? Yes.

I. The boys have made marked progress in mental activity, and the classes have been kept under good organization.

II. During the year more than 30 of the boys have been converted. It is this that gladdens the heart of the missionary more than all else. Nearly all our boys have been converted.

III. The general conduct has been very encouraging. We have almost abolished severe corporal punishment and encouraged a spirit of self-government; though in a few cases boys may impose on us, yet in the long run this system of discipline will be best.

IV. Eight of our older boys have been giving our native work efficient help, by teaching in the Sunday-schools. This work is breaking down their inborn prejudice against the natives.

V. Most of the boys have signed the total abstinence pledge, and are just organizing a temperance society among themselves.

VI. Our voluntary weekly prayer-meetings in the bungalow have been well attended, and a deep interest has been manifest.

VII. We have had some difficulties in the form of "evil and designing men," but the Lord has answered our prayers for deliverance.

NATIVE CHRISTIAN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

REV. T. S. JOHNSON, Superintendent.

THIS is the name given to the enterprise inaugurated in connection with the Cloth and Leather Manufactories in the city. The total number now engaged in the work is 116. Of this number 90 are boys from the Shahjahanpur Boys' Orphanage, the remaning 26 are native Christians mostly from Rohilkhund. Eight of the number are women. Of the whole number 78 are in the Muir Cotton Mills and the remaining 38 are in Messrs. Cooper and Allen's Leather Factory. Others undertook the work but turned back,

The steady careful work required made it difficult for the boys and all others, but the large majority have done fairly well. The families are already able to support themselves or nearly so. Nine of the older boys have been placed entirely upon their own earnings, while the monthly earnings of the other boys is more than Rs. 100. Though the expense has been heavy the year will probably be closed without any debt other than that contracted for property. The enterprise should result in great good to the Native Christian community and especially to the Orphanages. It being once established that Native Christians make good workmen, employment can be found in the Manufactories of Cawnpur for many hundreds of them.

REV. SENECA FALLS, Native Minister.

Bro. Benjamin Luke who was stationed here last year and who fell sick after a few months labor, continued ill until he passed from labor to reward. Bro. Falls is a young man and this is his first experience in charge of so responsible a work. Still every interest has been sustained. In September three adults, all Hindus, were baptized, one of whom was a Sadhu, a Hindu saint and teacher. He is an unusually interesting man of his class, he reads Hindi, is greatly interested in the Gospel and wants to go at once among the people to teach it. Another of the men baptized was his disciple and had accompanied him from childhood. He too can read and bids fair to become a worker for Christ; both of these men are already studying and working with the preachers. There are a number of interesting enquirers in the District who are kept back from becoming Christians simply because of want of some means of livelihood after taking such a step. The schools both for boys and girls, are small primary schools in which the gospel is taught. All of the children are attending the Sunday-schools.

BARA BANKI.

REV. A. C. PAUL, Native Minister.

This is a large populous District but the laborers in it are very few. The preaching of the Gospel is listened to with great interest both in the city and in the villages.

A new feature in the work here is that good congregations assemble in the evening thrice a week at the Native Minister's and listen attentively to singing and preaching.

In the four primary schools, two for boys and two for girls, there are 90 scholars, while the Sunday-school attendance in the same schools is 150. The great need is more laborers.

II. BRIEF SKETCH OF CIRCUITS.

BAREILLY. This is a large city of 100,000 people, and the centre of a large Zila of the same name containing a population of 1,030,936. The circuit according to our division contains a part of the Bareilly Zila and the whole of Pilibhit, making a population for the circuit of about 1,000,000. The Theological Seminary and Christian High School, Girls' Orphanage, Female hospital, city Anglo-Vernacular middle school, with thirty small schools for boys and girls, thirty Sunday-schools, a large Zanana work and the usual evangelistic work, constitute the special work of the station. The village work is carried on from five centres under native ^{have} ^{hers.}

This is a circuit of villages in the Bareilly Zila having 600 people residing in about 600 villages. There are thirty-two of these yet, but the work is rapidly spreading from five centres, and there are five primary ministers in charge is a Hindustani Jew of whom we represent all classes.

Khera Bajhera was established by a gift from General Gowan, and his endowment supports most of the work here. There are two schools for boys and two for girls, and there are a few Christians living near the pastor, who is an ordained Local preacher. There are hundreds of villages accessible, and thousands of people, but the work has not spread among them much.

Shahjahanpur. This includes the city of Shahjahanpur containing 77,000 people, and the Zila of the same name containing 850,000. The Boys' Orphanage, one Anglo-Vernacular middle school, twenty-seven primary schools, and thirty-one Sunday-schools with the usual evangelistic and Zanana work constitute the work in the station. There are four sub-circuits for village work.

Panahpur is a Christian village. The people are farmers and are all Christians. There are two schools here for their children.

Budaon. This is also the centre of a large Zila containing 900,000 souls. The old circuit has been divided so that the present circuit contains about 400,000. There is a good Girls' Boarding school here, and the usual middle school for boys, and primary for boys and girls, twenty-six in all. The Sunday-schools contain quite 2000 pupils, this being the banner circuit of the District. An excellent building for our work has just been completed in the city.

Bilsi is a village circuit under a native minister who is pushing forward his work very successfully in the villages. Work is carried on from five centres about ten miles apart. Population of the circuit about 250,000.

Bisauli is also under a native minister and the work is similar to that of Bilsi with hundreds of villages, scores of openings and fair success. Twenty-eight adults have been baptized this year.

Chandauri. This is a large business town of 27,000 people. Mr. Bailey, a Eurasian Local preacher, has charge and has one Anglo-Vernacular School and several small schools. His Sunday-school work is encouraging and his Sunday services are well attended.

Moradabad, as a city contains about 67,000 people. The circuit contains about 500,000. The Girls' Boarding school with 116 girls and a large Anglo-Vernacular middle school with twenty-four primary schools form the special work of the station. The evangelistic work and the Zanana work among the poor people of the city is especially promising. The central Sunday-school for both boys and girls is very interesting and numbers 300. The Sabbath city service has been well attended all the year. The pastoral and evangelistic work is under the charge of a native minister of efficiency.

Bijnour. This is a large circuit including all the Bijnour Zila of 721,000 people. This work is also under the charge of a native minister. There is here also a good Boarding school for girls and two good Anglo-Vernacular schools with the usual other schools and Zanana work. Village work is carried on from seven centres from ten to twenty miles apart.

Of the above work, the Theological Seminary, Boys' Orphanage and three of our circuits are under the charge of missionaries, and eleven of the circuits and all of the sub-circuits are under the charge of native ministers or supplied by native local preachers.

(B.) STATE OF THE CHURCH.

The communicants have increased encouragingly during the past year. Particular attention is paid to all the means of grace of our Church in all the churches and classes, and growth is everywhere manifest. Our churches in the central places will compare well with churches anywhere, in faithful attention to religious duties, and in aiding and supporting the work of the Church, both by their means and by their personal efforts. The village churches, where the people are uneducated, have many weaknesses peculiarly their own, which come with them from their own religions. It is difficult for them to drop at once their old religious customs and to conform in all things to the new. They would prefer still to marry their children while they are wholly under their control, and some of them would prefer to keep the Sabbath in their old way, of keeping a holiday, rather than in going each Sunday regularly to a service. Earnest effort and the spirit of God will correct all this. Each year our people gain in Pastoral support. In nearly every circuit in this District at least one man is supported by the Native church. The Mission money is for evangelistic work outside of the Church.

(C.) EVANGELISTIC WORK.

Our work is nearly all evangelistic. Whether in schools or Sunday-schools, in preaching or Bible reading or teaching from house-to-house or in training up a working church,—the object of all is the saving of this land. Preaching in the bazars is a very general mode of reaching the people and this is carried on everywhere. Preaching at religious melas or fairs is another means of reaching the masses that is constantly used by the Christian teachers. Our most effective means, however, of reaching the people is by visiting them in their villages, or in their houses in the city, and holding little meetings with them. This can be done very effectively where the people are friendly. Our work often spreads rapidly in class lines. A few of a caste are converted, and through these a few others are reached, and the work spreads. A few illustrations are given. One missionary writes:—"During this camping season we have held services daily and people in twenty villages are ready to acknowledge Christ. Among this one class of people all obstacles seem to have been swept away, and our want is not for more converts, but for more men qualified to instruct the inquirers. We find very few men among these people who have any education at all, and we have to begin at the rudiments in training our men." Of another class the same missionary writes:—"We have been working definitely among the Chamars. Five years ago, we determined to leave no stone unturned to make an opening in this class. We began with one small school taught by a Chamar boy. Now we have ten of these schools, and we make them an effective means of imparting Christian truth." These schools are powerful means of evangelistic work and we need hundreds of them. The cost is but a trifle. This missionary says of another, a higher caste:—"During the past three weeks on my tour I have met in various places a score of Thakurs, land-holders, who are convinced of the truth of Christianity and fully and publicly acknowledge Jesus as their only hope. They are not yet ready for baptism and social ostracism, but their intellects are convinced and their testimony is favorable to the promotion of a general acceptance of Christ." Concerning another form of evangelistic work this missionary writes:—"On diligent inquiry I have learnt that our colporteurs are actually selling more Christian books than all the Hindu and Mohammadan booksellers combined. We now distribute in this circuit by sale and gift about ten thousand separate books and tracts per annum."

One says:—"By means of a magic lantern and Scripture pictures I am able to preach Christ among people who would not otherwise come to hear us, and during this year many true inquirers have come to the front in our work. Where we go with our pictures the children have all become our friends and look to us as their teachers. In my last trip I baptized twelve adults and twenty-one children and there are many more asking baptism. The preachers in this circuit have opened four evening schools for young men who have to work days, and thus they are getting a lasting influence over about 40 promising pupils. Several men have broken their caste and eat with us but have not yet been baptized, as their families are holding back and they are waiting to bring them along." Another native minister writes:—"I have worked in thirty-three villages in my circuit and everywhere the interest is increasing. At one village in one of my tours I found a woman who was a Christian and who had been taught to read while with Christians. Her marriage had formerly been made in childhood and she at the usual age was taken to the house of her heathen husband. He was opposed to Christianity and she had no Christian associates. Still she remained firm, and when range from the Brahmin and Rajput to the lowest caste, who constitute, as usual, the majority. Others seem nearly ready to accept Christ and the out-look in two or three directions is very encouraging. Some of the Church members have been earnestly aggressive and faithful in labors among their Hindu friends and acquaintances. Many, though very poor, have contributed from their small earnings in a way that should shame the richer Christians." Another native preacher mentions a 'Mela' held in a vicinity where there were many inquirers, which resulted in much interest and several baptisms of influential men and their families. He also mentions some interesting inquirers near his home among some high caste Hindu friends. From these quotations all interested may note our ways of working and our success in evangelizing the heathen around. No means are left untried. Bazar and mela preaching, visiting from house-to-house by men and women, day schools and night schools and Sunday schools, magic lanterns, out-of-door services, singing and testimony, by all the people, and among all the people accessible, are used and all with success.

(D.) SCHOOLS.

The schools of the district are of various grades, and for different objects so as to adapt them to the wants of the people and of our work.

(1.) The Theological Seminary and Christian High School. This is situated at Bareilly and is under the charge of Dr. T. J. Scott. It was established and endowed, and the buildings were erected through the aid and energy of Rev. D. W. Thomas. The design is to train men for our work; either as preachers or teachers, and in the High School to give to Christian boys, who may desire it, a higher education that will fit them for any position in life. The number of students at present is as follows:—Theological Seminary 24, Normal training school 40, High School, 11. Six students will graduate from the Theological Department in December and about the same number will go out from the Normal. Fifty-seven men in all have graduated from the Theological Seminary and nearly all are doing well. The Board of Trustees of this institution has lately been registered according to an act of Government and is thus constituted a legal body. The endowment in India is mostly invested in dwelling houses for Europeans, and these have all been leased for five years to one person on an annual rental of Rs. 5,000, thus giving us a regular income, and saving us from a “world of care.” We need Rs. 40,000 more endowment very much for teacherships. This institution has been a most important auxiliary in the efficiency of our work.

(2.) Two Orphanages.—One of these for boys is at Shahjehānpur, and the one for girls is at Bareilly. The average number of pupils in each is about 250. We receive much aid in the support of these from Government, which gives two rupees per month for each orphan sent in by a Magistrate during the years of famine. Government also gives a liberal grant for the education of the children. During the present year nearly one hundred boys have been removed to Cawnpur and placed in a cotton mill and in a shoe shop there, where they will be soon able to earn their own living. They are still kept under the care of a missionary and are faithfully taught. The boys who remain in the Orphanage are all learning trades in connection with their studies. In the workshop is a department for making shoes, one for furniture, one for iron work, one for clothes and one for cord and twine, while all the small boys work daily in the fields adjoining the school. When the boys can do a piece of work by themselves well, a small allowance is given them for each piece of work accomplished. In the girls orphanage the girls are all taught all kinds of work with reference to their future usefulness in their homes, as well as given a thorough education with reference to their influence in the community where they may live. These two schools have sent out many consistent intelligent Christian men and women, and many faithful workers in God’s vineyard.

(3.) Central Anglo-Vernacular or Middle Schools. There is one of these Central Schools for boys at the centre of each zila or court district. They provide an education fitting pupils for practical work of any kind. They teach up to the first Government Examination which includes the same Vernacular course as is required for Entrance to the University, with the History of India, Geography of the world, all of Arithmetic, Algebra through simple Equations, three books of Euclid and a good practical business knowledge of the English language. These schools are attended mostly by Hindu and Mohammadan boys of the better classes of people, and it is through these that we secure much influence in the community. There are at present six of these schools in Rohilkhund with about 650 boys in attendance. The Bible is a daily class book and each school is opened by reading a portion of scripture and prayer. As Missionary Society, though much aid is also secured in this country.

(5.) Primary Schools. There are 148 of these in the District with 3008 pupils in attendance. A few of these teach primary English also, but most of them teach only vernacular. The course of study includes reading and writing in Hindi or Urdu, with Geography of India, and arithmetic through simple and compound rules. About half of these schools are for girls and are among respectable classes of Hindus and Mohammadans; many of those for boys are among inquirers or native Christians among the village people of the lower classes who have never before been educated at all. In most of the circuits there is a desire to increase the number of these schools very largely, and aid can be secured in this country for them. In Badaon city where five years ago there was only one such school, there are ten now, and Mr. Hoskins desires to increase them to 40. This is a fair specimen of the demand for such schools, and no work can be done that will aid more in raising up an intelligent Native church than will such school work. The parents are also instructed by the Christian teachers, and will be baptized as fast as we can teach them the way, and the children will grow up well instructed in the truth. Religious instruction is an important part of the course of study. We desire to arrange for promoting one or two boys from each primary school annually to a central school for a more completed education, that will fit them to secure good positions anywhere.

Thus, as will be seen, our school work is exactly adapted to meet the demands of the people and of our work. The entire number of pupils in the district is 4483.

ROHILKHUND DISTRICT.

(E.) SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

These are growing and increasing everywhere throughout our work. A few of these are for Christians only. Others are mixed, Christians and non-Christians meeting together, while many are held among Hindu and Mohammadan boys or girls. The model school of the District, perhaps, is at Moradabad. It usually numbers about 300 in attendance and all three religions are always represented, the girls and women occupying one side of the large hall, and the boys and men the other side. In the general exercises all take part, and usually in connection with these some boy or girl reads an essay, and another has a recitation illustrating the lesson. All classes take part in this also. At the quarterly examination 54 pupils of this school passed the first examination, giving the subjects, the selected verses, the outlines and the golden texts of all the lessons for the quarter perfectly. The secret of the success of our Sunday-schools is that we try to interest the children and teach them as children, not as Hindus or Mohammadans. What one missionary says in his report is true of all the districts:—"Our Sunday-school work has grown beyond our most sanguine expectations. We can secure more children than we can possibly instruct." We teach the Berean Lessons in connection with the historical catechism.

Conclusion. Our purpose is to push forward our work in all these departments. We shall labour to confirm the Native Church in faith and love and in the pure morality of the Gospel, and we shall lead forward the inquirers among the accessible classes as far as we can teach them. With this object in view we shall increase our primary schools and Sunday-schools, as fast as God gives us the men and means, so as to raise up an intelligent Church. We shall endeavour to increase the efficiency of the high and middle schools, making then more and more auxiliaries in our evangelistic work and training schools for fitting our boys and young men for all positions of usefulness.

and a portion is from the Missionary Society. This District was formed at the beginning of this year, and placed under a native Presiding Elder who has full charge of his work. He has worked very faithfully during the year, and his wife has also visited all the work with him, visiting and encouraging the Christian women, and directing the Bible-women and teachers of the girls' schools. Very few men are found who devote their time, talents, money, all, to a work more faithfully than Rev. Zahur-ul-Haqq is doing in this work. He had been a leader in it for many years before the field became a District. His reports of the circuits given below, will give a good idea of the field and work.—EDITOR.

SAMBHAL.

THIS is an old city of the Hindus, and is still a place of resort and pilgrimage. There is a good boys' school in the city attended by the higher classes. At three places in the outskirts of the city, there are also three small schools for the poor people. These are encouraging, as many of the pupils and their parents are inquirers, and a few have been baptized. There are also three girls' schools among the Mahommadans in which good work is done. At Sirsi, a sub-circuit six miles away, there are also two girls' schools. These schools give us many friends among the people.

Sháhpur.—Rev. Prem Dass was the pastor here, but he has lately been called to his rest. He was a very loving, true man, faithful in all his work. He was working among the Chamars and was a leader in this work, having formerly been a priest among the people. His place is supplied by Muassi Singh at present. There are about 30 Christians of all ages in this circuit, and in the surrounding villages there are many inquirers. During this year some of the Christians have been severely tempted to return back to their old caste and religion, but through the great mercy of God all are still firm, and we hope that through this Church many others will be led to Jesus. There are three women in this village who are rendering great assistance in the work.

Rasúlpur is a small village, but in it, and in four neighboring villages, there are about 50 Christians. The children of the people are taught by the preacher in connection with his other work. These people are poor but they are happy, trusting in God.

Sharikpur.—There are eight villages in this circuit in which Christians live, and the people of all the villages around are instructed. There are some inquirers in these villages who will soon, we believe, receive Christ. One woman is working faithfully in this circuit, and at one place there is an encouraging interest among the women of the village.

Gangesri is also a small village where work has been carried on for five years. Two young men who were taught by the pastor here were sent to the Bareilly Normal School, and four other lads are away at school seeking fitness for work, and there are ten boys still being taught at home. There has been a good increase in this circuit this year, and many are inquiring and will soon be baptized. The Christians are less scattered here than in most of the circuits.

Hassanpur.—This is a large town. There is a good boys' school here and ten or twelve Christian boys from other parts of the circuit are usually found in this school. This year ten who were formerly taught here, were promoted to the Moradabad school for a better education, and ten more were gathered in. This school gathers in the boys of the best people of the town, and the Government inspector has always spoken well of it. All the boys of this school attend Sunday-school, and this Sunday-school is the best in the District. There is also a school for Chamar children with 25 pupils in attendance. A girls' school of 16 girls is also doing good work. Pithkhera is a sub-circuit of Hassanpur, where in the surrounding villages there are many Christians and inquirers. Gulab the exhorter in charge goes daily among these villages.

Babukhera.—At this village the work of this District first commenced. There are Christians in the villages around, but the work is not as prosperous as we could wish. It being the oldest circuit, the people are inclined to demand extra favors instead of giving extra aid, and hence the first seems in danger of becoming last of all.

Amroha.—This is a large city. Much work is done here in the bazars and at the homes of the people, and there are some Christians and many inquirers in the city. Sixteen people were baptized here this year. There is a school for the Chamars but it is at present small. Christian songs are frequently heard in different parts of this city by inquirers and are found in many villages and where the work of gathering in is faithfully carried on. There is a little school here also taught by the pastor.

The most discouraging feature of the work in this District is the scattered condition of the people who are Christians. As usual, from one to three families only are found in each village, so that it is very difficult to teach the children, and also almost impossible to secure regular attendance in Sunday worship, or to form regular classes for class and prayer-meetings. Hence the people do not grow in knowledge and Christian experience as rapidly as they would, could these difficulties be overcome. For the same reason their growth in willingness to support their own pastors is slow, and the amount contributed by them is small. They are poor and to give is indeed a sacrifice, but they are not as poor as when they became Christians, and they are industrious and honest and support themselves, while formerly many of them were thieves and did little work. We labour hard to overcome these hinderances, and to lead the people to regular religious habits in every respect. In every quarterly conference the lesson of giving is impressed upon their minds. One fact is encouraging: many of the people of this same class were gathered together in a Christian village where they could be better taught, but those who remained in their former scattered condition are more industrious and more independent and aid more in the work of God than those who were brought together.

The encouraging feature of the work is that the people are growing and improving slowly in every respect and many new openings are now being found into other castes. When the number of Christians in each village will be increased the difficult problems will be much easier to solve.

THE general condition of the District has perhaps never been better, and encouraging advancement is apparent in almost every line of work. The statistics will show a marked growth in the number of communicants and of the Christian community, and a still greater growth in our schools and Sunday-schools. Not only is the advance apparent from increased members, but it is clear to those familiar with our people, that they are becoming more intelligent, consistent and earnest Christians from year to year. It is true, there have been painful exceptions to this rule, but not less true, that the rule is advancement. Our District Conference in the end of September and beginning of October, was a season of marked spiritual profit. It was attended for the benefit of the religious services, by numbers not connected with the Conference. This occasion is becoming more and more a blessing to our whole work.

New and important openings for work have appeared in various places. Our greatest want seems to be preachers and Christian teachers, men of earnest piety and zeal, who can enter these needy fields and develop work. For this work, however, we must depend mostly on native agency, and we are glad to report seven young men as having joined us in this labor recently or as preparing to do so in the near future. Below are given the reports of the various stations.

porters of former years by changes incident to European life, yet the current expenses of the Church have been promptly met by the voluntary contributions of the people, and the debt on the Church building reduced by something over Rs. 2,000.

II. The work among the Native residents of Naini Tal has in many respects greatly improved in interest. The depression caused by the "landslip" has passed away in a great measure and at no time since the establishment of our mission here in 1858, has the outlook been as promising as at the present. Naini Tal itself has not been a fruitful field. A large amount of seed has been sown in the minds of the present population, by preaching in the Bazaars and in the school, which has seemed to be lost or to have produced but little actual fruit. Though the "word preached" has not seemed to "profit them not being mixed with faith in them that heard it," still it is very manifest that it has not been without its effect upon the thinking of the people. They are not as they once were. Many changes for the better are apparent in the lives of the people. They are singularly free from prejudices against our holy religion, and very many of them are, I believe, fully convinced of its Divine origin and sacred character.

And not a few of the men of business of Naini Tal are being strongly drawn towards Christ. I have often been told by men of this class that the day is not distant when the trammels of caste will be shaken off and many, now believing in their hearts in secret, will take their stand openly as the followers of Christ.

Then will the laborers see the fruit of their toil and be glad. We are sure to reap if we faint not even here in Naini Tal.

The interest of the people in various phases of our work among them is very gratifying indeed.

During the past season at the instance of a kind friend, S. E. Marston Esq., they raised over Rs. 500 to assist us in our medical work and school. The native residents of Naini Tal are liberal and always ready to respond to calls for aid in our work.

The Boys' School has been well attended during the season and we bid fair to have a larger attendance during the cold season than ever before in this part of the year.

We hope to have arrangements made in future for the education of promising lads from the native Christian community in the Bhabar. A beginning has been made during this year in this direction for the Christian girls, which we hope to expand next year somewhat.

BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL, NAINI TAL.

REV. H. F. KASTENDIECK, Principal.

THE number of pupils in attendance this year is slightly in advance of last year. The number enrolled last year was 52, this year 61. Five teachers are employed.

Most of the boys have been diligent in study and have conducted themselves very creditably. Out-of-door exercise is greatly encouraged and enjoyed; and this, no doubt, accounts largely for the good health we have among our scholars. A volunteer cadet company was organized this year, and the boys have just completed their first annual course of drill.

But while we seek their comfort and pleasure, and opportunities for their physical development, it is our chief purpose to give attention to the culture of mind and heart, that our youth may become intelligent Christian men. Services at the church are attended three times every week, and Sabbath-school every Sunday. Morning and evening prayers are regularly conducted at the school. Special meetings are held from time to time in the school building and addresses delivered on suitable topics.

On the 13th of October the school was examined by the Director of Public Instruction. His report speaks highly of the Senior department, but not so well of the Junior classes—latter being deficient in Definition and Arithmetic. It refers to the need of furniture and other school requisites, and adds that if the committee should carry out the proposed arrangements, they would be justified in applying for an increased grant. The amount received from the Government this year is Rs. 150 per month. Through the kind interest of Mrs. Humphrey, a successful public entertainment was given, the proceeds of which were applied to the purchase of needed furniture. The committee have concluded arrangements for supplying whatever else may be now needed.

Five boys have passed the Lower Standard examination in Hindustani, one is ready for the Higher Standard. Two will appear for the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University. We expect them to pass.

usual. Extensive itinerating tours have been made and this work has been encouraging, though nothing specially new is to be reported. The School and Sunday-school work has grown somewhat and all our religious services have been regularly carried on.

II. Special Services. Two protracted meetings, each continuing several days, have been held and were occasions of much spiritual profit to our Christians and several from without also seemed to be deeply impressed in these services. Numbers who, though for some time Christian in name, never before had come out into the clear light of Christian experience, did so in these meetings. At one of these gatherings one man with his family, who had long been impressed with the truth of Christianity but undecided, after a social service of much interest, presented himself for baptism and stated that he had received a view of the Gospel then never before received. He and his family were baptized and are now numbered with our people. Another man who was ill and supposed to be beyond the hope of recovery was baptized at the same meeting. He has since been restored to health. Indeed improvement began almost from the time of his baptism.

The spiritual light and joy of numbers of these village Christians, whose stock of general knowledge and information is very limited indeed, is truly marvelous from a human standpoint, yet quite in accord with the work of Him who "hideth these things from the wise and understanding and revealeth them unto babes."

III. Results and fruit. Beyond what has been indicated above, a few facts are given. In the case of some not yet Christians deep impressions have been made. One man, a land-holder of some prominence, was with the native minister of this charge a few days and felt so deeply the word addressed to him that he begged no more might be said or he could not resist the truth and it would be better for him in his position to destroy his life than to become a Christian. He belongs to a high caste family. The lower castes seem to find it much less difficult to accept the Gospel.

In one village a dozen or so belonging to one of the lower castes, join the Christian preacher in prayer freely, kneeling with him and repeating the petitions after him. It is strongly hoped a good number of these will soon accept fully the Gospel of Christ.

From a region adjoining this charge letters have come during the year asking that mission work be opened among them, and a short time since about fifteen came to visit the native minister in Haldwani but unfortunately he was absent at the time. It is hoped soon to hold a series of services with these people. It seems a hopeful opening.

God is with His people in this field and some fruit unto eternal life is being gathered, but truly the harvest is great and the labourers are few.

EASTERN KUMAON.

The year has been one of quiet work, with nothing striking or new. Old plans have been worked with gratifying success, heathen have been brought to the knowledge of Christ and have been baptized. The growth of the Church in spiritual knowledge has been marked, in some cases very marked. The influence of the Church on the surrounding heathenism for good has exceeded that of any year in the past, so that the prospect of increase in numbers grows daily. Some of those reported as enquirers last year have been baptized, while others remain as enquirers, and still others there are regarding whom we have great hope.

The special lines of work may be well reviewed separately.

I. The Medical work has increased beyond any year in the past. Funds having been raised in this country, the dispensary building at Pithoragarh has been enlarged and in consequence the work has increased. This work has also led to a large amount of itinerating among the villages round about. The influence this medical work has had in an evangelistic sense has been good, but it must also be confessed that the work of these past years has developed the idea among the people that preacher and doctor mean nearly the same, that is that a preacher doctors and a doctor preaches. As those cases are rare in which any one special act had led to the conversion of individuals in this country, we can take courage regarding this medical work, recognizing it as one among many agencies employed in bringing people to Christ.

II. Day-schools have been kept up at various points as usual and have done more or less good. Their value as an evangelistic agency depends much on the extent to which they are pushed. The conditions of the work in this field do not permit us to do as much through these Schools as might be, still they have contributed a share especially in the work of arousing thought in the minds of the people.

hope for many more who will be called upon to endure the same or more.

DWARAHAT CIRCUIT.

REV. P. M. BUCK, Missionary.

The year has been characterized by more than usual of both trials and encouragement in our work. The former have arisen mainly from unfulfilled hopes with regard to some who seemed near the kingdom, and unsuccessful efforts to lead others into the light of true Christian life, who have long borne the Christian name. On the other hand, in the general prospects of our work and in the lives of our Christian people as well, there has been much to give us hope for the future.

A brief summary will perhaps best reveal the present condition of and the outlook for the cause of Christ in this new field.

I. Schools. In March last a Government grant in-aid for this work was secured which enabled the Missionary to advance somewhat the grade of the school in Dwarahat proper and to open three new primary schools. The attendance in the six schools we now have will be during the season favourable for these cultivating classes between three and four hundred. In July last Maharajah Holkar of Indore while on his return from the shrines above passed through Dwarahat and being pleased that Sanscrit had been introduced into the school at this point, very kindly gave for this work a donation of Rs. 500. This amount, supplemented somewhat from other sources has enabled the missionary to begin the erection of buildings to serve as a boarding-house for both Hindu and Christian boys who may wish to avail themselves of the benefit of the school here. A number of boys are already on our hands who will thus be provided for, and several applications have been made for admission as soon as the place is ready. The prospects of success in this work are encouraging.

II. Evangelistic Work. During the year a good amount of preaching work in various parts of this field has been done and in not a few hearts to all appearance the power of the truth has been felt. Bible views with a magic lantern have often drawn crowds from one to four hundred, and in this way the workers have been able to do very much more than could have been done by the ordinary process of village visitation. Enough has come to the surface in this work to prove to us that the gospel leaven is making its influence felt. In Dwarahat proper where the efforts put forth have been more concentrated and continuous, it seems manifest that Hindu superstitions are to some extent losing ground and Christianity is becoming more and more a subject of thought and a theme of conversation. Our District Conference, held at this point recently, seemed to create on the minds of numbers a profound impression. This was especially true of the deep spirit of love that pervaded the social meetings which excited remark. One educated young man who had hitherto been one of our boldest opposers, said he had never seen Christianity on this wise before, and he had grave doubts whether Christ would not in the end conquer him.

One man came to us a short time since and expressed a desire to become a Christian who was for some time under the care of a former missionary in these hills twenty years ago or more, when he was a little boy. The love the missionary had shown him especially had left an abiding impression. He is now under instruction and will probably be baptized at no distant day. He has a large circle of relations in this region and if he becomes a true Christian his conversion may be looked upon as the beginning of a work that is likely to spread.

III. Church Work.—(a.) Sunday-schools. These have increased from one to three and the attendance from 40 to 140. This work has grown much in interest.

(b.) Public Services. These, for a place so new, have been full of interest. Not only have they been attended by our Native Christians and the few enquirers about us, but from 30 to 50 village people have generally been present and have listened with attention and interest to the gospel. This work has been encouraging to those carrying it on. During the year the pressing need of a small place of worship has so grown upon us that we have been almost compelled to undertake the erection of a building for this purpose. Our people cheerfully subscribed half a month's income each, and recently the foundation has been laid. It will be 18 by 28 feet and will cost about Rs. 400. It is proposed to finish it without the expenditure of Mission funds.

(c.) Miscellaneous. Social meetings, daily prayers and Bibleclasses have regularly been carried on as circumstances permitted, for the training of our three or four vagabonds among a community of 300 souls. At the annual camp meeting 200 were present; and it was a profitable time for nearly all who were there.

There are 28 schools with 774 names on the rolls.

The Paori Boys' school is in a very fine condition: but the Sreenagar school has not done well. This is due, (1) to the opposition of the high caste Hindus, and (2), to the Head Master's conduct which has not been above reproach.

The village schools in charge of Brothers Khiyali and Patras are well taught.

The children in the village schools are thoroughly drilled in the catechism and Sunday-school lessons; and are also taught a few hymns. The schools are good in proportion to the time expended upon them. Given a lazy teacher and a careless preacher, high caste boys can pass through a mission school without learning one Christian truth.

There are twelve Sunday-schools with 581 names. Of these, the Paori and Sreenagar and Dhatwali schools are really good. The remaining nine have a name to live while they are dead. Still it is a good deal to have them started. A little more patience and training of the teachers will make them good schools.

There are several drawbacks to this work: (1), Self-support makes slow head-way, (2), The people are in debt. (3), Many would rather beg than work, (4) The people will not leave their homes in search of work or will not move to a better part of the Circuit where they can buy land, (5) The people in their natural state are very unattractive, (6)

Untrained helpers, (7) Laziness, which is the cause of the six hinderances mentioned above. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, to any one acquainted with this work it is full of hope. Fifty baptisms a year are enough to cheer the most hopeless worker : and to see the people improving in soul and body is encouraging : and to see them repenting causes us joy as it does the angels in Heaven.

There has been a good deal of sickness during the year and we now mourn for one little girl as those who have hope.

“ The joy of the Lord is your strength.”

GARHWAL MEDICAL WORK.

REV. P. T. WILSON, M. D., Superintendent.

Seven Government hospitals, all told, of which number six are for pilgrims to the shrines above, have been under Dr. Wilson's care. Besides these, he has been in charge of the Mission Dispensary at Paori. Most of his time has been employed on tours of visitation to these institutions or carrying on his professional work in connection with the more important of them. This field furnishes not only frequent opportunities to afford relief to the bodies of men, but in a quiet way many can be instructed in gospel truth, and not a little work has in this line been done. Services in different parts of Garhwal have been held as circumstances have permitted, and personal conversations have been very numerous. Two men have been employed a good part of the year to assist in the distribution of Christian literature. It has been painful to meet many to whom almost no relief could be given, especially in view of the fact that the hearts of most of those are by ignorance and superstition closed against the consolation and comfort Christ would so gladly impart. The fruit of labour done in this field cannot generally be seen, as it is largely bestowed on the pilgrims who soon return to their distant homes in many parts of India.

Resolved,—(1) That the members of this Conference hereby express their decided conviction that at least six foreign missionaries should join us during the present year; (2) that if possible these men should be sent at once, or at latest by September next; (3) that we most earnestly request Bishop Foster and Dr. Reid who see our need and know the urgency of the case, to make a special plea to the Members of the Missionary Board in our behalf and do all in their power to secure for us the needed re-inforcements: provided that our present appropriations for work be not lessened, as this can not be done at present without great harm to the varied interests of our Church in India.

E. W. PARKER.

Resolved—(1) That in preparing their estimates for salaries of native preachers for the next meeting of our Finance Committee, our Presiding Elders are hereby instructed to prepare a scheme showing how much may be realized in each place for self-support, said amount to go forward in an itemized exhibit to the General Committee, the amounts realized in each circuit to be appropriated within the bounds of the circuit where it is raised.

J. H. MESSMORE,
T. J. SCOTT.

Having heard with much pleasure of the contemplated visit to this country, during the present year, of our beloved brother and sister, the Rev. William Butler, D.D. and Mrs. Butler,

Resolved,—That we will pray that God will grant them a prosperous journey to us, that we will cordially welcome them to our homes and the scenes of their former labors, and will do our utmost to make their sojourn among us agreeable and profitable.

E. W. PARKER,
JAMES MUDGE.

Resolved,—That we desire as a Conference to express the great pleasure we have had from the visit of Bishop R. S. Foster, D.D., LL.D., at our present Conference sessions.

We regret that he cannot see more of our work in the various stations; but we feel sure he will still see enough to convince him of the greatness of our work and of its pressing demands and that he will be able to represent to our beloved Church at home the needs of the millions of perishing souls within our borders.

We earnestly pray that God's blessing may attend him as he goes from us to other fields of labor, and to assure him that we shall not forget the wise counsel he has given us and for the precious Word of Divine truth he has so clearly and powerfully presented to us in our public assemblies.

J. L. HUMPHREY,
J. H. GILL.

Resolved,—That it has given us no ordinary pleasure to welcome to our midst and to a more intimate acquaintance with our work, the Rev. J. M. Reid, D.D., Senior Corresponding Secretary of our Missionary Society, New York, U. S. A. His visit among us has been unique—the first official visit of the kind with which any of our missions in heathen lands has been favored. We sincerely hope it may not be the last. All who have met Dr. Reid whether in social or official relations, have pleasure in acknowledging the benefits received from his wise counsels, his godly admonitions, and his able pulpit and platform teachings. His manifest interest in looking into all branches and departments of our work, so far as time permitted, his visits to our homes, and his uniform urbanity, have won all our hearts. We desire that he carry back with him our warmest Christian greetings to the heart of the home church, to which he will so soon appeal on behalf of our great work, and the need we have of more workers. We desire to mark this visit as an epoch in our Mission's history, and pray that the heart of our honored Secretary, and of the great church which he represents, may be made glad by the news which we hope soon to send forward, of greater triumphs here in India in these strongholds where Satan has so long had his seat.

Resolved,—That the visits of Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Lore and Miss Lore among us have been to us all a pleasure and a blessing, and that we heartily approve the plan now so happily initiated, of the elect ladies from Western homes, coming to and visiting our humble homes, and the still humbler homes of the women of India, and more particularly looking into the work of our sisters, and learning to appreciate its difficulties and its assured success. We are sure these thrice-welcomed visitors, now too soon to leave us, will bear with them to the churches and homes of America words of cheer concerning our work, and the warmest Christian love of all our hearts.

J. W. WAUGH,
T. J. SCOTT.

Resolved,—That we have heard with sorrow of the long affliction of our beloved brother, the Rev. David Terry of New York, for so many years Recording Secretary of the Missionary Society, and for a long lifetime the warm, sincere and sympathising friend of missions and missionaries in every land. We pray for our dear brother now "in age and feebleness extreme," asking the Father of all mercies to bless him in love. We cannot return all his kindness to us, but we ask that one of our number be appointed to send him a letter of sympathy, of greeting, of love, if through God's mercy he still lingers on the shores of time.

J. W. WAUGH,

being an increase of Rs. 6,139. By far the greater part of this increased expenditure has been in Oudh District; and especially in the stations of Lucknow and Sitapur, and on the Gonda circuit. There have also been considerable advances in Bareilly, Shahjehanpur and Budaon.

It is believed that the money to meet this increase has come largely from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. Leaving out of the account the Memorial schools in Cawnpur, which are for English-speaking people, the average cost of educating each pupil has been largest in Lucknow, next in Bareilly, and next in Shahjehanpur. The existence of Orphanages in the two stations last named, accounts for the large average cost there; while the advance of the Centennial to the grade of a High School has run up the average in Lucknow.

The total number of Christian children on the rolls at the end of the year was 1878. Of these 974 are boys, and 904 are girls. This is an increase of only 37 over last year's numbers.

What proportion this number bears to the whole number of native Christian children who are of the right age to attend school, it is difficult to determine; because the register of baptized children is, as a rule, less fully and accurately kept than any other. In this direction reform is urgently needed. Still, assuming the age of school-going to be from five to fifteen years, it may be inferred with a tolerable degree of certainty that about 300 Christian children in the Mission who ought to have been in school last year, were not there.

Two facts relating to the sex of the native Christian demand attention.

1. While 125 more girls are now reading in the schools than in 1881, there were actually 118 fewer boys in school in 1882, than were there the year before.

2. There are now 73 more girls than boys being taught English.

It is also worthy of notice that for every Christian child which we are educating, the Mission provides tuition for four Hindus or Mahomedans, and that the greater part of the increase in the educational outlay has been to provide better facilities for these. When we reflect that there are about 300 Christian children in the Mission who are growing up in ignorance, chiefly on account of the deep poverty of their parents, it seems reasonable that more money should be withdrawn from general education, and devoted to the training of Christian children. Still such a beneficent policy would involve a danger; for it is certain that already more than half the Christian children now in our schools are being supported almost entirely at the expense of the Mission. This unwelcome fact we believe to result from the almost universal poverty of the Christians. The native preachers whose income is known to all, are, as a class, making earnest efforts to educate their children at their own charges. But care is needed lest, in our anxiety to secure pupils for the different boarding schools, a spirit of rivalry spring up which will result in such favourable terms being offered to Christian parents as will completely demoralize them.

Toward the close of the school year different members of your Board of Education visited and examined several of the Conference schools. The standard of proficiency was found to be that usually maintained in Mission schools; but by no means uniform in schools of the same grade. It is very clear that under existing circumstances the schools cannot be examined as thoroughly by the Board of Education as is desirable. Its members are too heavily burdened with other duties, to attend very efficiently to this very important one. Hence, we are constrained to ask the Conference to request Misses Thoburn and Sparkes, Mrs. Gill, Knowles and Grant to assist during the current year, the schools under the patronage of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

But few pupils have been sent up for the different Government examinations. Still the schools sending them have been fairly successful in passing candidates. In this respect, the Centennial school heads the list, having passed five out of the 10 boys who were sent up for the Entrance Examination. Unhappily, none of the successful candidates were Christians.

The girls boarding school in Budaon has passed four pupils in the Upper Primary Examination; while that at Moradabad has passed 33 into the Upper-Primary Class.

These new boarding schools for girls under the patronage of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, have been accepted by the Ladies' Conference, and recommended to this body to be recognized as Conference institutions, and put under the direction of the Board of Education. That at Naini Tal under the superintendence of Miss Knowles, has already, by special resolution, been granted that privilege. Your Board registers.

We recommend further, with a view to ascertaining how much money is raised in India for the support of our schools, that the grants-in-aid and the amounts collected in fees be reported in separate columns.

We again call attention to the rule of the Finance Committee that all estimates for schools must be accompanied by a statement of the number of schools, and of the scholars in attendance in each, the grade of the school and the monthly expenses.

With profound satisfaction we chronicle the fact that the Rev. and Mrs. Jno. F. Goucher of Baltimore, U. S. A., have provided for the establishment and maintenance, for five years, at their own expense, of 50 village schools; and have given 100 scholarships to be given to boys selected from these schools. The enterprise is full of hope, and cannot fail to do great good to a class of people for whom Government is doing nothing in an educational line.

II.—ON SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

In reviewing the state of our Sunday-schools it affords your Committee great satisfaction to state that the number of Sunday-schools within the bounds of the Conference has increased during the past year from 281 to 344, and the officers and teachers from 469 to 554, and the grand total of scholars of all ages from 13,111 to 15,399. It is also encouraging to note the high average attendance of 14,006. This shows that the scholars are interested in the Sunday-schools and that they have been faithful in attendance. It is also pleasing to learn that in many places there are flourishing Sunday-schools which have no connection with the secular schools, but are voluntary institutions costing from only one to three rupees per month. This is as it should be, if we expect to reach the masses of India. In some places also Government teachers assemble their pupils on Sundays for religious instruction, and the maktabs and pátshálas are open to us as centres around which we can gather thriving Sunday-schools. It is a matter of thankfulness and gratitude to God that he has so opened up the way that there exists to-day but little or no opposition to this grand work, and were there sufficient agents to carry it on, fully one-third of the children in these provinces, amounting to millions, might be under religious instruction.

But while there are so many things to encourage and cheer us in this noble work, it should not dampen our ardor or check our enthusiasm to call attention to a few things not so encouraging. Is it not a matter of deep regret that there are so few teachers to be employed in this work? And do we not find that many of those already employed are themselves almost as ignorant as their pupils and show but little interest in their work? Are there not laymen who could engage in this most interesting form of evangelism, and thus do themselves and others good, but who manifest no interest in it whatever? Some of our helpers even show but little tact or skill in organizing and maintaining these schools, and are deficient in zeal and enthusiasm so essential to success in this work. How difficult it often is to provide funds to carry on this work as it should be carried on. We often see where a little expenditure of money would help the work greatly and yet so great are the demands for other things and so small the source of supply, that it is impossible to do so. Is there not a loud call for new and more and better requisites of a variety of kinds to please and instruct the scholars and brighten up the schools rooms and attract the people?

Your Committee heartily recommend that (1), Great attention should be given by all our missionaries to the training and developing of an agency for this work, and every effort should be made in those stations where Europeans reside, to enlist their sympathies in this work, and if possible, secure their services and financial help. Teachers' meetings should be maintained in every station and they should, as far as possible, take the form of normal classes, so that the teachers may not only learn the lessons but also how to teach them. Every available man and woman should be pressed into this service and sent forth to gather in and teach the children.

(2.) That the children, Christian and non-christian, themselves should be interested in and encouraged to do charitable and evangelistic work. In all the central schools collections should be taken up for some benevolent purpose and wherever practicable, the schools should be organized into missionary societies. Let the children themselves pass things tend to impress our work upon the masses and to overcome their prejudices and disarm their fears.

(5.) That above all, and always, we should unite with our zeal and earnestness much prayer and supplication that the Sunday-school scholars committed to our charge be not only familiarized with the truths of our religion but also converted to God. This should be the great aim and object of the enterprise. Without this our work will be a failure, but with it, it will be a continual and glorious success.

III.—ON TEMPERANCE.

It is evident that drunkenness is greatly on the increase, especially among the lower classes of these Provinces.

Respectable Hindus and Mahommedans are engaged in this traffic on the plea that they do so with Government sanction.

To augment the revenue Government has largely increased the out-still system and has caused liquor shops to be opened in all sections of the country; this has resulted in a great increase of drunkenness and misery.

It is our bounden duty to use every lawful means for the mitigation of this terrible scourge. In order to accomplish this, we must develop public sentiment and educate the public conscience in opposition to intemperance.

Public meetings should be held and the help of friendly Hindus and Mahomedans should be secured, and petitions circulated through the country for the decrease of the abkari system, temperance societies, and all the people encouraged to pledge themselves for total abstinence. A modified form of the Blue Ribbon Army should be introduced, articles should be prepared and furnished to the Native Papers and contracts on temperance should be circulated through the country and every lawful means should be used to rouse and develop public opinion.

IV.—REPORT OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

We are able to report the affairs of our Press to be in a prosperous condition. This will best be indicated by a brief reference to the kind and amount of work done during the past year. The aggregate number of volumes, large and small, issued amount to about 420,000, making some 5,500,000 pages of printed matter. Twelve publications have been issued numbering from 100 to 450 pages each. Seven publications have been issued numbering from 50 to 100 pages each. Six have been printed under 50 pages each. We may in this review of the work done, remind you of some of the books printed during the year. In English we have the Sunday-school Manual, and a third volume of "Good Stories." A delightful book of stories consisting of 372 pages was issued in Roman-Urdu, also in Roman-Urdu Makhzan-i-Ilm-i-Ilahi, a manual of Theology. We have Hidayat-ul-Waizin, a book on Homiletics in lithographed-Urdu; Tafsir-i-Khuruj or second volume of a commentary on the Old Testament. We have the remaining parts of the translation of Josephus into Urdu. We have a reprint of the catechism of the Bible with an edition of a much larger catechism of the Bible, which will be invaluable in our Sunday-school work. Large editions of small Urdu and Hindi story books were issued, just the thing for Sunday-schools. A new Sunday-school Hymn book of 136 pages, lithographed-Urdu, has just been printed at the very low price of two pice a copy. Besides these books, an immense amount of important matter as is known, has flowed in a perpetual stream from our Press, without which the efficiency of our large and growing Sunday-school work could hardly be maintained. The improvement in the Kaukabi i Hind has been manifest to all.

A considerable number of passed MSS. are in the hands of the Superintendent of the Press, some of which, it is hoped, will soon be issued. We may state that with the exception of two prize essays on Self-support, and a small tract on Hindu autar, all the work passed by the committee during the year has been issued, or is in course of publication. Your committee especially desire now the preparation of interesting Sunday-school books and also books adapted to develop and foster the spiritua life of the Church. The field of controversy with non-christianity has been pretty well covered.

A matter of great importance in relation to the Press is the circulation of what is printed. It is in vain to print if we do not circulate. Piles upon piles of publications are lying at our Press exposed to the ravages of insects and of the climate. Their so lying is but little proof that they are valueless. Books are very rare in any land that create their own demand. The circulation of our publications is largely in the hands of the Missionaries. We must take time and pains about this matter, and many more of these books will be sold.

We are able to report that the finances of the Press are in an encouraging condition. Your committee examined the accounts and found a Cr. balance in hand of Rs. 2,242-13-1. As a matter of business principle, and while fully recognizing the fact that our Press is the servant of the Mission, and an agent for advancing the work in every way possible, yet we recommend the Superintendent to use care in applying the general funds of the Press, to publishing what is merely of local or perhaps personal interest. There is a temptation to print sundry reports, blanks, documents &c from the general funds of the Press when they should be printed from local resources or by the parties immediately concerned. Care in this matter will conserve the funds of the Press for broader and more permanent ends.

V.—ON STATE OF THE CHURCH.

In view of the exhaustive report presented last year and the various reports presented along with this, the committee do not feel called upon to make a lengthy report.

I. Spiritual growth.—We have at present 1,990 members and 1,571 probationers, making with their children 5,439 as our total Christian community. We have reason to believe that this handful of Christians is exerting an influence for good in all parts of the Mission. The number of adults baptized during the year, 499, is encouraging.

The Camp Meetings, held at Dikwali, Chandausi and Cawnpur were all well attended and very successful. We would urge upon both pastors and people the importance of these annual gatherings: let us make them attractive not only to our own people but to our non-christian employes, our heathen and Mohammedan neighbors, and to our school-boys and others: let us win the people from their many Melas and call upon them to join us in worshipping the true God.

The committee asks for the Kaukab i Hind, our weekly newspaper, more subscribers and well written communications from all parts of the field.

We earnestly exhort all our pastors to cultivate the class and prayer-meetings. Methodism in India can not afford to neglect these. In all our Churches, both city and rural, pains should be taken to maintain these weekly meetings.

II. Temporal progress. The Industrial School at Cawnpur, as noted in the Annual Report, has been a success. There are now about 100 young men and boys, eight families and several widows employed, in all about 125. The total earnings of the boys now amount to Rs. 160 per month. During the year eight boys have become self-supporting and one of these has been married: these eight boys have thus found suitable work and a perplexing problem has been satisfactorily solved. Other boys are wanted; 100 more could find employment in one establishment at Cawnpur, and 400 in another. Native Christian boys are also wanted in the Lucknow Paper Mills. We note with great gladness these openings, which mean that our Native Christians not suited to professional life and still willing to work, can find remunerative employment and thus be able not only to support themselves but to assist in the various missionary enterprises of our Church.

Our great need is more workers, more missionaries, more local preachers, more Exhorters, more teachers, more Bible-readers, more colporteurs. Let our constant prayer be that the Lord of the harvest may raise up and send forth many more laborers.

VI.—MEMOIRS.

MRS. WRATHERBY.—Rachel K., wife of the Rev. S. S. Weatherby, of New Jersey Conference, died at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Glassboro, N. J., Oct. 17, 1882, in her 39th year. She was the daughter of David and Sarah J. Compton, and was born in New Egypt, Ocean Co., N. J., June 30, 1843. From childhood she exhibited strong religious tendencies, and was converted in her 21st year. All her religious life was consistent and her experience clear. On March 30, 1865, she was married to the Rev. S. S. Weatherby, then under appointment as missionary to India. She entered into the missionary life with great enthusiasm. She labored in it for eight years, and finally returned home because of the failure of her husband's health. This return was an occasion of regret, as she loved the blessed work of leading the heathen to Christ. After a brief rest, her husband resumed the pastorate in New Jersey Conference. In every charge she will be remembered for her devotion to Christian work while her life made her a model to all. Every labor of benevolence found a ready response. She was a true wife and a good mother, ordering her household in the ways of truth and life. Her last illness extended over two months, and when it became evident that she must depart, she bowed in trustful submission. Such faith did she possess in the wisdom and love of her Saviour that, when very near the end, she declared that she would not exchange places with any person in the world, however rich, wise, or well, because she was what she was and where she was by the will of God, and knew

186, 1882.

PREM DAS.—Our beloved brother Prem Das finished his journey and entered his heavenly home September 23, 1882. He lived a Christian life. Those brethren who were acquainted with him know that Christian love was constantly in his heart and upon his countenance was written Christian humility. His every word was with a smile, moreover even sickness and trouble could not drive it away. With a smile he greeted death itself.

This brother lived in the town of Shahpur in the Amroha district. Before he became a Christian he was a guru or religious teacher of the chumars and taught his disciples in the doctrines of Nanak. When the glad tidings of our Lord Jesus Christ reached him he abandoned the false religion and resolved to follow Christ. On September 7, 1862, he received baptism at the hands of Rev. J. L. Humphrey. From that time onward his progress in the Christian religion was steady. He greatly longed to see the people of his old faith, especially his own disciples, accept Christianity. He was a faithful servant of the Church. Whatever work or service was entrusted to him was performed with fidelity, zeal and promptness. His manner of arranging his work was most excellent. He was a righteous man in word and deed. It may be said of him as of Nathanael, "Behold an Israelite indeed in whom is no guile." His conversation and preaching were marked by great simplicity and truth.

Although we rejoice that our brother has found rest from his toil, it is nevertheless a cause of sorrow that there is one laborer less in the vineyard of the Lord. Whatever God does is for our good, and it has pleased Him to take this fragrant flower hence and to plant it in the Garden of his presence.

His afflicted widow and orphans have our deepest sympathy.
